A.F.L. Rejects Lewis Plan For Congress Of Labor

President Hints At Intervention In Case of Unity Parley Deadlock

The American Federation of Labor committee named to conduct peace negotiations with the Congress of Industrial Organizations last night dismissed as unworthy of consideration a proposal by John L. Lewis for an American Congress of Labor.

The Lewis proposal was made public at the White House, at the conclusion of a conference with President Roosevelt opening the negotiations. Present were Secretary of Labor Perkins and members of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. negotiating committees.

Lewis released to newspapermen a mimeographed statement outlining his plan for a labor congress consisting of the C. I. O., the A. F. of L., and the independent railroad brotherhoods. The latter have remained neutral.

Entirely New Leaders

Under the proposal, neither Lewis nor William Green, president of the A. F. of L., would be eligible for election to any office in the new labor body. Lewis suggested that Green and Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer of the E. F. of L. be pensioned for life at their present salary.

Hinting at possible intervention if the negotiating committees fail to come to terms, President Roosevelt declared that "direct negotiations with outside interposition is always best if possible." He added:

"I believe no other method of settlement will ever become necessary in this case because I believe that you are today beginning a proper step for a permanent, stable and acceptable solution. I am counting on you to succeed and shall look forward to the final report on your negotiations."

Statement Amplified

The President said at his press conference that he had made this statement to members of the negotiating committees in greatly amplified form.

The A. F. of L. negotiating committee commented on the C. I. O. proposal as follows:

"We regret exceedingly that the committee representing the Congress of Industrial Organizations saw fit to place the President of the United States in an embarrassing position by using the White House as a sounding board for its proposal.

"Anyone familiar with present day labor difficulties will realize that the C. I. O. proposal does not offer any possible solution to the problems facing us. We are convinced it was not even designed for serious consideration.

"It should be obvious that the only way to obtain peace is for both sides to get down to consideration of the facts in a realistic way and then negotiate a settlement. Nothing can be accomplished by the issuance of fanciful statements for headline purposes. In the hope of finding a peaceful solution of the problems involved we intend to confine ourselves to the procedure outlined by the President."

Lewis proposed that the president of the new labor congress be chosen from the brotherhoods, specifically "from such types of executives as A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen."

Whitney, according to the Associated Press, commented at his office in Cleveland as follows: "I don't like that term, one big union." He added:

"If the groups want to set up a co-operative program, I think I could go along with that. I would have to get convention authority, however, before I could take any action on a one big union proposal."

Willing to Co-operate

"A federation of organized labor, of something of that sort, I think, would appeal to the average person. We will co-operate with one or all of the groups anytime for the benefit of society or labor."

Robertson and Alvaney Johnson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said they would make no comment until they heard from Lewis and Green.

Bandit Suspects Seized in Jersey

Police believe that several in the long series of liquor store holdups will be solved because of the arrest of two colored men in a stolen District car at Penns Neck, N. J.

Jersey State police said the men had admitted several liquor store holdups here.

Way Cleared For Their Bridal

Carole Lombard and Clark Gable (inset), screen idols of millions, will marry, now that Gable is divorced. Mrs. Maria F. Gable won his freedom yesterday in a four-minute hearing. She told the court that she was married in 1931 and was deserted in October, 1935. Miss Lombard confirmed rumors yesterday that she will become the third Mrs. Gable.

D. C. Revises Milk Rules as Inquiry Is Sped

Moves to Put 'Teeth' in Regulation; House Unit Approves Hearings

A House District Committee investigation of the "bootlegging" of cream in Washington appeared assured last night as the District Commissioners adopted regulations to strengthen enforcement of the 1925 act prohibiting sale of milk from unlicensed farms.

With unusual alacrity, the House Rules Committee authorized a favorable report on a resolution introduced the day before by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia. The resolution directs the District Committee to conduct the inquiry.

Smith, authorized by the committee to report the resolution, said he would call it up as soon as the House finishes with Governmental reorganization legislation.

Chairman Randolph, of the District Committee, pledged a "thorough investigation" once the resolution is adopted by the House. He said the job probably would be assigned to the sub-committee on public health, headed by Representative Bates (Democrat), of Kentucky, but that several members may be added to the standing sub-committee.

Meanwhile, members of the House from Western States began to complain against District regulations on the ground they bar sale of unlicensed cream in the District.

Representative Hull (Progressive), of Wisconsin, said the Wis-

Flu Keeps Hughes From Court First Time in 9 Years

For the first time in nine years, illness yesterday kept Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes away from a session of the Supreme Court. Under doctor's orders, he was confined to his home, 2223 R street northwest, suffering a mild attack of grip.

The 76-year-old jurist will not attend sessions of the court for the remainder of the week.

Reds Battle Peace-Maker In Madrid

Hold Houses After Miaja Attacks With Planes, Guns and Tanks

By the Associated Press.

Madrid (Wednesday), March 8.—Machinegun and rifle fire flared and crackled in the darkness of Madrid's streets early today as Communists fought against the new republican regime of Gen. Jose Miaja and his peace program.

Firing was particularly intense in the northern and eastern sections where barricaded units of Communists still were holding out at 1:45 a. m.

A midnight communique by the national defense council, headed by Miaja, had declared the situation under control.

Cartagena Rebels Quelled

The statement said the revolt at Cartagena, republican naval base, had been quelled.

(Unofficial reports in Burgos, nationalist capital, said republicans were faced with spreading Communist outbreaks not only at Madrid and Cartagena but also in Murcia, Gaudalajara and Cuenca.

(Informed sources in Paris reported Miaja was trying to arrange a three-week armistice by direct negotiation with the nationalists as merely a "pause before surrendering.")

Nationalist broadcasts, however, boasted that "we can take Madrid as we took Barcelona"—without oppositionon January 28—and nationalist dispatches hinted Franco might swoop down on the republican capital. His armies ringed Madrid.

Reds Loyal to Negrin

Miaja's republican troops battled Communists who remained loyal to Premier Negrin's administration, ousted Sunday by followers of the "defender of Madrid."

A nationalist radio station at Oviedo said that the only peace Franco would accept was "unconditional surrender," which Negrin had opposed.

If Miaja's government stands firm, central Spain may offer what amounts to an unconditional surrender. Last night Miaja broadcast that "We want peace, but a worthy peace; we want this peace realized with maximum rapidity."

Eleven republican warships carrying 4,500 persons, including 600 civilian and military refugees, gave themselves up to authorities at Bizerte, French naval base in Tunisia.

Two destroyers were sunk by insurgent bombing planes as the fleet steamed out of Cartagena, French authorities said.

[French officers said the republican ships would be turned over to Franco as soon as the war is over in conformity with France's recognition of the nationalist regime February 27, the United Press reported. The crews were prisoners aboard their ships pending construction of an emergency concentration camp. —Editor's note.]

(In Rome, the authoritative Fascist spokesman, Virginio Gayda, demanded that France turn over the fleet to Franco immediately.)

Officials Flee, Caught

Twenty-four former leaders of the Spanish republican government arrived at Toulouse by airplane from Madrid today but another plane carrying republican officials was said to have been captured.

The fugitives included Lieut. Col. Enrique Lister, Gen. Juan Modesto, and Gen. Hidalgo de Cisneros.

Negrin and former Foreign Minister Alvarez del Vayo, who flew to Toulouse yesterday, arrived in Paris by train today. Negrin was reported going to Switzerland.

Dick Merrill Reveals Secret Marriage to Toby Wing

By International News Service.

MERRILL

WING

Merrill, a regular passenger pilot for Eastern Air Lines, brought a plane of that line into the local airport at 10:25 o'clock tonight, and was met, upon alighting from the plane, by a group of reporters who sought vertification of a New York report that he and the film actress were man and wife.

The pilot at first displayed irritation when approached by the reporters.

"Why can't I be let alone?" he pleaded. "This is my own affair."

The reporters persisted, however, and Merrill finally yielded.

"All right," he said.

"Sure, we're married. We were married last summer. We took a trip to Mexico and got married."

Asked where, in Mexico, and when they were married, Merrill replied, "I don't remember. You can get all that from the girl's mother."

Defense Vote 10-1; Leahy Warns Japan May Force U. S. to New Fleet Boost

America's intention to strengthen its defense in an armed world was emphatically voiced last night as the Senate passed the $367,000,000 Army expansion bill by a vote of 77 to 8.

Concluding seven days of bitter debate over foreign policy and dissension over details, the Senate by overwhelming vote indorsed increasing the Army's air power to 6,000 first-line planes. Several amendments written into the measure will require a conference with the House, which already has given its approval to the arms plan.

Guam Project Separate

Other defense developments:

Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, said a majority of the committee favors the proposal to spend $5,000,000 to improve aviation facilities at Guam, though not in the present naval air base bill. He revealed the committee plans to report a separate measure for Guam when it approves the base bill.

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, indicated that if Japan attempted to reach parity with the United States in naval strength the Navy would seek an increase to keep its present superiority.

Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, disclosed that a group of 40 Senators would introduce a bill to provide drastic taxes to take the profit out of war. Levies would range up to 97 per cent of profits, he said.

Swanson to Inspect Fleet

President Roosevelt authorized the Navy to have four 6,900-ton cruisers built in private shipyards. Under the law, two of the cruisers would have to be constructed in navy yards unless the President directs otherwise. The cruisers, to cost $12,000,000 each, can be built more quickly, cheaply and of better quality in this manner, naval officials said.

Navy Secretary Swanson announced he will inspect the United States Fleet during tactical and gunnery exercises at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, the middle of this month, leaving Charleston Saturday on the cruiser Houston.

The House Military Affairs Committee heard J. Carson Adkerson, president of the American Manganese Producers Association, testify the Government no longer is dependent on foreign markets to obtain manganese for its war reserves.

Only 8 Oppose Bill

Fifty-seven Democrats, 17 Republicans, 1 Progressive, 1 Independent and 1 Farmer-Laborite joined in supporting the plane bill; 4 Republicans, 3 Democrats and 1 Farmer-Laborite voted against. The latter were Senators Borah, of Idaho; Capper, Kansas, and Frazier and Nye, of North Dakota, all Republicans; Clark, of Missouri; Clark, of Idaho, and King, of Utah, Democrats, and Shipstead, of Minnesota, Farmer-Labor.

In aproving the bill, the Senate restricted profits of aircraft manufacturers receiving orders under the program to 10 per cent, limited the cost of the air expansion program to $300,000,000, and boosted the maximum number of planes above the House total of 5,500.

Actual appropriation of funds to put the program into effect was rushed. The House Appropriations Committee planned to hear Army officials today on supplemental funds

House Group Hostile to Overton Plan

Rep. Nichols Asserts District Complaints May Cost It U. S. Aid

The Overton fiscal formula for stabilizing Federal payments to the District was given a hostile reception by a sub-committee of the House District Committee yesterday as hearings opened on the $13,000,000 revenue program proposed by the citizens' advisory tax committee.

Chairman Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, after listening to a plea from Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen for a larger Federal payment, said:

"I think the people of the District are flirting with dynamite. If they keep talking about the Federal payment and complaining that it is too small, they are apt to lose it all."

Commissioner Hazen pointed out that the operating costs of the District are higher than in the average city and that capital improvements have to be monumental because this is the National Capital. When he turned to Nichols with the remark that the people of his own district were interested in seeing Washington developed as the most beautiful capital in the world, the chairman replied:

"Ninety-eight per cent of the people in my district have never been to Washington, and they wouldn't care if the Department of Commerce were housed in a tent."

The tax inquiry was recessed after Dr. Chester B. Pond, who made

Hotel Workers To Vote Today on City-Wide Strike

Local hotel workers last night decided to vote early today on a general strike after representatives of the operators served notice they would "not retreat" on the issue of the closed shop.

Union officials said the strike will apply to all hotels and restaurants except the Hamilton, which is covered by a closed shop contract. Walkouts already have taken place at the Ambassador and the Roger Smith.

Negotiations stalled yesterday after the union had offered to compromise on a "union shop" instead of a "closed shop."

Two Policemen Injured in Crash; Autoist Arrested

Sergt. Alton P. Shumate and Patrolman Walter Mitchell, of the Falls Church police, were injured yesterday when their scout car was forced off Broad street and plunged into a tree as they raced to answer an emergency call.

John J. Hawkins, a carpenter, of Galax, Va., whose driver's permit had been revoked, struck the police auto and forced it off the road after passing a stop sign at the Cherry street intersection, according to State police. He was arrested.

The Gallup Poll:

Popularity of War Referendum Waning

Roosevelt Assails Neutrality Act and War Referendum

Only 58% of Voters Back Plan, Compared To 73% in 1937

By Dr. George Gallup,
American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, March 7.—The constitutional amendment introduced in the Senate last week requiring a national referendum before the United States can engage in a war overseas is approved, at this time, by a majority of American voters.

On four occasions in the last two years the American Institute of Public Opinion has conducted cross-section surveys on the war referendum plan, and each time the plan has been indorsed by the public. The latest survey, just completed, finds that although the referendum idea is less popular today than it was last year or the year before, it is still favored by nearly six out of every ten voters, most of whom say that "the politicians should consult the people because the people have to do the fighting."

The vote in the latest survey was on the following question:

"Should the Constitution be changed to require Congress to obtain the approval of the people in a national vote before the United States could take part in a war overseas?"

That war refendum issue was put to the voters in 1936, 1937 and 1938, and the trend of sentiment has been as follows:

	Yes.	No.
September, 1936	71%	29%
October, 1937	73	27
October, 1938	68	32
Today	58	42

When the Ludlow war referendum bill was introduced in Congress last year, President Roosevelt and State Department officials vigorously opposed its passage, arguing that such a measure

President's Vessel 'Destroyed' Twice By 'Enemy' Subs

By the Associated Press.

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, disclosed yesterday that the cruiser Houston with President Roosevelt aboard was theoretically sunk by an "enemy" submarine in the war games in the Caribbean. The President said his ship was theoretically destroyed twice.

The Houston, Admiral Leahy said, was entering the harbor of Charlotte Amalie, Virgin Islands, to take aboard mail for the President. The submarine attacked just outside the harbor, firing an imaginary torpedo.

"It sank us very effectively," Leahy said. "The first we knew of it was a signal."

Bromo Seltzer Seized by U. S. as Potential Peril

Atlanta, March 7 (AP).—Assistant United States District Attorney Isadore Leff announced today Federal agents had seized more than 2,300 bottles of bromo-seltzer, a proprietary medicine, on charges it was mislabeled and potentially "dangerous to health."

The Emerson Drug Co., of Baltimore, makers of the remedy, which is used largely for headaches and neuralgia, was given until April 1 to file and answer to the charges.

House Passage Of Offices Bill Forecast Today

Democrats Muster Sufficient Votes For Showdown

By Robert C. Albright.

A compromise Government reorganization bill, salvaged from the wreckage of last year's merger efforts, last night appeared to have mustered enough Democratic strength for House passage on a showdown vote today.

House approval was predicted by Majority Leader Rayburn and House Whip Pat Boland following brisk debate in which Democratic lines firmly held. Republicans rallied around a rival measure introduced in the Senate by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia.

As the House closed its second day of debate, Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, introduced the House bill in the Senate and House Democrats opened an attack on the Byrd measure.

Senator Byrnes, chairman of the Senate Reorganization Committee, said he favored the Warren-Cochran bill now before the House "because it represents in the opinion of a majority of the House committee the best possible compromise.

Byrnes' Senate Reorganization Committee has not yet met, but another Senate group on "Investigation of Executive Agencies," headed by Byrd, Monday reported out the Virginian's measure. It declared the existence of a deficit

D. C. Bans Bingo for Prizes; Even Charity Games Forbidden

District law-enforcement authorities have defined the playing of bitngo for cash prizes as gambling and have ordered the Elks Club, Knights of Columbus, churches and other organizations to stop sponsoring benefit games or face prosecution, The Post learned last night.

At the instance of Capt. Harvey Callahan, of the First Precinct, it was learned, Martin Young, exalted ruler of the Washington Lodge of Elks; Norman Schroth, chairman of the Elks' "Belko Club" (bingo), and Alfred Neff, who has had charge of bingo games at the Knights of Columbus Hall, were called into conference yesterday with Assistant District Attorney Karl Kindleberger.

"Bingo playing at the Knights of Columbus Hall and at the Elks Club is purely gambling" Kindleberger declared last night. "It is absolutely against the law and all the schemes they have for playing the game are just artifices to get around the law.

"I told Capt. Callahan that these games would have to stop or he would have to do his duty."

Kindleberger said bingo games throughout the city would be dealt with similarly. He said the drive was partially inspired by professional promoters who cited the playing at private clubs and churches when asked to stop their own games.

Young said notices of discontinuance of the Elks Club games were sent to all members immediately after the conference.

All proceeds from the games, played weekly, have been turned over to the Elks welfare fund, he said. Knights of Columbus and other organizations also have been running games for charity.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

BY HELEN WOODRING
WIFE OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR

A young lady of the press called me recently to inquire what I would wear to a White House reception. My babies were climbing all over me, getting into everything and asking questions during my telephone conversation, and this is approximately what the lady heard from my end of the wire:

* * * *

"Yes, this is Mrs. Woodring. Good morning. What will I wear?—Be quiet, Precious, and let me do the talking—A gold damask gown—Yer, dear, it's mine—with a little Persian flower design—mustn't touch—a tightly fitted waist—ouch!—and a low round neck—peek-a-boo!—I shall wear gold sandals—watch those little dogs, Sweetheart—a small diamond pin on the shoulder—don't strain your eyes, dear!—and long beige gloves—

* * * *

"Such dirty hands I never saw!—and a tiny ermine cape trimmed with a fringe of tails—The puppy dogs!—That's quite complete, I guess—you naughty thing—I hope we'll see you at the reception—put that down!—Oh, it was no trouble at all—Just a little nuisance!—Call me any time and—I'll tell you about the Seven Dwarfs, dear—Goodbye.

Then if we're "misquoted" we wonder why and raise the roof.

Speaking of roofs—we just moved. Maybe you read about it. There are a lot of imaginative people around town who might get together and write a thriller called "The Fate of Hoover House." The next thing they will be saying about 2300 S street is that the Emperor of Japan has leased it to entertain visiting British royalty. That could be about as far-fetched as the rumors up to date. The Hoovers did not dump us out. They are extremely kind and generous landlords.

CAPITAL ETIQUETTE

A gross offender is the "bore."
The worst of Nature's hybrids.
But he offends us even more
Who slumps with heavy eyelids.

A gentleman is never found
Asleep in stupid coma;
He sits alert and tries to round
The edge of his diploma.

He'll listen long with patience prime
And treat the bore with honor;
But if he's smart—the second time
He'll not be near to corner.

So never let yourself be "bored."
It is a sad reflection.
Not so much on the bore, alas,
As on your own perfection.

Have you ever seen the side of a cliff riddled with little holes where swallows live? A tall clay bank all honeycombed with tiny nesting places? Millions of birds flitting in and out on unknown errands, chirping and twittering? Did it remind you of the Shoreham? (Editor's note: Where the Secretary of War and many other officials live.)

"—psychic with teddy bears"

Our oldest lad, four and a half, is a southpaw and, what's more, his writing reads from right to left. He prints his pame like this: GNIR-DOOW SUCRAM.

At a glance you would suppose his signature was a line of contemporary poetry or a message in code telling a Gridiron widow to scram. He doesn't stand on his head to do it or even use mirrors. It's a natural talent! I can't just see where it will lead him. To the head of the line, I hope.

Our little girl told me the other day that she ate sooo much luncheon her stomach was sticking out sooo far, that when Daddy came home "he wouldn't know whether it was Melissa or Grand-Daddy." We may have to move again to one of those "bay-window" apartments.

We have three teddy bears exactly alike. Nurse and parents cannot distinguish one from another. Our little baby, two in February, looks at the bottoms of the feet to pick his own bear. We have yet to discover, after close study, what there is about those padded paws to identify Cooper's pet. I expect this baby to grow into a fine detective or a fallen-arch specialist.

Interior Bill Cut 4 Pct.; 7th Slash in Row

President Hits Writers For Talk of Dissension Over Economy

While President Roosevelt yesterday declined comment on the Congressional economy drive, the House Appropriations Committee prepared to report today an Interior Department bill cut more than $6,000,000 under budget estimates.

It was the seventh consecutive measure the economy-minded House group had pruned under budget figures and raised total House reductions in Administration estimates to more than $200,000,000. But the 4 per cent Interior Department slash still fell shy of the 10 per cent reduction in all appropriations recently proposed by Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi.

"They talk about cutting in the Senate," one House committeeman said. "The difference is we do it."

Shies at Dissension

Questioned at his press conference about the Congressional economy campaign President Roosevelt said some reporters would like to write stories about dissension between White House and Capitol, so he didn't think he would say anything.

President Roosevelt reiterated his intention to send a message to Congress Monday on funds to tide WPA over the present year but declined to intimate the amount he will ask. He said it might range from nothing up to $150,000,000.

Mr. Roosevelt said he will call WPA Administrator Harrington to the White House today or tomorrow to outline the current needs of his agency and his recommendations may depend on that report. Congress early this session cut the President's $875,000,000 deficiency relief request to $725,000,000 and the President almost immediately warned in a message that $150,000,000 more would be required.

Debt Limit Not Pressing

President Roosevelt also was questioned on Administration plans for an increase in the Nation's legal debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000, an issue which has brought economy bloc warnings against any attempt at an increase.

Mr. Roosevelt remarked that a good many legislative days will pass before there will be any need for increasing the debt limit and he therefore didn't regard the question as important at this time. He said he thought a request for the increase already had been made but reporters disagreed. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau recently indicated an increase in the debt limit may be necessary.

In opposition to such a move, Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, yesterday added another statement to the series of senatorial expressions against the increase.

Johnson Urges Curb

"I am opposed to granting this request," Senator Johnson said. "This is the country's great opportunity to force the Government to live within its income. The spending policy of the Administration needs to be curbed—not by hacking off a few million dollars for relief to the unemployed but by a drastic revamping of all expenditures from belfry to basement."

A similar declaration was issued last week by Senator Harrison, and Senators Van Nuys, of Indiana, and Byrd, of Virginia (Democrats), have warned that an effort to increase the national debt limit will precipitate one of the major battles of the session.

In line with House Appropriations Committee efforts to translate demands for economy into action, the full committee will meet this morning to vote on the 4 per cent reduction in Interior Department estimates ordered by a sub-committee headed by Representative Johnson (Democrat), of Oklahoma.

Deficiency Bill Cut

Another sub-committee, led by Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, leading economy advocate in the House, was busily paring estimates in the second deficiency bill. Some of the deepest cuts made to date in the House have been in deficiency and relief bills handled by Woodrum.

The House score on economy as of yesterday on major appropriation bills was as follows:

Bill	Budget Estimates	House Action
Legislative ...	$24,992,246	$21,641,278
Treasury and Postoffice ..	$1,728,397,492	$1,700,591,354
War	$320,324,618	$499,857,936
First deficiency ..	$13,529,000	$9,979,000
Relief	$875,000,000	$725,000,000

The $1,670,047,010 independent office bill was cut to $1,651,087,340 by the House, but the major saving was wiped out when the House later concurred in Senate action restoring more than $17,000,000 for TVA dams.

17 U. S. Senators Protest Proposal For Arab State

Seventeen United States Senators yesterday joined in issuing a statement of protest against proposals to establish an independent Arab state, giving the Jewish population in Palestine permanent minority status.

The Senators were William H. King (Democrat), of Utah; Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming; Morris Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas; William H. Smathers (Democrat) and W. HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich food, or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach often pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in no time and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

Elliott Roosevelt Attacks FCC Radio Policies After Blast at Delay in Rail Rate 'Equalizing'

Harris & Ewing.

Elliot Roosevelt, son of the President, yesterday charged the Federal Communications Commission with retarding the development of small radio stations by issuing operating licenses for periods of only six months. He is shown (center, above) with Eugene O. Sykes (left) and Paul Walker, both of the FCC. Investigation was to determine whether monopolies exist in broadcasting. Young Roosevelt is president of the Texas State Network, Inc.

By International News Service.

Elliott Roosevelt, second eldest son of the President, was on record last night with sharp criticism of some policies of his father's New Deal Administration.

After a radio address by young Roosevelt in Texas, criticizing the Government for "failing to face squarely" the issue of sectional discrimination against the Southwest, he took the stand here to lambast the Federal Communications Commission.

Testifying before the FCC investigation of charges of monopoly in broadcasting, the young radio executive accused the commission of retarding development of small stations, through issuance of only six-month licenses.

He said "A censorship of fear" exists in radio, adding that:

"Free speech, generally speaking, is enjoyed only in America. The totalitarian states have not only a controlled press, but a controlled radio, and this trend is to be feared in America. This censorship may be unintended. It is none the less real."

His charges against the Administration were even more vigorous in a transcribed radio address Monday night from Fort Worth, Tex., where he heads a State-wide network. Recorded recently, the speech had not been broadcast before.

In it, the President's son called the Interstate Commerce Commission "an aged, decaying, tortoise-like body."

"The present Administration," he declared, has talked long and loudly about the necessity of raising wages in the South and Southwest—but as yet the issue never has been faced squarely . . ."

Attacking the subject of "freight rate discrimination" against the same States, he said, "for another year at least, unless there is a change of sentiment, the ICC will be empowered to set and adjust freight rates as it sees fit."

Such control, he said, is stifling both industry and agriculture in the South.

He assailed Representative Clarence Lea (Democrat), of California, chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, for "avoiding responsibility" in this situation.

Before the FCC yesterday, he said small stations had been denied necessary bank loans, because the commission prevents any assurance of their permanence.

Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, said yesterday he will support moves for a sweeping inquiry of the FCC.

Missouri Jury Indicts 3d Aide Of Pendergast

Charged With Neglect Of Duty; Gov. Stark Says Conditions 'Smell'

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Mo., March 7.—Charges of neglecting duty were fired today at Jackson County (Kansas City) prosecutor, W. W. Graves, jr., by a crime-probing county grand jury—the third county official aligned with Boss Tom Pendergast to be swept into a list of 138 indictments.

The jury's sensational blast followed a recent demand by Pendergast's Democratic rival, Gov. Stark, that Graves be ousted from office for conditions which the Governor said "smell to the high heaven."

Graves, who dismissed two notorious murder cases only to have them revived by the grand jury which indicted him, heatedly denied today's charges.

Indicted Two Others

The grand jury has indicted David Long, presiding judge of the county court, an administrative body, and J. W. Hostetter, supervisor of county institutions, on charges of corruption.

A Federal grand jury also disclosed today its intention to bring contempt action if needs be to compel witnesses to tell all they know about Charles V. Carrolla, identified by Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves, as Kansas City's "big man of gambling."

Carrolla already has been indicted by the county grand jury.

Dropped at Grave's Request

The chief target picked by Stark in his blast at Graves was the Charles Gargotto case. Gargotta was arrested in 1933 by Sheriff Thomas B. Bash at the scene of a gangland killing.

Sheriff Bash, who killed two men attempting to flee, arrested Gargotta on the spot. He said Gargotta had attempted to kill him.

Gargotta was acquitted on the murder charge, the chief defense testimony being supplied by a police officer who later was convicted of perjury.

State Aide Quits

Lincoln, Nebr., March 7 (AP).—Gov. Cochran announced today the resignation of Paul Jones, director of the State Securities Bureau, as State and county officials deepened their inquiry into the affairs of the bankrupt $1,300,000 First Mortgage Acceptance Corporation of Omaha. Invsetigation of the company led to the arrest yesterday of Leo S. Holmes, president, and George M. Hauser, secretary, on two complaints of violating the Nebraska "blue sky" laws.

Cochran named Harold C. Johnson, 37, Burwell, Nebr., to succeed Jones.

Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, expressed the belief yesterday that an appointee's qualifications for a job should be judged by what he has done rather than what he has said.

ASHURST

Ashurst, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, made the point during committee consideration of a Federal court appointment. He said he told his colleagues:

"If you're going to judge men by what they say, we'll all be on the spot, because we have all been on all sides of every question.

"Anyway, what are words but wind?"

President Roosevelt said yesterday that he had not offered any Federal position to Harold D. Smith, of Michigan. Smith's name had been mentioned in connection with the post of Federal budget director.

Frank W. Stearns, who died in Boston Monday, was eulogized in the House yesterday.

Representative Barton (Republican), of New York, lauding Stearns' devotion to President Coolidge, told the House "Seldom if ever has there been in our history such complete self-sacrificing devotion to a younger man on the part of an older friend."

The House Foreign Affairs Committee appointed a committee of five to express condolences to Stearns' son, Representative Foster Stearns (Republican), of New Hampshire, a member of the committee. Representatives Vorys (Republican), of Ohio, Luther A. Johnson (Democrat), of Texas, Kee (Democrat), of West Virginia, Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts, and Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, were designated.

Representative Jones (Democrat), of Texas, asked the House Agricultural Committee yesterday to approve legislation to create an agency to finance farm home loans.

The chairman said he could see no good reason why the Government should not extend to worthy farmers the same lending facilities of the Government now available to city dwellers.

Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, introduced a bill to require the use of domestic goods only, for all construction carried on in whole or in part by the Government. Bone said lumber interests had complained to him that Canadian lumber and shingles have been widely used in construction of homes under the terms of the National Housing Act.

House Group 'To Acquit' Miss Perkins

Judiciary Committee Seeks Way to Shelve 'High Crimes' Charges

By the Associated Press.

Members of the House Judiciary Committee, in virtual agreement, sought a way yesterday to pigeonhole a rseolution looking toward impeachment of Secretary Perkins for alleged failure to enforce the immigration laws.

Although the matter had not been brought to a vote, both Republican and Democratic committeemen said they had found insufficient evidence to warrant removal of Miss Perkins.

The committee agreed to the appointment of a sub-committee composed of Representatives Hobbs (Democrat), Alabama; Chandler (Democrat), Tennessee; McLaughlin (Democrat), Nebraska; Robsion (Republican), Kentucky, and Graham (Republican), Pennsylvania, to draft by Thursday recommendations for the committee's future course.

It was learned that some committeemen wanted public hearings "so we can have something to base our acquittal on."

A resolution of Representative Thomas (Republican), New Jersey, called on the committee to investigate Miss Perkins and two aides on charges of "high crimes and misdemeanors" for suspending deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, C. I. O. West Coast maritime leader. Thomas accused Bridges of being an alien Communist.

The Department of Labor suspended the Bridges case pending a Supreme Court decision whether membership in the Communist Party alone is adequate grounds for deportation.

In a letter to the committee yesterday, Thomas requested it summon R. P. Bonham, immigration commissioner at Seattle. He said, Bonham had information which would have prevented a suspension of the Bridges litigation if the Labor Department had accepted.

Trusts Peril Capitalism, FTC Warns

Commission Assails Basing-Point Pricing In Steel Industry

In a stinging indictment of monopolistic practices in the steel industry, the Federal Trade Commission yesterday warned that disappearance of free competition might mean the death of capitalism and of democratic government.

The steel industry "has become addicted to monopoly, as to a habit-forming drug," the FTC declared in a statement introduced into the record of the temporary national economic committee. Principal object of the attack was the basing-point system, which, the FTC alleged, "enables all steel producers, without the necessity of special consultation, to arrive at an identical delivered price for any order of steel delivered at any point in the United States."

O'Mahoney Cautions

Immediately after Eugene Burr, FTC steel expert, had read the statement, Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, committee chairman, cautioned reporters that it was "not to be regarded in any sense as expressing the views of the committee as a whole." He added that he favored giving the industry an opportunity to present its side of the question.

Emphatically urging "the protection of competitive capitalism" the FTC criticized the steel industry as "a focal center of a monopolistic infection which if not eradicated, may well cause the death of free capitalistic industry in the United States."

The FTC asserted that the steel industry is not in the same category as certain public utilities (classified as "natural" monopolies), but should be treated as "a free enterprise." Therefore, the FTC said, it should be subjected only to such protection as will assure "continuous, sound and wholesome competition."

Warns on Alternative

The alternative to a genuine competitive system, the FTC warned, "is the abandonment of capitalism and experimentation with authoritarian controls."

The commission declared that "if private monopoly is permitted to spread through the greater part of the business system, public control appears to be unavoidable."

But this line of development the FTC shunned. "We believe that to socialize the iron and steel industry, probably the leader of American business, would be a dangerous precedent," the report stated. "Such an example might spread far through the business world, tending to the breakdown of private enterprise and the rise of an authoritarian state."

The commission said that "the lesson seems clear that democratic liberty requires, as one of its foundation stones, the preservation and protection of a sufficient area of free capitalism to balance the necessary centralization of public utilities and other natural monopolies."

The basing-point system of maintaining uniform prices, regardless of the distance a steel mill is from its customer, "must involve a general and continuous waste," the FTC asserted, "since it would obviously be more efficient if customers were able to buy at a lower cost from the nearest available source."

Obsolete Mills Survive

Attacking the system further on the grounds it has permitted obsolete mills to survive, the report said this failure to eliminate the least efficient plants through the natural process of competition has not only discouraged technological progress, but also tended "to accustom the industry to the idea of a low ratio of production to capacity." At the present time, the report said, operations must be "at better than 50 per cent of capacity" to make a profit.

Among the advantages of "sound competition," said the FTC, would be "decentralized location of mills, tending to favor the growth of numerous scattered mills close to customers, or in the shortest line between customer and raw material, an important item in terms of economic stability and of national defense."

Whatever the protection of competitive capitalism may cost, the report concluded, "we believe it will be less costly to capitalism and to freedom than any alternative."

Compromise Asked in Row On Gallinger

Both Factions Air Staff Control Views At House Hearing

The quarrel over who is to be in control at Gallinger Hospital—full-time resident doctors or visiting physicians from the medical schools of Georgtown and George Washington universities—spread yesterday to Capitol Hill, where advocates of both policies aired their views before a House District subcommittee.

Representative Bates (Democrat), of Kentucky, chairman, called for a compromise and expressed belief the whole Gallinger problem will suffer unless "the two sides can get together."

"If they have the welfare of patients out there at heart, they will reach an agreement of their own accord. It seems such a little matter, really, when needs of the institution are considered," he declared.

Representative Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the House subcommittee on appropriations—who was visited by leaders of both factions after their appearance at the hearing—said he believed "things can be straightened out by end of the week."

Richard MacKenzie, consultant, recently named by District commissioners to study the situation, joined with the Very Rev. Arthur O'Leary, head of Georgetown, and Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington, in telling the committee that "the best run hospitals of this country are under supervision of their visiting staffs."

Father O'Leary declared: "A ship cannot have two captains. If we continue with the setup that is at variance with standard practices, the time may come when we will be reduced in rating until no one will want to do their residency there."

While maintaining that the five residents must be in actual control, in accordance with civil service rulings under which they were employed, Dr. Ruhland said he was "certainly willing to compromise, if at all possible."

Too Much Hullabaloo.

"I think this whole thing is just a misunderstanding that has been greatly magnified," Representative Bates declared. "I don't see why it couldn't have been settled without all this hullabaloo."

Refusing to be drawn into the question of authority, Dr. Martha Elliott of the children's Bureau, said the service rendered by a hospital is its most important asset. "Unless it is of the highest order, the training student doctors get there will not be what they need," she said.

Escaper, Who Kept Date, Forfeits $30

Earl Senter, of Thomas Circle, Washington, who used his penknife to escape the Falls Church (Va.) Jail to keep a Sunday night date, yesterday forfeited $30 collateral in the Falls Church police court on a reckless driving charge.

Senter was arrested Sunday on the driving charge and jailed in default of collateral. Tiring of confinement he picked the lock and escaped to Washington to keep a date. About 1 a. m. Monday he returned to Falls Church and surrendered. He was transferred to the Fairfax Jail Monday morning and posted collateral that evening. Yesterday he failed to appear for trial and his collateral was declared forfeited.

Rail Aid Hope Fades; Robert Answers Critic

Assails Kennedy For Not Helping Equalize Rates

The possibility that general legislation to aid the railroads would be enacted at this session of Congress faded yesterday.

On the House side of the Capitol, Administration leaders indicated there was little hope of speedy settlement of the controversies arising out of two-month hearings on the Lea bill to reorganize the Interstate Commerce Commission. Certain specific proposals were deemed more likely to pass.

As a Senate sub-committee on interstate commerce concluded hearings on elimination of freight rate differentials, Southern legislators from both House and Senate said they would oppose all measures for railroad relief until the alleged "discrimination" against South and Southwest is halted.

Robert Answers Critic

Meanwhile, into the rate-differential picture stepped L. W. ("Chip") Robert, jr., secretary of the Democratic national committee, with an answer to objections of Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of New York, against his "lobbying" to alter the national rate structure.

"I am just wondering," said Robert, "if when Mr. Kennedy's constituents in New York learn the truth about the cost of their food, clothing, etc., which are increased by virtue of the present unfair and discriminatory rate structure, they will not recall he has been in Congress some nine years without doing anything about it?"

Robert, asserting he had "talked freight rates constantly since 1916 with every one who would listen, said President Roosevelt "has several times strongly advocated a strong and equitable freight rate structure for all sections of the country."

Alldredge to Appear

The disputed question of rate differentials probably will also form the core of questions which Senator Reed (Republican), of Kansas, will ask J. Haden Alldredge, of Alabama, at a meeting today of a special Senate sub-committee considering President Roosevelt's nomination of Alldredge, Thomas R. Amlie and William E. Lee to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Alldredge is considered an opponent of the differentials.

Closing the Senate subcommittee hearings on rate revision, Chairman Hill, of Alabama, hinted at a filibuster when he said that "so long as there is unlimited debate in the United States Senate, there will be no legislation to rehabilitate the railroads until the present situation has been remedied."

Representing a group said to have members in 26 States demanding rate revision, Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, said "no matter what kind of a shot in the arm we give the railroads in their present desperate situation, it will not be effective unless the carriers sell more transportation at lower unit cost."

Rate System Attacked

Senators Miller, of Arkansas; Lee, of Oklahoma; McKellar, of Tennessee, and Bankhead, of Alabama, all attacked the present system of freight rates.

Reports from the House yesterday indicated that a bill, said to have been prepared with the aid of Representative Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, might be introduced with some chance of passage, as a substitute for the Lea bill. The measure would include cash subsidies for railroads if necessary; grant of power to ICC to set minimum rates for other forms of transportation, including water and highway traffic; elimination of land-grant rates, and elimination of long-short-haul clause.

Other Proposals Advanced

It was said that not only would the Lea bill be scrapped but also the proposals of President Roosevelt's committee of six, which, indorsed by rail management and labor, would give more authority to the railroads to run themselves.

A bill of Chairman Blind of the House Merchant Marine Committee to promote co-ordination of rail and water transportation—offered as a substitute for the Lea bill—was indorsed with qualifications yesterday by Ira L. Ewers, attorney for the American Merchant Marine Institute.

Senator Wheeler, chairman of the nterstate Commerce Committee, said yesterday he would introduce a resolution directing the I.C.C. to investigate the possibilities of the plan to "postalize" railroad rates.

Abdominal Brain Held Hope for Heart Sufferers

Atlanta, Ga., March 7 (AP).—An operation on the "abdominal brain" of the body was declared today by Dr. George Crile, Cleveland surgeon, to offer hope of saving the lives of thousands of persons suffering from heart trouble.

The abdominal brain is a mass of nerve fibers controling the action of the heart, digestion, blood pressure, the glands, lungs, many nerves and to some extent the activity of the head brain.

Over-activity of this lower brain is largely the cause of high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, angina pectoris and other heart ailments, Dr. Crile told the Southeastern Surgical Congress.

Plot to Pass Bogus Millions Hatched in Jail

Flight to South America Planned By Rings' Brain

By International News Service.

New York, March 7.—A dragnet for other members of Henry Neuwirth's $1,000,000 counterfeiting gang was spread tonight as the details of his gigantic plot, hatched in Lewisburg, Pa., Federal prison, were learned by Secret Service agents.

According to these details, Neuwirth, 38, arrested Monday night with his common-law wife and eight men, manufactured 90 per cent of the bogus $5, $10 and $20 bills now floating around New York City. Some of the bills found their way to Southern race tracks. He had printed and distributed $80,000 in bills in the last four weeks and was planning a bigger clean-up.

Treasury Agent James J. Maloney said Neuwirth, alias Braun, "considering himself smarter than the entire Secret Service and local police," believed he could "make a killing" in the next few months.

"He was contemplating the purchase of a 30-foot launch with which he was preparing to take Anna Rappella and their 3-year-old son, whom he idolizes, to South America. There he expected to live comfortably on his "take" from the American public."

According to Maloney, Neuwirth was found guilty of counterfeiting and was sent to Lewisburg prison in 1933. There he met Joseph L. "Red" Miller, alias Kennedy, alias Thompson, alias Murphy, who also was there for counterfeiting and was one of the eight arrested Monday.

"Neuwirth," said Maloney, "hadn't learned his lession with that one conviction. He and Miller, who had his plant in New London, Conn., laid plans to operate on a much larger scale as soon as the doors of Lewisburg swung open for them. Neuwirth got out first."

In the Neuwirth apartment counterfeiting plates and presses, $35,000 in bogus gold certificates and $40,000 in $5, $10 and $20 bills were found in the Monday night raid.

Since her arrest with Neuwirth, Anna Rappella has sullenly refused to talk, except to say she met Neuwirth "four or five" years ago. She is charged with "harboring a fugitive from Justice."

The seven men will be arraigned before a United States commissioner.

A. F. L. Rejects Lewis Plan for Labor Congress

Labor

George M. Harrison, president of the Railway Labor Executives Association, also refused to comment.

It was noteworthy that Lewis made no reference to himself except that he would be ineligible for office in the new organization. Asked how he would fit into the scheme, in view of his failure to propose a pension for himself, he remarked dryly:

"I'd join the WPA."

Lewis, however, would continue to head the United Mine Workers of America.

The negotiating committees will meet at 10 o'clock this morning in the office of Secretary of Labor Perkins to start negotiations.

The committees will be left to themselves, however. The President revealed that he had offeerd them, during the conference at the White House, the use of a room at the Labor Department.

He said the Lewis peace proposal was on his desk but he had not read it. Lewis, however, read the proposal to him at the conference, it was reported.

The President remarked that the atmosphere at the conference was excellent, but he said he had to admit that he had done most of the talking.

Daniel J. Tobin, head of the Teamsters Union and a champion of labor unity, has reconsidered his refusal to service on the A. F. of L. negotiating committee and will join the group at today's conference, it was announced. Miss Perkins, it is understood, was instrumental in inducing Tobin to serve.

This will increase the A. F. of L. committee to four members. Other members are Matthew Woll, Photo-Engravers; Harry Bates, Bricklayers, and Thomas A. Rickert, United Garment Workers. The C. I. O. group, headed by Lewis, also will be increased to four. Other members thus far named are Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, and Sidney Hillman, president of the Aalgamated Clothing Workers.

Pension Stirs Resentment

Lewis' proposal that Green and Morrison retire on pension, it was learned, caused intense resentment. In consequence, the comparatively mild A. F. of L. reply was greatly restrained.

Lewis presented a detailed formula. He suggested that, between April 15 and 30, the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. should hold separate national conventions to pass on the proposal.

If approved, a convention of representatives of the two factions and the brotherhoods, he suggested, should meet here not later than June 1 in the hall of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

This convention would "organize and dedicate the American Congress of Labor," outline its objectives, adopt a constitution, and elect officers for one year.

Roosevelt Would Preside

Lewis suggested that, "to insure the orderly, tranquil and good faith execution of the suggestions," the President should preside at the convention.

The executive body of the A. C. L., he insisted, should be composed "equally" of representatives of the C. I. O. and A. F. of L., with "proportionate representation" for the brotherhoods.

During the succeeding year the services of the Labor Department Conciliation Bureau, he said, should be available for "co-operative mediation on all controversial questions."

In his statement to the negotiating committees, the President emphasized that conclusion of the war between the opposing labor organizations was "one of the most important domestic problems in American life today."

"I feel sure," he said, "that you will enter into this service with a patriotic sense that you are serving the welfare of your country, as well as the welfare of your organizations." He asked for a "practical adjustment" of a conflict that "has already lasted too long and is weakening the public standing of organized labor in this country."

Text of President's Statement

The statement by President Roosevelt to the labor peace committee yesterday follows:

I am extremely glad that this committee, representing both sides of the controversy between the two branches of the labor movement, is at last assembled for the purpose of beginning negotiations for the settlement of these differences in good faith, and with honor, and for the best interests of labor and the country generally.

This is one of the most important domestic problems in American life today and I feel sure that all of you will enter into this service with a patriotic sense that you are serving the welfare of your country as well as the welfare of your organizations by laying aside prejudices and bitterness, and by finding the solution which will bring a permanent and acceptable peace and unity in the labor movement. I have faith in your capacity as individuals and the organizations that you represent to make a practical adjustment both of the theory and the realities of a conflict which has already lasted too long and which is weakening the public standing of organized labor in this country.

It is important that you enter these negotiations with open minds and with a determination to explore every aspect of the problem together. The fact that there have been disagreements on particular points in the past should merely mean that all points must be studied and explored. It is desirable that this should be a negotiated peace made by this committee, using your own ingenuity and resourcefulness to find various ways of settling knotty problems.

While there has been extreme bitterness and conflict in certain localities, there are many cities and towns now where the local C. I. O. and A. F. L. are working together in closest harmony. I am told that there are some places where the C. I. O. and the A. F. L. use the same union hall. The two factions, as they are called, are really not factions. They realize that their interests are the same.

"This Job Ought to Be Easy"

I accept the premise that both sides want peace. That means, of course, that both sides go into conference with the idea of giving as well as getting.

You are all experienced negotiators. You have been doing that all your lives. From that standpoint, this job ought to be easy for you. You can think up proposals and counterproposals to meet in this situation, and nobody can do it as well as you can because nobody knows the issues as you do.

Of course, there are many who want peace who do not fully realize the difficulties facing this committee. I am advised, on the basis of reports coming from the rank and file of organized labor, that at least 90 per cent of the actual membership of both factions desire peace.

Telegrams and letters and resolutions speaking for at least 1,000,000 workers reached me before we proposed that you appoint your committees. These messages came from labor groups in each faction and from every part of the country.

Since your appointment, like messages are pouring in from all sections and from many unions in each faction. Already hundreds of thousands of workers, through their representatives, have informed me, and I know many of them have informed you, that their greatest desire is that you may succeed in finding a solution.

This is your negotiation. Direct negotiations without outside interposition is always best if possible. I believe no other method of settlement will ever become necessary in this case because I believe that you are today beginning a proper step for a permanent, stable and acceptable solution. I am counting on you to succeed and shall look forward to the final report on your negotiations.

Woll Urges Study Of Security Taxes To Ease Burden

By the United Press.

Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, told the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday that social security for the aged should not involve burdensome and uneconomical taxes on business and labor.

He urged that Congress undertake after a thorough study to correlate relief with the social security program.

Miss Alice Liveright, head of the Social Security Committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, warned against the "false economy" of advocates of reduced social security benefits.

Ralph Hetzel, director fo the C. I. O.'s unemployment division, opposed proposals to transfer the United States employment service from the Labor Department to the Social Security Board.

Hamilton Says G. O. P. Can Win With New York

Albany, March 7 (I.N.S.).—National Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton tonight declared that if the G. O. P. can carry New York State next year it probably will elect a President.

Addressing a group of rural Republican leaders, Hamilton said that on the basis of the trend in the last election his party can lay claim to 21 States with a total of 221 electoral votes, or 45 less than the number needed to elect a Republican President.

"Those missing electoral votes," he said, "can be found here in New York State with its 47 electoral votes. Even though the Democrats elected the Governor and both United States Senators last November, our gubernatorial candidate received 49.3 per cent of the vote cast and Republican candidates for House of Representatives received 50.2 per cent."

Pius XII Can Be Great Peacemaker, Says Times Editor

"Pope Pius XII can be the great peacemaker of this generation," said Miss Rachel K. McDowell, religious news editor of The New York Times, last night at the Covenant Fellowship Chapel, Thirty-sixth and Massachusetts avenue northwset.

Miss McDowell addressed a meeting sponsored by the Fellowship Christian Endeavor Society of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

Among the "great souls" she said she has known were Pope Pius XI, the late Adolph Ochs, publisher of The Times; John D. Rockfeller, Jr., of whose Bible Class she was an honorary member; Gen. Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army; the late Cardinal Hayes, the Lord Bishop of London and Presidents Coolidge and Taft.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru"—with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING! (Adv.)

House Passage Of Offices Bill Forecast Today

"emergency" but required initiative action by Congress to give force to Presidential merger orders.

Leading House Republicans immediately decided to support the Byrd plan as against the compromise Warren-Cochran measure. In a speech yesterday, Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, said he would propose the Byrd bill as a substitute when the House meets today. In response to a query, a majority of the House Republicans rose on the floor yesterday to affirm their espousal of the Senate bill.

A Democratic attack on the Byrd bill opened at once. Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, told the House the Senate measure "contains nothing more than existing law" and the President "now has authority to do everything in it." Representative Hook (Democrat), of Michigan, called it an attempt "to spike the President."

Meanwhile Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, author of the compromise House bill, proposed still further modifications in his measure. He said he will offer an amendment requiring the President to submit estimates of savings along with merger orders, and another banning establishment of "any new agencies" under the plan.

Democratic leaders based their forecasts of House passage on strong support from conservative Democrats whose opposition led to defeat of the broader Administration reorganization bill last session. Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, who bitterly fought the old merger bill, said he could find "no valid ground on which to base objection to the bill we have before us." With the single exception of Representative Robertson (Democrat), of Virginia, from Byrd's district, the House Virginia delegation was reported ready to support the House bill.

"Good Majority" Predicted

Representative Boland called a meeting of his House whip organization for this morning for a last-minute check, but both Boland and Rayburn predicted the bill will pass "by a good majority."

The Warren-Cochran bill gives the President authority to reorganize agencies and eliminate duplications, but stipulates White House reorganization plans may be stopped by a majority vote of both Houses. The orders would become effective in 60 days, unless Congress acted. To prevent the orders from being "bottled up" in committee, and thus assured of approval, the bill would permit a discharge vote in either House after lapse of ten days.

Chief variation in the Byrd measure is in the strong policy declaration for economy and the so-called Wheeler amendment method of action on White House merger orders. The Byrd bill would prevent Presidential orders from becoming law unless both Houses specifically approve them. Thus, if one House failed to act, the orders would lapse.

Dropped from both bills are the controversial Civil Service and General Accounting Office features that contributed to defeat of the old bill. Representative Warren said he eliminated them from his bill in order to "provide a common meeting ground for Democrats and Republicans."

In offering the Warren-Cochran measure in the Senate, Chairman Byrnes, of the Senate Reorganization Committee, echoed this view.

"I do not believe that any proposal as to the Civil Service Commission, the General Accounting Office or other controversial provisions in the bill considered at the last session, should be added to the bill providing for the consolidation of executive agencies," Byrnes said.

"If such proposals are to be considered, they should be offered separately so that members of the Senate will have the opportunity to express their views as to each separate proposal. At this time I have no plan to offer any proposal on any subject other than those contained in the House bill."

Byrnes said he would call a meeting of his Senate committee after the House acts on its own measure.

G. O. P. Attacks Compromise

As House debate neared a close, House Republicans opened a vigorous attack against the compromise bill. Representative Dirksen charged the President already has authority to consolidate or abolish 78 of the 123 agencies affected. He said he was for the Byrd bill because it hits directly at "waste" in Government, and he charged Democrats showed they "haven't any faith in the President" by specifically exempting 17 agencies.

Representative Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania, declared "court packing, reorganization and purge" are all synonymous, and Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, called on Democrats to sponsor the Byrd bill in lieu of the House proposal.

D. C. Revises Milk Rules as Inquiry Is Sped

Milk

consin delegation in Congress will demand an investigation with the aim of breaking up what he termed "a monopoly" in milk production in this area.

Indianan Defends Product

"Washington apparently is in the grip of the same sort of situation as was unearthed in Chicago where 36 persons were indicted for conspiracy in furnishing milk in the city," he said.

"We want to determine why Western milk and cream cannot be brought into Washington. We see no reason why it should be barred."

Earlier, Representative Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, asserted on the floor that the cream which was seized Saturday night by police is pure and he had been so informed by the bacteriologist of the health department. His district includes Lafayette, where the 2,480 gallons of cream were picked up by the Michigan truck, according to the police.

Five Lines of Inquiry

The Smith resolution authorizes the House District Committee to investigate five specific aspects of local milk regulation as follows:

Source and purity of the supply.

Extent of the diversion of cream intended for ice cream manufacturing.

To determine whether any conspiracy exists to violate the milk act.

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal revealed the shipment of cream seized Saturday night at the Embassy-Fairfax plant had come from an "unlicensed source" in Indiana.

Health department records disclosed the Indiana dairy plant had applied for and received permits from the District Commissioners in 1937 and 1938 to make shipments of cream into this city to be used in manufacture of ice cream only. This year, however, the firm did not request a permit.

At the same time, the Commissioners approved a revised set of regulations designed to put "teeth" into the milk code and prevent "bootleg" milk and cream from entering the city.

It provides that any person shipping cream into the District for manufacture into frozen desserts must have a permit from the District Health Officer who may grant the permit provided an "authorized medical milk commission or a State Board of Health" recommends it.

This does not apply, however, to firms licensed to bring or send milk and cream here for sale as such.

T-Men Imitate G-Men, He-Men With Own Gym

The T-men are to become he-men in a gymnasium of their own which, according to Frank J. Wilson, chief of the Secret Service, will be located in the old Bureau of Engraving Building on Fourteenth street northwest.

True to the tradition of all secret operatives, the matter has been given a minimum of publicity by its sponsors, but the gym will vie in modern equipment with the latest gadget of the Federal Bureau of Investigation health quarters, considered tops in the athletic world.

Refitting of the room is being held up to allow removal of offices to the new bureau annex, but the 300 Secret Service men must be kept constantly fit and for more than a month daily classes have been held throughout the week at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

Guarded from inquisitive visitors by a polite but firm Secret Service man at the door of the weight-lifting room, groups of 35 are put through their paces by physical instructor Elmer R. Hipsley, of the Metropolitan Police training school.

the current study, had explained the proposals for a combined sales-income tax, a corporation tax, higher utility taxes and other levies. It will be resumed at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Today Chairman Kennedy, of the sub-committee on reorganization, will begin hearings on the Griffenhagen report. The Commissioners will appear with their own reorganization plan and a critical analysis of the Griffenhagen proposals.

First witnesses, Kennedy said, will be Frank Everett and Perrel L. Gross, of the Griffenhagen organization, who will explain in detail the plan for abolishing the Board of Commissioners and substituting a city manager and council of five to seven members. The hearing opens at 10 a. m.

The fiscal relations sub-committee became embroiled in a discussion of the difficulties facing a personal income tax proposal as yesterday's hearing concluded. Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, asked if the legislation recently passed by the House to effect reciprocal collection of Federal and State income taxes from Government employes might not clear the way for a District income tax.

"This legislation, if it becomes a law," interrupted Nichols, "would only make the local problem more complex. The District, if it had an income tax, then would have to give credit to Government employes who would pay the States taxes to retain their legal residence. That would rob the District of a large share of its revenue."

Dr. Pond added that a local income tax, if it were substituted for a sales tax, would have to drop far below the federal exemptions to raise adequate revenue. Eighty per cent of the Federal employes, he said, earn between $1,200 and $2,700 a year.

Property taxes in the District, he asserted, are now too high in proportion to other forms of taxation, and his belief is that they should be lowered.

Stroock, Forstmann, Lerwick, Keniston—these are domestic weaves that win enviable laurels. Petalwate, too, and Shagmoor bring you American town tweeds in weave-and-knit combinations. And Kingsley, Del Monte-Hickey and Strong-Hewitt have imported exhilaratingly colorful fabrics to be tailored on this side of the water. You find all the individuality you expect in such a list of notables. You feel your life already more colorful and carefree as you see the masterly color-blending in exuberant plaids, bold stripes, speckled weaves that range the spectrum—even monotones are in engagingly gala hues. And your fingers delight in the distinctive weaves—spongy, nubby, hairy, smooth, rough or incredibly soft. And you wear them to take the town by storm—as well as for joyous days when all the countryside matches your vital mood.

Inquiry Asked In Smuggling Of Aliens

Committee Charges Ships Sign Bogus Crews 'for a Price'

A Congressional investigation of "well organized rings" said to be smuggling aliens into this country was recommended yesterday by the House Rules Committee.

The committee cleared the way for early House consideration of legislation to authorize the inquiry after hearing testimony that many of the aliens are smuggled in as "bogus" members of steamship crews.

Signed "For a Price"

Chairman Dickstein (Democrat), New York, of the House Immigration Committee, declared that "for a price" ship captains and other officers signed foreigners as members of their crews and that the aliens disappeared as soon as they reached the United States.

The Immigration Committee would conduct the inquiry.

Representative Schulte (Democrat), Indiana, told newsmen the committee would prove that "a ring" operates in Cuba which "dumps" Europeans into Florida. A similar ring dealing in Asiatics operates in San Francisco, he said.

Secretary Perkins and the Labor Department came in for caustic criticism during the hearing on the measure when some committee members wanted to know why the department was not able to cope with the smuggling.

"You don't expect any real effort by that department to enforce the immigration laws, do you?" interposed Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia. At another point, Cox declared the Labor Department was the "worst rascal house in the Nation."

Border Patrol Dropped

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), New Mexico, said that the House committee investigating un-American activities, of which he is a member, had been informed by a former head of the immigration patrol on the Canadian border that he and his entire division of 69 men had been droped by the Labor Department soon after Secretary Perkins took office. He added, Dempsey said, that they had been deporting about 37,000 aliens annually.

"That number has dropped to about 8,000, we were told," Dempsey said.

might tie the hands of the State Department in dealing with foreign countries. This opposition may account for part of the decline in sentiment favoring the referendum, but the latest survey results indicate that the referendum idea has by no means been killed so far as popular support is concerned.

The survey finds no substantial difference in the attitude of Democratic and Republican voters—Democrats favoring the referendum by a vote of 57 per cent, Republicans by a vote of 54 per cent. There were notable opinion differences, however, by age, sex and income group. Women were more strongly in favor of the referendum than men.

The young voters, those below 30 years of age who would presumably have to do most of the fighting if war were declared, were more in favor of the referendum than the older voters. Among the various income groups voters in the upper and middle levels were less anxious to have an amendment than those in the lower level.

Upper income group	45%	55%
Middle income group	54	46

Germany Files 70 Million Bond Issue With SEC

The conversion office for German foreign debts filed yesterday with the Securities Commission a registration statement covering a proposed issue of $70,000,000 of 3 per cent dollar bonds and fractional certificates, and $3,000,000 of separate coupons.

The German government also filed a statement as guarantor of the bonds.

5 Children Die In Halifax Fire

Halifax N. S., March 7 (Canadian Press).—Five children were burned to death tonight in a fire which raged through a house occupied by two families.

The victims were Donald Downer, 6; Bruce Downer, 4; Buddy Downer, 3; Ruby Bobbitt, 6, and Cyril MacDonald, 7.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran.

This crunchy toasted breakfast cereal is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew.

Eat Kellogg's All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Senate Passes Bill for 6,000 Warplanes; Guam Project Split From Navy Measure to provide $110,000,000 for new weapons and equipment, $6,539,287 for strengthening seacoast defenses and, $7,300,000 for training 20,000 civilian pilots annually.

Army Hearing Sped

The measure will reach the House next week. Hearings on the half-billion-dollar Regular Army supply bill are to begin before the Senate Appropriations Committee within a day or two.

As to Guam, Walsh said:

"A majority of the naval committee favors the proposed development of Guam but believes that should not go into the present bill. We would only run into a probable deadlock with the House if we amended the House measure. We may report it out separately at the same time we approve the general air base bill."

The Naval Committee heard Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, and Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, urge approval of the $5,000,000 item to develop the harbor at Guam and improve shore facilities. Denying the project was linked to any plan to fortify the island, Admiral Cook said it would only give the Navy a "listening post" to warn of approach of an enemy.

Caribbean "Attack" Failed

At a press conference yesterday, discussing the naval maneuvers in the Caribbean, Admiral Leahy revealed that while some destroyers and submarines of the attacking force penetrated the defense as far as Puerto Rico and Haiti, not a single troop transport of the "invader" got within reach of American territory.

Several cruisers were "sunk" by repeated aerial "bombing," the admiral said, but no capital ships were put out of commission by the theoretical air attacks. Because of complexity of the problem, he stated, there was no determination as yet as to whether the enemy fleet supposed to be approaching from Europe won a victory or whether the defensive force won.

In discussing the Japanese naval increase report, Leahy said the question of the American increase is "for the future" but emphasized that the United States must have a Navy strong enough to "repel aggression from any single power" and sufficient capital ships "to match any combination of powers that might attack us."

Barkley Defends Policy

As debate on the defense bill drew to a close, Majority Leader Barkley, who had conferred with President Roosevelt Monday, defended the Administration's foreign policy against attacks made in the week's debate.

Speaking of the President's Chicago speech in which he advocated "quarantining" aggressor nations, Barkley said the Chief Executive meant "an effort to isolate or protect our country, our hemisphere, the peace-loving nations of the world from the epidemic of lawnessness and unprovoked murder."

"It is not our desire to stick our noses into other people's business," Barkley continued, "but what is our business, what is other people's business? . . . We have no desire to send a single soldier to the shores of Europe or to the shores of Asia to mingle in their internal affairs and I dare say we will not do so.

"But when our own democracy, our civilization, not only within the bounds of the United States but within the bounds of the Western Hemisphere, are endangered, the American people are not so cowardly or supine as to take no notice of those circumstances."

Senator Borah asked whether the United States should take sides with France in a war over Tunisia or Corsica. Barkley said we should not, but that if England and France were defeated in such a war, we would be vitally concerned in any peace settlement because of their Caribbean possessions.

As Barkley concluded, Senator Johnson (Republican), California, rose to remark that he agreed with most of what had been said but that he still asked what the foreign policy of the United States is.

Neely Warns U. S. Next

Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, sharply attacking Hitler and Mussolini, warned they will "turn their attention" to the Americas as soon as they "have parceled out Europe and Africa between them."

In limiting the total which may be spent for air force expansion to $300,000,000, the Senate provided that an unlimited amount may be appropriated annually for replacements once the 6,000 maximum is reached. Before approving the amendment to restrict aircraft profits to 10 per cent, the Senate was warned by Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, that its provisions may prevent manufacturers from spending sufficient funds on research and experimentation.

Other amendments adopted by the Senate would:

Bar contracts under the measure to any company interfering with collective bargaining or employe organizing.

Provide civilian aviation training for at least one colored college.

2,000 Officers, 35,000 Men

Besides the increase from 2,320 to 6,000 planes, the measure authorizes new air bases in the southeastern and northeastern sections of the United States and in Panama, Alaska and Puerto Rico. New hangars and shops are to be provided at existing air stations, as well as bombs, spare parts, radio equipment and so on. Three million dollars is authorized for research.

Two thousand additional officers and nearly 35,000 additional enlisted men are provided to man the expanded air force, and use of civilian flying schools to give preliminary flight training is authorized.

The measure also provides $23,750,000 for new construction in the Panama Canal Zone and $34,500,000 for "educational orders" to key industries for production of munitions.

Japan Claims Gain Toward Isolation Of Chinese Reds

Shanghai, March 7 (AP).—Japanese reported steady progres today in a renewal of heavy fighting designed to block off China's Communist-dominated northwest armies, and strengthen the Japanese position in central China.

Japanese armies were reported driving westward acros Hupeh Province, more than 500 miles west of Shanghai, against 300,000 Chinese.

Japanese admitted stiff Chinese opposition in the area between Shanghai and Japanese-occupied Shantung Province, a territory presumably under Japanese occupation.

Calinescu Succeeds Cristea as Premier

Bucharest, Rumania, March 7 (AP). The Patriarch and premier, Miron Cristea, will be buried March 14 in a crypt of the patriarchate in Bucharest, it was announced today as "strong man" Armand Calinescu took over the premiership. The body of the 69-year-old churchman and statesman, who died yesterday at Cannes, France, was due in Bucharest Saturday.

At the state funeral, the patriarch will be seated in true orthodox fashion on a throne, clad in his expensive garments and with the tiara of gold and jewels on his head.

Nakano Flays Japan for Bowing To Democracies

Special Cable to The Post.

Shanghai, March 7.—England and the United States are Japan's real enemies in China, Seigo Nakano, president of the Righest Agrarian Party in the Japanese House of Representatives, asserted last night before 2,000 Japanese in Shanghai.

Soviet and English influence in China, he charged, was poisoning east Asia. Nakano scathingly criticized Japan's diplomatic policy, which he said indicated coquetry toward Britain, America and France.

"'Look at the Japanese foreign office's attitude toward the Panay incident," he continued. "Japan cut a ridiculous figure making unnecessary apologies so hastily."

President Calls Neutrality Act War Incentive

Neutral

vented by the act from drawing on American resources.

The act provides that, whenever the President finds a state of war to exist, he shall invoke the act and draw up a list of war materials which thereafter may not be exported to either belligerent. Other supplies may be purchased, if paid for immediately in exchange and carried away in non-American ships. The "cash-and-carry" provision, however, expires in May.

Despite the President's unwillingness to comment on the question of repeal of the act, it has been known for some time that the Administration regarded the act as an embarrassment, particularly in the present state of international affairs. The Administration wants greater discretion in foreign relations than the act permits.

Although the President did not comment specifically on the Spanish embargo act, the feeling is widespread that this act has had a similar effect. It was par' of the neutrality legislation enacted as an aftermath to the Senate investigation of the munitions industry.

Commenting on the proposal for a popular referendum in advance of a declaration of war, the President said national defense might be impaired, for one thing, because of the time element.

He felt that representative government—the kind set up by the Constitution—should prevail in this as in other matters.

Difficult to Define

Another difficulty he said, is a proper definition of war. It would require two pages of the proposed constitutional amendment making a war referendum obligatory, he said, to define war. Even then, a situation probably would arise not covered by the lengthy definition.

As an example of the difficulty, the President cited the quasi-war which, he said, existed between this country and France in Washington's second administration.

The United States, he recalled, had no Navy when this trouble started. The last revolutionary war vessel, he said, was sold in 1783. France, in the throes of revolution, was under control of the Directory, and French privateers were preying on British commerce. Large numbers went to the West Indies, then this country's principal commercial field, and preyed on British and American commerce there.

As a result, Congress authorized the establishment of a navy. John Adams built 25 ships, and without the formality of a declaration of war sent them to the West Indies and cleaned out this whole area of the sea.

A similar situation, he declared, might arise if the Constitution were amended, as demanded by Representative Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, and his supporters, to require a war plebiscite.

As commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy, the President unquestionably has constitutional authority, he declared, to wage war without Congressional action in the event of an emergency caused by a foreign power attacking the United States.

Impasse on Palestine Rule Holds; Britain Expected to Act

Jewish Council Demands Statement Of England's Intentions Within a Week; Spurns Minority Status in Free State

By the Associated Press.

London (Wednesday), March 8.—Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Colonial Secretary MacDonald, meeting Jewish and Arab leaders in a midnight conference, failed early today to break the deadlock over Palestine.

As a result the British government now was expected to solve the prolonged dispute in its own way.

The Jews, who were not prepared to talk further on the basis of a permanent Jewish minority in the Holy Land, flatly asked the British government for a final statement on its intentions within a week.

Reject Minority Status

The Jewish executive committee previously had rejected a British proposal for an independent Palestine, which in effect would be an Arab state allied to Britain with Jews having a minority status.

This resulted in the midnight meeting, held at St. James' Palace and attended by Jewish delegates led by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the World Zionist Organization, and by Arabs from Egypt, Iraq and Saudi Arabia. No further meeting dates were fixed.

Britain already had told both the Arabs and the Jews, before the present talks began here February 7, that she would solve the question in her own way if the two factions failed to reach an agreement.

Beset by Two Fears

In tackling the problem of the Arab-Jew fight for possession of the Holy Land the British government has been beset by two fears: United States public opinion and the danger of having rebellious Arab countries stacked against her in the Near East in the event of a European war.

The underlying problem has been how to reconcile the Balfour declaration of 1917, which promised Jews a national home in Palestine, with claims of the Arabs, who outnumber the Jews by more than two to one.

No need to go through the day with a "hangover" headache that racks your nerves and interferes with business. Just take liquid Capudine and note how quickly head clears, pep returns and nerves are calmed and steadied. Pleasant to take and doesn't upset stomach. Try it for morning after. By dose at drug fountains and in 30c and 60c bottles.

Pope Receives O'Connell and Mundelein

Blesses People Of United States in Special Audiences

By the Associated Press.

Vatican City, March 7.—A benediction on the people of the United States was given today by Pope Pius XII as he received in audience William Cardinal O'Connell and George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishops of Boston and Chicago.

The blessing was given in two special half-hour audiences. Cardinals O'Connell and Mundelein were received separately in the papal chambers.

Recalls U. S. Hospitality

The Pope expressed pleasure that as Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, he had been able to visit the United States before his pontificate.

He recalled the hospitality he had received in 1936, when he made a quick aerial tour to the Pacific Coast and back before meeting President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Italian sources said today it was almost certain the new Pope, whose coronation is set for next Sunday, would call a consistory in April to fill some of the vacancies in the Sacred College of Cardinals.

Hayes Successor Sought

One vacancy was caused by the death last September 4 of Patrick Cardinal Hayes of New York, and another by the Pope's elevation to the throne of St. Peter. The college now has 61 members. Its maximum is 70.

Another of the Pope's first duties will be to choose a successor to Cardinal Hayes as archbishop of New York.

Special Cable to The Post.

Vatican City, March 7.—Creation of a military diocese in the United States with a full-time bishop for the Catholics in the American armed forces, is receiving approving study at the Vatican.

Under the plan all Catholics in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps will be under the spiritual care of the bishop, no matter in what part of the country or the world they happen to be.

Consul Says Hitler Successor Is Chosen But Name Is Secret

Reich's New Diplomat at San Francisco Ridicules Rumor That Fuehrer Is Dead, 'Double' Rules

By International News Service.

San Francisco, March 7.—Adolf Hitler's successor already has been chosen. So declared Capt. Fritz Wiedemann today as he became consul general here.

Identity of Hitler's successor must remain secret, Wiedemann declared.

Wiedemann, close friend and former personal aid to the Reichsfuehrer, ridiculed rumors that Hitler is dead and that Germany is being ruled by the dictator's "double."

"I have known Adolf many years, and he is the same man now as he was 20 years ago," he said.

Denying he had been assigned to San Francisco because the Pacific Coast is a Nazi "trouble zone," Wiedemann said:

"The post of consul general is delicate anywhere in the world, but no more so here than any other place."

Expressing his faith in America's fairness, Wiedemann added he only wanted a chance to show his nation's "friendliness and to become friends with people whose political philosophies are different than mine."

Wiedemann's predecessor, Baron von Killinger, was called back to Germany after the explosion on the steamer Vancouver, which he called the "work of Communists." Von Killinger now trains men for the foreign service.

Ingrid, Frederick Sail on U. S. Trip

Copenhagen, March 7 (AP).—Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark and Crown Princess Ingrid sailed for London today on the first stage of a trip to the United States. They are to sail Monday from Southampton for California.

They are due at San Pedro April 6, to start a tour that will include San Francisco, Chicago, New York City, Hyde Park, N. Y., and Washington. They will be guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park.

Airlines Cut Fares And Time to Orient

Twenty per cent reductions in fares and speedier plane service to the Orient were announced yesterday by Pan American Airways and United Air Lines. Plane time from Washington to Honolulu will be six times as fast as surface travel, it was said.

Gandhi, Victory Won, Ends 98-Hour Fast

Viceroy Intervenes To Settle Dispute With Indian Ruler

By the Associated Press.

Rajkot, India, March 7.—Mohandas K. Gandhi ended with some orange juice today a "fast unto death" by which he won a major political victory in his battle for democracy in India.

The small, thin, bald, 69-year-old leader of millions of Indians had started the demonstration 98 hours and 25 minutes earlier after drinking goat's milk. During the fast, his sixth for popular reforms, he had lost two pounds in weight, his blood pressure increased alarmingly, and he became so weak that any attempt to sit up caused nausea and giddiness.

Achieves His Aim

But he achieved his aim when the British viceroy of India, the Marquess of Linlithgow, intervened to settle Gandhi's dispute about establishing an advisory council on democratic reforms with the ruler of Rajkot state, 29-year-old Thakore Saheb Shri Dharmendrasinhji.

During the fast, hundreds of sympathetic telegrams came from all parts of the world, periods of mourning were declared throughout India, business was halted, Bombay markets were closed and 1,000 peasants prayed outside his quarters.

Weak But Triumphant

Weakened but triumphant, Gandhi immediately accepted the viceroy's invitation to go to New Delhi for personal discussions of the proposed reforms, based on the establishment of a council whose purpose would be to suggest ways of introducing a democratic government. Gandhi started the fast when he and the young ruler failed to agree on representation on the council.

$7,000,000 in Coins En Route to U. S.

Bill to Let U. S. Build Ships for Brazil Approved

Copyright, 1939, by International News Service.

An Administration-sponsored bill empowering navy yards to construct warships for Latin-American governments has been approved by Senators Pittman and Walsh, respective chairmen of the Senate Foreign Relations and Naval Affairs Committees, it was learned tonight.

The Brazilian government is awaiting Congressional action on the bill before placing orders for three 10,000-ton cruisers, officials revealed.

Should the bill pass, Brazil will have the ships built in United States navy yards at an expected cost of $12,500,000 each. Otherwise the orders will go to British private yards, which have submitted tentative estimates of $16,000,000 per vessel.

D. C. to License Coal Dealers; Oust 'Cheaters'

Recognized coal dealers in the District will be supplied with metal plates in order to rid the city of "fly-by-night" agents who have been cheating local consumers, it was announced yesterday by George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets.

By order of the Commissioners a stringent coal code will take effect immediately to prohibit an estimated loss of $200,000 annually.

The new regulations provide also:

That every coal dealer secure a license for a fee of $10 each year.

That metal plates to identify bona fide dealers be limited to the actual number of trucks owned by any dealer.

Every owner of a truck or other vehicle used for hauling coal be licensed.

Langley Bombers Will Demonstrate For U. S. Officials

Langley Field, Va., March 7 (AP).—A demonstration of demolition bombing will be given by fleet new Army bombers tomorrow over Plum Tree Island in the Back River for a delegation of Government officials expected to come here from Washington.

The personnel of the delegation was not known at Langley Field, but airdrome officials were informed that the visitors would arrive by boat tomorrow morning.

Boatmen were warned to stay out of the river in the Plum Tree Island sector.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

DANCING IN CAPRICE: There'll be dancing in the Cafe Caprice—and soon—to the tunes of one of the trickiest trios ever assembled in this town. The unit will be topped by one of the most popular current masters of ceremonies. Sorry, but we promised not to use his name—yet. The innovation sounds tremendously promising. There is ample room in Caprice for dancing, it's a gilded spot and just near enough downtown.

PLANS, PLANS, PLANS: One of the city's biggest hotels is planning a complete change in musical set-up. It will involve important changes in the cocktail hour which will combine a concert and dance session. Arrangements are practically complete—but we'll have to give you the full facts next time . . . The ex-Heigh Ho is a-seethe, with New York interests dickering for the club proper upstairs and Washington interests bidding for the downstairs taproom. The New Yorkers (experts in the amusement world) may reopen Heigh Ho (freshly air conditioned) as the "Whig Club" in a couple of weeks with Society Singers Anne Kiess and Ella Craddock (who's even planning on a Cassini dress of celestial blue for the occasion). There's even talk of booking Artie Shaw's orchestra of dance music until 4:30 a. m. But there may be a slip for a' that, with the "Whig Club" winding up in another spot or not opening until next fall. It's enough to make you dizzy!

BIG MONDAY AT RIVIERA: Pete Macias and his lads will play in the Lounge Riviera beginning next Monday, March 13. Pete in person will piano, vocals by Jimmy Nichols and Ray Donahue (he's been at Riviera right along, y'know). There will be dancing until 2 in the morning, maybe 3, if the customers are highly dance-minded.

TROIKA INTO MOVIES: Troika's entire floor show is booked to make a movie musical in technicolor as soon as they close early in the summer. There'll be a story written around the "organ grinder" skit, the superb "Boyar Dance" of Lola and Vanya and the gypsy music finale. Recent Troika visitors: Aviator Roscoe Turner with Elliott Roosevelt.

DONKEY IN OILS: For that "pinning the tail on the donkey" game in Shoreham's Blue Room "Fun Night this evening, there has been provided a portrait in oils of a soulful looking donkey surrounded by posies a la Ferdinand the Bull. The picture was done by a member of the Shoreham decorating staff. P. S. Those Three Escardos will also pitch in a lot of fun for "Fun Night."

PALL MALL'S BELLE: A honeyed voice, clarity of delivery, a charming presence—these are enough to ensure any singer's success—and they all belong to Belle Smith, newest society singer of the Pall Mall Room. Most amazing is her poise. No one would dream that she is singing professionally for the first time. Until she explains that she acquired semi-experience in an ingenious way—by singing just for fun in such places as Shar-Zad while she was out a-dancing.

Manager Dick Lam (left), singer Eve Lane, and Maestro Bill Strickland look over the chart of Lotus' breezy March entertainment

N. B. Miss Smith tells us that she made her debut in California, not Colorado, as mentioned the other day. (One of those Cal. vs. Col. confusions.) Also she's lived in Washington all her life except for four years on the coast.

METRONOME VOCALS: Paul Kain's Metronome Room Orchestra boasts two of the swingiest vocalists in these parts. They are Harry Albertson, who also trumpets, and Ted Alexander, who's likely to sing and play the bass at the same time. A couple of their best are "We've Come a Long Way Together" and the sassy "I Get Along Without You Very Well."

ALBERTSON

LOTUS DRUM MAJORS: There are ten drum majors (all pretty) in Lotus' new "Swing Revue" and the way they swing their batons and march step in fast tempo is a caution. They wind up with their batons illuminated like huge flashlights. Another nifty is the "Maraca Dance" with all the girls shaking maracas. There's a lifesize donkey dancing, not to swing, but to the "Donkey's Serenade." Strong fella, Bill Baney, gives a new twist to adagio by juggling Dottie Dunn and Ginger Harris at the same time. There's a brilliant Russian finale by the entire cast. Yes sir, it's another of those Lotus special-specials.

CHALLENGE: Shar-Zad's Biltmore Boys claim that they can play at least 1,000 tunes from memory, and challenge anyone to dispute the claim. All that you have to do is to run up to Shar-Zad some afternoon and sit around until they play 1,000 tunes.

BAMBOO SWING: Dancers Traymore and Claire have been added to Bamboo Gardens' "Dance Cocktail Revue" and are surprising patrons with a variety of "airplane spins" that, one would think, would leave them a-reel. The "Dance Cocktails" offer a beautiful and complicated fan dance to a version of "Night and Day" stepped up with a "Bolero" drum background.

PEN WOMEN: Matt Windsor (Anchor Room) recently played at a party for the League of American Pen Women, given at the home of Mrs. Robert Bennett. Mrs. Windsor, who possesses a lovely soprano voice, sang for the Pen Women.

PRETTY FACES: Adelita Varela (Madrillon) of the brilliant and magnetic smile. She used to be mistress of ceremonies at Manhattan's Havana-Madrid.

Anne King, the sun-tanned glamour girl who arranges those fine fashion shows at the Hour Glass. There's to be one next Wednesday, March 15.

Countess de Bournet, the handsome, dark-eyed lady, who will look into the future for you at Mayfair.

Conni Dell, Hi Hat's new singer, who has a face as sweet as her voice. She's chestnut-haired and demure.

Marian Martin, the torch warbler of Brown Derby. A piquant lass with a "way" about her.

Lyde Swygert, the nightingale of the Rainbow Room. Tall and willowy in white taffeta. Uses practically no make-up. But she doesn't need any.

PIRATE HISTORY: Our historian tells us that the Pirates' Den is on the site of the old Cissel mill, which stopped a-milling when grain stopped coming down the C. & O. Canal.

Youth Slays Father to Save Mother

Tells Authorities He Feared for Her Life in Quarrel

By the Associated Press.

Wilmington, Del., March 7.—Martin Griegg, 46-year-old painter, was shot to death today in his home and his 19-year-old son, Carlton, was held without bail on a charge of murder.

Detective Capt. J. Curtis Riley said the youth told him he shot his father to protect his mother.

Riley quoted Mrs. Griegg as saying her husband had been drinking and started an argument when he came home.

"He came into my bedroom," Riley said the wife told him, "and started arguing. To keep him from making any more noise and waking the children I went to an adjoining bedroom. He kept cursing me. The noise must have awakened Carlton.

"The next thing I knew there was a terrible noise and my husband slumped to the floor."

Riley said he was told Carlton kept a shotgun under his bed. Griegg had been shot in the back.

Carlton has seven brothers and sisters.

Shooting Suspect Flees

Elkton, Md., March 7 (AP).—A 23-year-old Chesapeake City man was sought by police tonight for questioning in the shooting of Thomas Bares, truck driver of Still Pond, Md.

Elkton Hospital attendants reported Bares, shot in the back, was not seriously injured.

Deputy Sheriff Clayton Ellison said a Chesapeake City woman had asked Barnes to take her to her family's home in Galena, Md., as he was making a trip there today.

The shooting occurred soon after Barnes entered the woman's apartment, Ellison said. The deputy said he sighted the woman's husband on the roadside a mile from Chesapeake City, but that he fled into the woods and escaped.

Deputy Sheriff Ellison said tonight the woman had been located and that she would be questioned later. He said no charges would be preferred until a more thorough investigation could be made.

Wife Found Slain in Car

Spartanburg, S. C., March 7 (AP).—Mrs. Claude West, 35, wife of a printer, was found shot to death in a parked automobile on the outskirts of the city today and Marvin Rudder, a printer, was found critically wounded nearby.

Officers said they found an automatic pistol on the seat of the automobile, partly under Mrs. West's body.

Rudder was taken to a hospital unconscious. Officers advanced no theory of the shooting pending completion of their investigation.

Spy Suspect Says Superiors Allowed Deal

Ordered to Give Data To Russian, Declares Former U. S. Agent

By the United Press.

Los Angeles, March 7.—Hafis Salich, former naval intelligence agent, testified in Federal court today that he had permission of his naval superiors to submit confidential information to Mikhail Gorin, Soviet tourist agent.

Salich was called to the stand after Federal Judge Ralph E. Jenney overruled a defense motion to acquit him, Gorin and the latter's wife, Natasha, of espionage charges. The court dismissed the espionage counts against Mrs. Gorin and ordered her defense to proceed only on a conspiracy charge.

Says Superiors Knew

First defense witness, Salich said he reported all his dealings with Gorin either to H. L. Stanley, another naval intelligence agent, or to Lieut. Comdr. J. J. Rochefort, then in charge of the San Pedro office. He said when he first informed Rochefort that Gorin had offered him money and an exchange of confidences for information on Japanese activities on the Pacific Coast, Rochefort told him:

"Sure, we'll exchange information with him. But we'll give him only information that we can get from newspapers and magazines. Then we will see what information he has about the Japanese consulates."

Earlier, Salich said, Stanley, upon learning that the Soviet agent was willing to pay for Japanese information, said:

"Sure, I can use some money. See what he will pay."

Calls Money a Loan

The witness, a native of Russia but now an American citizen, said he frequently obtained from Gorin information on Soviet activities, which his superiors requested.

As prosecution witnesses, both Rochefort and Stanley had testified they admonished Salich to have no dealings with Gorin, who is West Coast manager of the Soviet Intourist Bureau, Inc.

Early Training Dispels Child's Fear of Dentist, Clinic Told

A dentist's chair is no rocking-horse, but that is no reason why a child should be afraid of it, according to Dr. Walter McFall, of Nashville, Tenn.

Addressing the Five-State Postgraduate Clinic of the District of Columbia Dental Association yesterday, Dr. McFall explained how children's fear could be prevented by familiarizing them with the dentist and his work.

Get them at the age of 2, and bring them to the dentists with their mothers, he advised; let them play around and watch and pretty soon they'll want to get in the chair and be operated on, too. But no coddling, says Dr. McFall, for if the child is just given a ride up and down in the chair, he'll never let the dentist work on him.

Psychology isn't important only in treating children, according to Dr. Dayton Dunbar Campbell, of Kansas City, Mo., who addressed the clinic yesterday morning. A pioneer in teaching the importance of psychology in denistry, he urged all dentists "who are not born psychologists to get it from books."

If it weren't for the desire to be beautiful, he continued, people could get along without teeth, provided they ate only meat. "Teeth are no more necessary to life than eyes or legs," he said, as any piece of meat small enough to be swallowed can be digested.

But with vegetables it's different—they must be chewed or the saliva in the mouth won't do its part in digestion, it was said.

Dr. Russell W. Tench, of New York, pointing out that false teeth could be made in advance ready for use whenever need should arise, emphasized that for good results the teeth to be copied should be measured by the dentist before removal for shape, size, arrangement and color.

The day of the unsightly rubber gums is gone, he continued, as chemistry has made available a synthetic plastic which will take life-like flesh tints.

The first signs of some deadly forms of leukemia, or "cancer of the blood," appear in gum swellings, Dr. Thomas J. Cook, of Philadelphia, told the clinic at its morning session yesterday. He warned against confusing these symptoms with ordinary trench mouth.

Herbert H. Kabnick, of New York, presented a paper at the morning session on "Modern Fixed Bridge Construction," and Dr. Stuart J. Horner, of Pittsburgh, and William T. Sweeney, research associate of the American Dental Association at the National Bureau of Standards, spoke on new materials used in making denture bases. An informal dance and style show for wives of the visiting dentists was held last night.

Stars May Dim, But Aimee Twinkles On

Glamour Girl of Four-Square Gospel Is an Institution

By Inez Robb.

(Copyright, 1939, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.) Distributed by International News Service.

Los Angeles, March 7.—While the movie immortals of Hollywood flash momentarily across the startled skies like sudden supercomets, one bright fixed star perpetually illuminates these heavens. Stars may come and stars may go, but Aimee Semple McPherson, the the glamor girl of the Four Square Gospel, twinkles on forever. Today, she is an institution in Southern California, as immutable as its sunshine, as successful as its climate.

INEZ ROBB

After 20 years Sister McPherson is still going strong, fresh as paint, more firmly entrenched than ever, and as big at the box office as at any time in her flamboyant history.

Name Still In Lights

Her name is still in lights—not once, but three times—on Angelus Temple—she plays the lead extemporarily and shrewdly, a show that has had a longer run than "Tobacco Road" and "Abie's Irish Rose" put together.

Sister McPherson has survived ridicule, private tribulations, public scandal and family rows that would have blasted any motion picture star out of this community on the double quick.

"Horse and Buggy Days Over"

"The horse-and-buggy days in religion are over just as the horse-and-buggy days in politics are over," Sister McPherson said last night before one of her incomparable superproductions which ladies out the old-time religion in a 16-cylinder dish surcharged with swing.

Sister McPherson is crowding 50 if she's a day. But she looks 35 at most. This season her hair is a shade of light chestnut—not the blonde or titian jobs of other years—and arranged in an endless series of little sausage curls.

Standing Room Only

It may be clap-trap, but you can't laugh off a success like Sister McPherson's! Last night there was standing room only in Angelus Temple, which seats 5,400 persons.

"Since the depression we've fed more than 1,000,000 persons at the temple," she said. "We feed 'em first and then ask them questions."

An organizer of remarkable ability, it is only too patent that Sister McPherson would have been a conspicuous success at any job or profession she might have undertaken. It happens that she undertook religion and has made it pay and pay and pay.

"Yes, I could have had my pick of jobs during these years," she said frankly. "But I've always stuck to religion. I've tried to be good for it, and it's always been good to me."

Morgenthau Against Return To Gold Standard

By the Associated Press.

A statement that putting gold back into circulation in the United States at this time would contribute to instability and postpone recovery was made by Secretary Morgenthau yesterday before the House Coinage Committee.

The Treasury chief expressed the opinion while testifying in favor of extending from June 30, 1939, to January 15, 1941, the President's powers to operate the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and to change the gold value of the dollar.

Morgenthau said one of the principal objections was that such a policy would by fixing the price of metal upset its stability which, he said, was promoted by the President's power to devalue in an emergency.

Charles Kanan and Bob Wiehle Get Trophies for Model Planes

Winners of city championship titles in model plane building and flying were awarded trophies in the office of the Department of Playgrounds yesterday. The contests were conducted by the department and sponsored by the District Model Aircraft League.

Awards were made on the basis of performances in both outdoor and indoor meets. The D. C. M. A. L. trophy for powered planes powered by rubber bands was presented to Charles Kaman by Frank Elvidge, contest director. Bob Wiehle was awarded the Department of Playground's trophy by Richard S. Tennyson, assistant supervisor of playgrounds.

Awards were made as follows:

Rubber-Powered Models

Senior class—First, Charles Kaman, 19 points; second, Henry Putnam; third, Robert Spindler.

Junior class—First, Richard Backora, 9 points; tied for second, Paul Buck, Carter Squire and Hugh Wagner, 6 points; tied for third, George Clark and Billy Webb, 4 points.

Gas Models

Senior class—First, Bob Wiehle, 17 minutes 51 4-5 seconds; second, Henry Putnam; third, R. J. Yos.

Junior class—First, Harry Pitts, 24 3-5.

Novices—Billy Webb, John Fitzgerald, George Clark, Jimmy Rumfield, Barry Pitts.

Junior pilots—Harry Stovall, Martha Lane, Carter Squire, Hugh Wagner, Lawrence Barnes, Lloyd Runaan, Jack Jackson, Carroll Carter, W. B. Kuykendall, Winthrop Shaw, William Backora, William Draper.

Aces—John Lawlor, Don Roylance, Henry Putnam and B. J. Yos.

Silver aces—Charles Kaman, Carl Wiehle and Matthew Smith.

Let King Come to Quints, Dionne's Reaction to Bid

By Canadian Press.

Callander, Ont., March 7.—Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, said today he was "not in favor" of accepting an invitation from the Ontario government to take his five little girls to Toronto in May to meet King George and Queen Elizabeth.

He said, however, he would delay replying to the invitation, which was addressed to him, until he had consulted Mrs. Dionne.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe also appeared cool toward the proposal.

The invitation was for Emilie, Yvonne, Annette, Cecile and Marie to leave Callander for the first time in their lives and go, with their parents, on a special train under special guard to Toronto, 180 miles away, there to meet the British King and Queen on May 22, during their majesties' Canadian tour.

Dionne's first reaction was:

"I am not in favor of it. We are anxious that they should be presented to the King and Queen when they come to Canada, but I cannot see why the government cannot arrange to have their majesties visit the nursery here."

Dr. Dafoe previously had said it would not be feasible to take the children, who will be five years old May 28, from their nursery.

The physician said if Dionne should decide against the trip the board of guardians could do nothing about it. On the board are Dr. Dafoe, Dionne, Judge J. A. Valin and Percy D. Wilson, official guardian for Ontario.

1917 Terrorist Disavows Nazis, Gets Papers

Ex-Bomber Says 'They Are No Good for Me;' Pledges Fealty

Chicago, March 7 (AP).—An old man who once expressed his hatred of America with 12-inch bombs today avowed his love for his adopted country in words of penance and patriotism.

The man who underwent this metamorphosis was Reinhold Faust, 74, white-haired, haggard.

He came to the felony court to face charges of storing explosives in a business district. He had confessed that, back in the tense days of the World War, he had fashioned seven bombs of foot-long lengths of pipe and gunpowder. He had related how one of them was placed in the Auditorium Theater on November 17, 1917, when civic and society leaders attended an opera performance given for the benefit of patriotic projects.

"At that time I was fanatic enough to do it," he told Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers. "I still had a warm spot for my fatherland (Germany). But things have changed completely. I love my country (the United States) now."

"Prosecution of this man after 22 years have elapsed would be persecution," Meyers informed Judge Matthew Hartigan. "He has undergone a transformation. Time has granted a pardon."

"What," the jurist inquired, "do you think of the Nazis?"

"They are no good for me," responded Faust.

The judge asked if he now subscribed to American ideas and ideals.

The frail defendant squared his shoulders. He replied:

"I do, your honor."

The judge quashed the charges—Faust was free.

Technically, the statute of limitations had precluded prosecution in that case and in the attempted bombing of the theater.

Faust was arrested Saturday after a cache of four bombs was found in a safety deposit box where he had secreted them more than 21 years ago. He had tested two others on a prairie in 1917. They were duds.

He told Meyers later an unnamed accomplice "actually carried and placed" the bomb that was lighted in the opera audience. Fireman Michael Corrigan—now chief of the department—seized it and jerked out the fuse. Faust said it was so loosely constructed it would have done no more damage than a firecracker.

Faust served 14 months in the Joliet penitentiary in 1918 and 1919 for attempting to extort $100,000 from a Chicago banker.

Since his parole, Meyers reported, he had led "an honest life."

Police Boys' Club Fund Drive $1,300 Behind Last Year

Although their drive for funds is $1,300 behind last year, volunteer workers for the Metropolitan Police Boys Club yesterday reported a total of $18,333.34 in contributions at a meeting at the Cosmos Club.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, chairman of the drive, who is confined to Walter Reed Hospital, sent a messenger with $50 collected from friends.

James E. Colliflower, president of the club, reported that Edwin Hahn was "top man" on the initial gifts committee with a return of $1,026. The workers also heard a report on medical and dental activities of the club from Dr. Leon S. Gordon.

S. C. Governor Grants Death Reprieve for 6

Columbia, S. C., March 7 (AP).—Gov. Maybank granted a two-week reprieve today to six convicts scheduled to die in the electric chair Friday for killing Guard Capt. J. Olin Sanders in a frustrated penitentiary break late in 1937.

Trader Pacts Only Partially Successful, Wallace Admits

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace admonished the Senate Finance Committee yesterday that any increase in excise tax on imported fish and vegetable oils would imperil the Administration's reciprocal trade program

Joins Hull in Urging Defeat Of Higher Tariffs; 2 Senators Attack Reciprocal Program

Attacks on the Administration's reciprocal trade program burst from a Democratic and Republican Senator yesterday, while Secretary of Agriculture Wallace admitted the treaties "have not been successful to the extent that Secretary Hull might desire."

Asking the Senate Finance Committee to disapprove bills that would raise the tariff on certain animal and vegetable oils, Wallace supported Hull, who had appeared before the committee Monday to urge defeat of the higher-tariff proposals.

Meanwhile, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, predicted that efforts might be made in Congress this session to limit the powers which the reciprocal trade treaties act granted the President and State Department to fix import duties.

Harmful Effect Established

Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, issued a statement to the effect that "the harmful effect on American agriculture of these reciprocal trade treaties has already been amply established."

In his testimony, Wallace said the reciprocal trade program has been responsible for the exportation of "5,000,000, to 10,000,000 acres of agricultural products."

Declaring that "I'm grateful for that—it makes our job that much easier," the Secretary said that with the "apparent psychology of the American people, it's going to be difficult to bring about a sufficient quantity of imports to permit the exportation of more than the amount of agricultural products that we now attribute to the reciprocal program."

Crop Control Attacked

At a hearing of the Senate Agriculture Committee on a bill dealing with the cotton surplus, an Arkansas businessman asserted that the Administration's crop control program "threatened to crush the small, independent cotton grower."

The witness, M. L. Sigmon, of Monticello, Ark., testified that "15 per cent of the growers, the large plantation owners, got 85 per cent of the Government benefit payments."

Sigmon advocated a domestic allotment program instead of the present acreage controls with Government benefit payments and loans.

An amendment to the present farm act, permitting reallocation of unused cotton acreage allotments, was approved by the Senate yesterday and sent to the White House.

Addison Defends Citizens' Tax Plan

The report of the Citizens Tax Committee to Congress was described yesterday as the "soundest analysis of the District tax problem ever presented" by Francis G. Addison, jr., president of the Board of Trade, before the Civitan Club.

Addison told his audience at the Mayflower that experience indicates a sales tax of the type proposed would represent an annual burden of only $3.60 on a person with an income of $800.

Lawyer Gives Up In Fund Theft

New Orleans, March 7 (U.P.).—A man who said he was H. Arlington Blood, member of the Maryland bar for 15 years, today surrendered to United States Attorney Vosca and asked he be returned to Baltimore to face charges of embezzling $6,750 from funds of incompetent war veterans.

Blood surrendered after he heard a warrant had been issued for his arrest.

Military Prep Schools Ask More Officers

Say Army Allocates Most Reservists to Teach in Colleges

More Reserve Army officers to teach in secondary military schools were asked yesterday by Gen. C. E. Kilbourne, superintendent of Virginia Military Institute at the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools here.

The organization will formulate a legislative program on this score today.

Col. Sandy Beaver, of Riverside Military Academy, in a heated discussion, advocated presentation of a bill in Congress to require allocation of any additional officer-instructors to the secondary schools. Otherwise, he said, the War Department unfailingly would allocate new R. O. T. C. teachers to colleges.

At present the War Department provides one regular army officer and a sergeant for each school unit. Experts believe this is insufficient for proper instruction.

Col. R. L. Jackson, newly elected vice president of the association, pointed out the importance of the country's private military schools when he said more graduates of such academies officered the American army in the war than any other group. At present, he declared, there are available 200,000 potential army leaders in civil life who have been trained in military schools and are ready for an emergency.

The annual banquet last night was made the occasion for announcement of newly-elected officers. Besides Col. Jackson, they include Col. C. B. Richmond, president, and Col. H. L. Armstrong, secretary-treasurer. The convention will adjourn this afternoon.

3 Accept Election To Law Guild Board

New York, March 7 (AP).—Paul J. Kern, president of the New York Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild, announced today that former State Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black, Dean Leon Green, of the Northwestern University Law School, and Dean William Lloyd Garrison, of the University of Wisconsin Law School, have accepted election to the Guild's national executive board.

Partial Indorsement

In offering its advice to the Kennedy committee on reorganization of the District government the Board of Commissioners will today take sharp issue with some points in the Griffenhagen plan. It is a source of real satisfaction, however, to note that the Commissioners have taken the Griffenhagen report as the basis of their recommendations. So the appeal for modernization of the makeshift local government is now virtually unanimous so far as community groups are concerned.

The Commissioners' decision to seek elimination of the Boards of Education and Library Trustees rests entirely upon expediency. A few years ago the Commissioners themselves suggested closer ties between the schools and the local government. They now realize from experience that any such proposal will encounter tremendous local opposition. Presumably, it is to avoid such a controversy that the Commissioners have reversed their earlier position in this respect.

It was taken for granted, too, that they would oppose abolition of the board of which they are members. But the Commissioners are not averse to selection of a business manager for the District. Their plan differs from that of the Griffenhagen experts in the responsibility to be conferred upon this proposed executive. Likewise the Commissioners are ready to accept departmentalization of the local government, but with fewer units than the experts consider desirable.

Undoubtedly, too, the Commissioners will request broader municipal powers. In many respects this is the most vital aspect of the reorganization bill now in the course of preparation. If the District is granted a real municipal charter, the type of organization set up to manage the city's routine affairs will be a secondary consideration, important though it is.

Commissioner Hazen seems disposed to emphasize these points of general community agreement. If that attitude guides his testimony before the House committee, he will make a substantial contribution to the reorganization movement. On the contrary, if he should put forth the Commissioners' advice as a substitute for the Griffenhagen plan, the effect would be to discourage any action on the District's problem No. 1. If any progress is to be made, the Commissioners, like other groups, must realize the necessity of a broad co-operative approach.

In the meantime, the Commissioners have aided the reorganization move by supporting the Overton formula for determination of the Federal payment to the Capital City. If the proposed municipal government is to handle its own finances, as contemplated by the Griffenhagen report, the fiscal relations issue must be settled, and the Overton formula seems to offer the most reasonable solution of this dilemma yet devised.

The Police Boys' Clubs

Comparatively speaking, the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club is a new organization. It was founded by Maj. Ernest W. Brown in 1934. During the last five years it has undergone steady expansion and is still in the process of vigorous growth.

This rapid development of the Police Boys' Club seems to explain why it is not a member of the Community Chest. Because of the many demands upon its funds, the Chest is not in a position to guarantee to any organization funds essential for continued expansion. The Boys Club of Washington is a member of the Chest. But the clubs organized by the police are presumably deferring affiliation with the Chest until their budget reaches a more static situation. So they are once more asking the community for $75,000 to carry on and expand their work for another year.

Five clubs now provide athletic recreation, dramatics, library facilities and various character-building activities for more than 12,700 underpriviliged youths. The organization also maintains a band, a medical and dental clinic and a summer camp at which nearly 1,000 boys were accommodated last year. The success of this undertaking is undoubtedly reflected in steady reduction of juvenile arrests for criminal offenses since 1933. In that year 354 minors under 17 were arrested in Washington compared with 167 in 1936, 92 in 1937 and only 66 for the first ten months of 1938.

In the last few years the work of the clubs has been greatly strengthened by the hiring of expert leaders. No movement rendering such helpful service to the community should be allowed to fail for want of funds. As contributions are made, however, it is well for the sponsors to realize that the public is looking forward to the time when the clubs will affiliate themselves with the Boys Clubs of America and the Washington Community Chest.

America Will Decide

Normally it would seem a striking coincidence that former Secretary Stimson, in his statement issued from New York on Monday, and Assistant Secretary of State Berle, in his Bronson Cutting Memorial lecture here the same day, should follow so identical an approach on the subject of foreign policy. Normally it would be somewhat unusual for a retired Republican Secretary of State and an active Democratic Assistant Secretary of State to argue, on the same day, for the same objective—in this case common defense measures on the part of the democratic nations.

Actually, however, the coincidence is for at least three reasons entirely natural and appropriate. In the first place both Mr. Stimson and Mr. Berle, speaking as equally patriotic Americans, realize that the issue of party politics must not be injected into the problem of foreign policy. In the second place, as intelligent and well-informed citizens they understand that for the United States there is only one rational response to certain current world trends. Finally, as specialists in the field of foreign relations, with access to information denied the average citizen, they appreciate the importance of acting quickly and positively along the lines so clearly indicated by events.

Fortunately, however, no inside information is necessary to prove the importance of that "policy of farsighted affirmative action" which Mr. Stimson advocates by contrast with the policy of "drift and negation" that some Americans are still disposed to favor. Nobody in this country is so isolationist, so pacifist, so ignorant of obvious facts as to fail to realize that the United States is a tremendously powerful Nation, for that reason exercising a dominant influence in world affairs. One need not have specialized in world politics to recognize the enormous strength of the United States, as compared with that of other nations.

From this indisputable fact it follows that on this country really rests the preponderant responsibility for deciding whether or not the present tense situation in Europe shall be gradually ameliorated, or whether it shall swiftly degenerate into a world war which, as all of us realize, would from the outset threaten our involvement. The issue of war or peace, in other words, rests largely in American hands. And it requires no particular insight to see that our action will be quite as decisive if we close our eyes and do nothing as if we open them and grasp the nettle firmly.

As Mr. Stimson and Mr. Berle both point out, any American action which indicates indifference to aggression is today a positive and dangerous inducement to aggression. It neutralizes our tremendous potential influence for a constructive peace. By the same token any American action which makes our fundamental hostility to aggression plain will render such action, and thereby another war, less likely. That is why the intelligent pacifists, realizing that world peace is the best guarantee of keeping America at peace, are today supporting the "farsighted affirmative action" which Mr. Stimson so convincingly urges.

During the past few weeks the international political situation has eased somewhat. This easing has coincided with the development of our preparedness program and with many other evidences that the United States is not really indifferent to the spreading cycle of aggression. That again is a perfectly natural coincidence, as natural—and one may hope as thought-provoking—as the identity in the viewpoints of Mr. Stimson and Mr. Berle.

A Raw Deal

When Charles Lamb's anonymous Chinese burned down a house and discovered roast pig, and when an unknown aborigine put his finger in his mouth after smashing both it and an oyster, the gourmand was provided with a brace of fresh joys. Possibly the Harvard freshman who swallowed a live goldfish to win a $10 bet has done something equally noteworthy.

The chance is there, even though the effect as described by the experimenter was not wholly gustatory. Most notable, he says, was a tickling of the throat induced by the scales of the fish as it slid down. But even so, that could be the beginning of new delights. Sauces and oils may be supplied to titivate the natural tickle with every gulp. And a goldfish swallowed "as is" may eventually prove as satisfying as any shellfish swallowed the same way.

But there is another way of looking at it—that of the poor fish who played the role of Jonah. Of course it must have been some consolation to help a Harvard freshman win a bet on any subject. But to exchange the publicity of the bowl for that which he achieved was not what any really alert goldfish would call net gain.

The Siege Of Rajkot

At the end of four days Gandhi won his fight.

The Mahatma had no battleships nor bombing planes, no tanks nor poison gas, no machine guns nor Big Berthas, when he laid siege to the Indian principality of Rajkot and the heart of its native ruler. He would have scorned these material weapons had they been offered him. All he had was an emaciated body, a great soul, and an undying belief in the principle that right makes might.

He laid siege to Rajkot by laying siege to his own meager physical resources. Because the ruler of Rajkot held back democratic institutions from the people of his principality, Gandhi felt that he himself had sinned. He began a fast which he was determined not to end until the ruler of Rajkot had capitulated.

That was all. But that was enough. The possibility that the weakened body of the Indian saint might fail this time caused a tremendous outburst of feeling throughout India. The British government was compelled to bestir itself; the ruler of Rajkot found himself under pressure he could not resist. He gave way to Gandhi's demands and Gandhi ended his fast, celebrating his victory with a prayer and a glass of orange juice.

Gandhi is a strange figure in the world of today and the doctrine he preaches is decidedly unfashionable. The lords of misrule in Europe and Asia laugh at it as childish. They have only contempt for the human spirit. They place their faith in force and hate and physical power. Yet with the sole weapon of his transcendent spirituality Gandhi won a victory as far-reaching, and probably more permanent, than the victories won in recent years and at such terrible cost in China, Ethiopia, Spain and central Europe.

Our disturbed and gloom-ridden world badly needs the great lesson which Gandhi has again taught us. The black plague of our times has swept the world with such force and ferocity that we have tended to overestimate its power and to assume its invincibility. There has even been the grave danger that in fighting it we might ourselves become infected, forgetting the power of the spirit and like our enemies placing our sole reliance on tanks and warships.

But the lords of misrule are temporal rulers. They are eternally threatened by the very forces they have so recklessly invoked. Having let loose hate they have become the cringing creatures of fear and their very breast-beatings and sword-clankings reveal their inner uncertainty.

Not too soon has Gandhi recalled to us, what we have tended to forget, that man is made in God's image, that the forces of love and decency and human brotherhood are greater than the outwardly impressive but inwardly self-destructive apparatus of tyranny, intolerance and hatred which the dictators have erected.

A Vacancy Filled

The appointment of Lawrence A. Steinhardt as Ambassador to the Soviet Union ends a situation which had long since become anomalous.

At the time of the transfer of Ambassador Davies from Moscow to Brussels, nine months ago, it was assumed that the vacancy thus created would speedily be filled. Relations between the United States and Soviet Russia were then and have remained entirely correct despite the profound differences between the American and the Soviet systems of government.

Until last week, however, the Moscow post was not filled, principally because of the difficulty encountered by the Administration in finding a suitable individual for that important embassy. But if this delay was free of political motivation, it did nonetheless create an element of strain in Soviet-American relations which was as unnecessary as it was artificial and unfortunate.

Although not a professional diplomat, Mr. Steinhardt has acquitted himself very creditably as American Minister to Sweden and, more recently, as Ambassador to Peru. There is every reason to believe that he will render very useful service in his new and important post.

"A Boston woman told a physician she didn't owe him anything for a physical examination because he found nothing wrong with her."—News item. A psychiatrist would probably have better luck with her.

The Statue of Liberty has been renovated at a cost of $1,700,000, and it will no doubt be in a fair state of preservation when it is placed in the Smithsonian Institution.

"An explorer found in South America members of a tribe who had been out of touch with civilization for ten years."—Press report. As who hasn't?

For years we've been wondering what becomes of our money, and it has finally occurred to us that maybe we've been spending it.

Did He See Washington?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To those who criticize the statement that John Lane made in 1911 as to having seen the face of Washington at the time his body was moved from one tomb to another I should like to say this:

John Lane was a reputable and intelligent witness. He was in full possession of all his faculties. His mind was clear and logical. He told a story that was straightforward and had many of those qualities that rarely appear in products of the imagination. For example:

He said there was no hair on the head or face of Washington. Usually the hair grows after death, becomes prominent. A creator of fiction would have made his story conventionally logical, would have had it do so. Lane noticed the pockmarks on Washington's face, the fact that he had a goiter. These are facts with relation to Washington that were little known until recent research discovered them. He was impressed with the heroic size of the head of Washington, its ruggedness, a thing that is apparent in few of his pictures.

A credible witness appears to give testimony and self-styled historians pronounce his statements false because they find no record of this event in the archives they have studied. Obviously, there are reasons why the Washington family or the committee of Congress might have thought it advisable to suppress the facts. It would not have looked well that the resting place of the Father of His Country had been so neglected that ghouls could enter it and do their will. There may have been reasons which we cannot guess that would have caused silence. The facts, to cite a possibility that has suppressed stories even in modern times, might have promised to influence somebody's campaign for re-election. Newspapers in those days were not so organized as to record all the happenings as they are today. An interesting event might well have escaped them.

There is reputable evidence that Washington's leaden casket was opened. Nothing has yet refuted that testimony. Its truth or falsity, of course, would be easy to establish. It is but necessary to remove the lid of his marble sarcophagus to see the lead casket. Whether or not it had been broken and then repaired would immediately appear. I challenge John Lane's detractors to ask that this be done rather than pronounce him a falsifier merely because his story stands alone.

WILLIAM A. DUPUY.

The Gallinger Dispute

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Two facts seem eviomatic in connection with the present controversy regarding Gallinger Hospital:

1. The prime purpose of this institution is medical and surgical care of the District's indigent sick. Its use as a teaching center is a most important by-product, but still is a secondary consideration.

2. Responsibility for Gallinger's efficiency is assigned to the District Health Department. With that responsibility should go the power of administrative direction. If mortality rates should rise, if an unnecessary epidemic should occur, or if patients were maltre ted, where would the blame be placed? On the visiting staff? No, on the health officer.

In spite of wishy-washy support in the District Building and, at times, from "the Hill," Dr. Ruhland has made a fine start toward rebuilding a sadly shattered health program. Both mortality and morbidity rates are going down in several sectors, and Washington is starting to rise from the unenviable rank it has held among the Nation's great cities insofar as health is concerned.

The health officer has shown that he knows his field. Given real backing he can continue to lead the community in better caring for the sick and maimed, and toward the goal of greater freedom from disease. RAY H. EVERETT.

Harrison Versus Eccles

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of March 3 contained an account of a most encouraging and important interview given to the press by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the powerful Senate Committee on Finance.

In this interview he declared against not only a $5,000,000,000 increase in the legal debt limit but any increases in taxes that might be a deterrent to business, and he proposed Congressional consideration of a plan for reducing appropriation bills, except for fixed Government charges, by even more than 10 per cent, as at least a serious gesture toward balancing the budget.

From the apparently very cordial and congratulatory reception given to the Senator by many of his colleagues when he entered the Senate chamber soon after such publication in the morning paper, early visitors in the galleries must have felt, as did I, that his interview had made a favorable impression.

Even those who cannot agree with Senator Harrison's views on these questions must, I feel sure, admire his spirit of patriotism and rare political courage as evidenced in the published report of the interview.

However, much as I agree with Senator Harrison's economic views, and admire his patriotism and political courage, I must question the accuracy of his reported statement denying that the President has adopted Mr. Eccles' view that indefinitely extended pump-priming by Government spending is wise.

Of course, Senator Harrison is better situated than I am for learning the President's attitude on Mr. Eccles' theory, but let us consider this question in the light of published views of much weight:

The Post in an editorial in its issue of January 6, 1939, under the heading "The Budget Message," said, in part, "The President has evidently embraced the Eccles theory that the road to prosperity is made safe and easy by permitting deficits to accumulate for the purpose of stimulating industry and increasing national income."

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, in an address broadcast January 16, 1939, said, in part, "Honorable Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, announces and advocates a new spending policy, one that will make deficit spending a contribution to the purchasing power of the country, one that may make deficit spending a part of the regular expenditures of our Nation. The President, in his message to Congress on January 3, adopted, in substance, this new fiscal program, and thus it becomes the policy of the Administration."

At least six well-known columnists in articles printed in January and February have expressed a similar understanding of the President's adoption of Mr. Eccles' pump-priming theory.

Nor was there anything in the Associated Press report on February 17, 1939, of the President's remarks en route to Key West to indicate that he had changed his pump-priming views which have been so generally held to accord with Mr. Eccles' views. Indeed, there is the implication that he had not changed his views when he indicated apprehension only of such appropriations by Congress as went beyond his own recommendations.

It would appear, therefore, that there is strong evidence of a close agreement between the deficit-spending views of Mr. Roosevelt and those held by Mr. Eccles.

The Suffrage Viewpoint

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in The Post of March 6, entitled "Suffrage or Bust?" has been incorrectly titled. It should have been called "Bust Suffrage!" Much may be said in answer to it, but let us see how consistent your paper has been in support of your contention in that editorial that "there seems to be no ground whatever for the assumption that acceptance of the proposed administrative group (in the Griffenhagen plan), without local suffrage, would involve loss of the meager home-rule privileges now enjoyed by Washington citizens."

In a featured article in your issue of Februzry 15, 1939, one of your spokesmen, Merlo J. Pusey, had this to say: "The important consideration is not so much what the Griffenhagen plan would supplant, but rather what it would create. The Board of Commissioners as now constituted would disappear . . . In its place, however, would arise a more powerful local governing body, which could be made far more representative of the community than is the present Commission . . . The proposed new governing body would have all the powers customarily granted to municipal corporations. It would not only speak for the District; it would also be able to act for the District."

Then, after pouring out the fact that the Engineer Commissioner can scarcely be said to represent the community, he added: "While the other two Commissioners must be local residents, these posts have often been used as rewards for politicians with little knowledge of or interest in Washington as a community." Is not that statement by your own paper reasonable grounds for assumption that a new municipal setup without local suffrage would mean a loss of home-rule privileges for District citizens?

What assurance do you have that the same use will not be made of the increased number of positions on the proposed governing body if they also are to be appointive?

How, in your opinion, can the President of the United States, if he is given appointive power over the proposed governing body, assure us, as recommended by the Griffenhagen report, that "as many points of view as practicable should be brought to bear" in this governing body?

In my opinion you are placing in the way of a successful culmination of your own commendable efforts to streamline our local government the most potent weapon ever your worst enemy could think of, namely, a defiance of the widespread desire on the part of District citizens for some measure of local self-government through the only logical means now at their disposal, local governmental reorganization.

On the other hand, we suffrage advocates recognize the necessity for local governmental reorganization and have been advocating it for years. It seems to me, therefore, that you would not only be fairer to the public you claim to serve but you would also contribute in large measure to that general agreement which you seek in the matter of reorganization if you would in turn lend your support to our efforts to cure, by the application of a truly American remedy, the basic fault of our present local governmental setup, which is the lack of any effective participation by District citizens in the control of their local affairs. And, by doing so, you would be showing a real interest not only in the welfare of District citizens but also in our American system of representative government. WILBUR S. FINCH,
President, D. C. Suffrage Association; Chairman, Local Suffrage Committee, Federation of Citizens Associations.
Washington, March 6.

The Post Impressionist

The Germ Of Life

WHILE I was staring into the window at the canned vegetable cocktails and gluten cutlets with soybean sauce, I sensed I had company.

There was a sideling motion.

"Do you suppose they're giving them things away?"

I said I thought probably they wanted money.

"I need something to build me up. If I could get like that girl in the picture . . ."

My new acquaintance did look weak. He was no longer young, and his eyes were pale. He was carrying a market basket on his arm, but it had nothing distinguishable in it to make it heavy. The stoop in his figure appeared due rather to the weight of cares.

He fixed me with a gaze like that of the Ancient Mariner.

"Do you know what it is that causes all the trouble in the world?"

I didn't.

"It's women."

While I thought it over, our conversation was interrupted.

"Won't you come in and get warm?"

The speaker was a woman with an apron on. She was not old, nor was she young. She spoke in the downright tones of a lecturer.

"I said, won't you come in where it's warm? This is not a grocery store, you know. I said it's not a grocery store. There are some mighty interesting things in here."

We followed her in.

"How long have you been here?" I asked. "We had a vegetarian friend visiting us, and I couldn't find any place in Alexandria . . ."

"Five years," she said. "I do a big business, too. Orders from all over other States, even a lot from North Carolina."

"I wish I had something to build me up," said my friend.

"If you ate right you wouldn't need anything to build you up," the shopkeeper told him. "Look, I don't sell white flour here. No. I sell whole wheat flour. And it's got the germ in it, too. Flour the salesmen sell has the germ taken out because the moths would get in. If I kept this flour here in the can a few months and then took the top off, the moths would all fly out like this, whoof! Do you know why? Because there's life in the germ. Look, that's the life of the flour. We talk about the wheat germ vitamin—well, there it is in my flour."

"You got to live right," said the man with the basket. He had found a chair.

"You've got to eat right," the storekeeper insisted. "Look, we don't catch diseases. No, we eat our diseases. It's what goes in here that's responsible."

I let the argument drift as I looked around the shelves. There were jars with varicolored soybeans. There were cans and bottles of soybean meal, soybean oil, lentils, raw cashews, health foods, sugarless sweeteners, unrefined sugar, and dehydrated watercress.

The door opened, and therein stood Santa Claus in overalls. He had it all—the rosy cheeks, the white hair and beard, the sack.

"Soybeans today?" he chortled.

"Some of the black and white ones," said the lady.

"Don't know," he said. "Got the others, but maybe I left those home." He went to look.

"I've had an awful time getting these farmers around here to grow soybeans," the shopkeeper confided in me. "I finally got some started."

"Who is he?" I asked.

"Lives out beyond Fairfax Courthouse. Used to walk to Washington every day."

He was back with several sacks. It appeared he had some yellowish soybeans with reddish eyes and some greenish soybeans with blackish eyes. Pouring and measuring followed.

"How about some of these little red beans?" he wanted to know.

"Had some of those little red peas last week."

"These little red beans are mighty good."

"Those little red peas? Yes, they are. Not this week. Next week. What have you got in that other sack?"

"Some of those little red beans."

"Little red peas?"

He opened the sack cheerfully. "The Government told me they're beans," he said without malice. He turned to me.

"I imported these from Manchuria," he explained casually. "I was the first person in this country to raise 'em. I named 'em Manchuria Red Soybean. But the Government says they ain't Manchuria Red Soybean, because there ain't anything by that name. They give me a Latin name for 'em, but I can't pronounce it. I been raising peas and beans for 50 years, but if I want to sell people these for seed, or even give some to the man on the next farm, I can't call 'em Red Manchuria because there ain't anything named that. You know how it is—people got authority, they want to exercise it."

He was not annoyed; far from it; he was merely expounding one of life's many phenomena that interested him. "Them young fellows over there in the Agriculture Department," he said, and smiled benevolently. He got his sacks together and went.

My companion of the window had vanished.

"I guess I better be going," I told the lady shopkeeper.

"Come back any time," she invited.

"Are people always coming in and out this way?" I asked over my shoulder.

"Oh, yes," she said.

A P.-T. A. Dissent

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Garnet-Patterson Parent-Teacher Association, in its third meeting of the year discussed the Griffenhagen report as it relates to education. The association unanimously resolved that the Board of Education of the District of Columbia should remain autonomous and that it should be in complete control of educational policies.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Wasting Riches

I WOULD LIKE to hear the private thoughts of some tourists from the crazy countries after a few hours or days in Miami, the more so the thoughts of some who had had a chance to fly or motor over the territory that lies within, say, a hundred miles. They would not be entirely charmed, for life and administration lack that Army post precision backed by penalties, which they know at home and without which, it would seem to them, any country must soon go to rot and riot. Nor would they be pleased by the waste of land and fruit of the land, still so apparent in Florida even after 20 years of exploitation, booms, relapses and cultivation.

To people who live on rations and eat bread made of flour diluted with sawdust and buttered with whale blubber the careless, easy methods of the Americans and the primitiveness of the country cabins and leaky town slums would be a shocking sin.

Yet they would be certain to carry away feelings of envy and awe, for they would have seen nothing on the route of any cruise as lovely as some of the groupings of homes and gardens which adorn the shore of the Florida pleasure coast, and people of nations which are mad from ambition and want would marvel at the riches of a territory which the Americans make use of only around the edges.

Deserted Groves Still Bear Fruit

THEY BOAST of the roads which they have built, but Florida has half-forgotten stretches of smooth paved highways as straight as ruled lines leading off through jungles of pine and vine apparently to nowhere, with occasional vast clearings of oranges, grapefruit and garden truck, ripe in midwinter.

Just the abandoned groves alone, the weed-grown and half-blighted trees yielding pinched and speckled fruits, would be worth hte lives of whole divisions of Hitlerized Germans or Fascist Italians, but somehow, during the great speculative souffle, Americans bought acreage, cleared it, planted trees and then, by various calamities, financial and personal, were compelled to abandon their farms. Such deserted groves are common, and even without assistance from man many trees still yield fruit that would be a luxury in Italy or Germany.

Whole Villages Are Abandoned

DESERTED FLORIDA skeleton villages with paved boulevards, sidewalks, street lamps and sagging portals, some underlaid with water mains and sewers, would cry out for a dictator to take hold and carry through the original plans by forced labor and confiscated captial. The seas and lakes, alive with fish good to eat, would be worked and patrolled, the food distributed to the slaves by the dictator's hand and the endless reaches of untouched soil put to work.

This land, this city and its surroundings are noted as a place for frivolity, innocent and sinful, according to taste, but the growth continues in spite of many errors and unavoidable disasters. The homes which are rising today are not the lath-and-plaster picture houses of the boom period, but solid houses built to stand against hurricanes, and, true to the predictions of the early speculators in building sites, the climate continues to draw population and capital long after the follies of the boom were written off and forgotten.

It appears, too, that the evilness that was likely to poison the whole life of the community has abated greatly, for night club and gambling activities no longer dominate the social side of existence, although race track gambling helps to support the schools and therefore receives protection from unfair competition.

Not Even Known Well in America

GREAT FLYING BOATS drone over the southerly suburbs to and from the great Pan-American base, an adventurous novelty now grown into an amazing system of transportation. Yet the base, with a traffic of 10,000 in international passengers a month, is not very well known to the Americans as a Nation, even so. But if this were Hitler's land, or Mussolini's, this triumph would be written in fire in the sky and, no doubt, in the fears of the neighbors as well.

Barring a small proportion of the recent developments, the marvels of Miami and the Miami zone are achievements of private enterprise and private capital. The incidental failures have been private disasters, too, but the success vastly outmeasures the mishaps.

Yes, indeed, a German or an Italian must sail away bug-eyed from a touch at the port of Miami, Fla., a casual possession of the Americans and known to most of them only as a place to play.

Sunday School Evangelism Held Strongest

Dr. Ressor Addresses District Association At Annual Dinner

The Sunday school is the greatest force the Protestant Church possesses for obtaining members and leaders, declared Dr. Walter D. Howell last night at the annual dinner of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association. He was introduced by Dr. Charles E. Resser, toastmaster, and president of the organization.

Chairman of the executive committee of the International Council of Religious Education, and field administrator of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, he spoke in the parish hall of Ninth Street Christian Church before Sunday school superintendents, teachers, administrative officers and others.

The Rev. Clifford H. Jope, host pastor, welcomed the diners. Among the guests were the following officers of the Sunday School Association: Albertus N. Schroeder, Mrs. H. E. Eney, Dr. J. S. Noffsinger, vice presidents; P. L. Rogers, secretary, and others.

Booth Is Named Christian Science Church Director

W. Stuart Booth, C. S. B., has been elected director of the Mother Church, First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, it was announced yesterday.

Active in the church since 1895, Booth has resigned as trustee of the Christian Science Publishing Society to assume the new post, succeeding the late William R. Rathvon.

Since 1911 Booth has devoted all his time to Christian Science work. He became a teacher in 1918, and in 1925 was made a member of the board of lectureship, which position he resigned in 1932 to join the editorial staff of the church's religious periodicals as associate editor. He became a trustee of the publishing society in 1935.

Woman to Mark 105 Years by Trip To White House

Mrs. Bessie Snyder, who has gotten along for 105 years without visiting the White House, has decided a call at the Executive Mansion today is the only proper climax for her present trip to Washington.

A native of Russia, Mrs. Snyder has lived in Baltimore 30 years. She came to Washington to attend the confirmation of her great-grandson, Morris Cohen, at Tifereth Israel Synagogue Saturday.

Mrs. Snyder, according to her granddaughter, Mrs. Morris Cohen, with whom she is staying at 1606 Fourteenth street northwest, astonished 300 guests at a party in her honor by her nimble footwork in dancing.

Anderson Ban BeforeCommunists

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, woman labor leader, and Angelo Herndon, colored Communist leader, will speak on the decision of the Board of Education to allow use of Central High auditorium by Marian Anderson, colored singer, at a meeting of the District Communist Party, at 920 U street northwest, Monday night.

Questions include "Is the Marian Anderson decision a victory or a defeat" and "Shall the Negro people accept the Central High School auditorium or shall they reject it as being an insult to the Negro people because of the qualification of the school board that it shall constitute no precedent."

Autonomous Auto Union Hails Martin On Election As Head

Anti-C. I. O. Group Carry Stormy Labor Leader Around Hall On Shoulders Car Workers To Have No Affiliations

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, March 7.—Homer Martin's convention of the strife-divided United Automobile Workers elected him its president tonight and demonstrating delegates, rushing to the platform, seized him and carried him around the convention hall on their shoulders.

Martin, unopposed for election in his "factional convention" of the U. A. W., has taken up arms against the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the so-called parent body of the auto workers union. The union he now heads is avowedly anti-C. I. O.

Martin called the convention in defiance of a U. A. W. executive board majority which moved to impeach him as president.

By resolution today the delegates abandoned the last claim to any connection with the C. I. O.

They voted unanimously to submit any future question of affiliation "with any congress or federation of unions" to the rank and file of membership of the union.

This left open the door to possible affiliation with the American Federation of Labor or a combination with the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, which withdrew last year from the C. I. O. The C. I. O. has stated it would not recognize the Martin-controlled union and is supporting his opponents who will hold their U. A. W. convention at Cleveland on March 27.

The resolution stated that the U. A. W. had never been affiliated with the C. I. O. The resolution was passed, not once, but twice, before the duplication was discovered.

The convention voted to ask Martin to reopen negotiations with the Ford Motor Co., criticized by Martin's C. I. O.-supported opponents.

D.C. Housing Study To Get Under Way Within Month

John Ihlder, director of the District Alley Dwelling Authority, said yesterday the proposed survey of local housing conditions would be undertaken "within the month."

The project, sponsored by the WPA, will employ more than 500 persons over a period of 8 months at a cost of more than $300,000.

Diocesan Auxilary Holds Memorial Rites at Cathedral

Gathering yesterday in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral for the memorial service of the Diocesan Auxiliary, 300 women of District area Episcopal parishes heard their president, Mrs. A. Guy Reber, read names of 52 who died in the last year. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman spoke.

A luncheon followed in Satterlee Hall. A meditation service was held later in St. Albans Church.

Texas Capitalists To Buy District Soft Drink Plant

The Dr. Pepper Bottling Co., 6101 Blair road northwest, shortly will be sold to Houston, (Tex.) capitalists for about $175,000, Washington B. Williams, president, announced last night.

The company operates the plant, five warehouses, a chain of distribution stations in Maryland, Virginia and the District, and a fleet of 25 trucks.

Williams said a new corporation of the same name was incorporated yesterday at Annapolis to take over the soft-drink business.

Wisconsin U. Votes To Let D.C. Woman Cancel $7,500 Gift

Madison, Wis., March 7 (AP).—The decision of Miss Clara Opper, of Washington, to withdraw a gift of $2,500 and the proceeds of a $5,000 insurance policy was approved unanimously today by the University of Wisconsin board of regents.

Regents and legislators opposed to acceptance argued the gift would make the university a party to a racial issue, since it excluded Jews, Catholics and colored feminine students from benefits.

Blunders Of 1937

By Ernest Lindley

No Spending Compromise

THE ADMINISTRATION is eager to encourage business. Its "definite policy," as Speaker Bankhead said Monday after conferring with the President, is to "do anything within reason" for business without abandoning the economic reforms it has effected.

The President has told Congressional leaders that he has no additional proposals to submit to Congress at this session.

The Administration is ready to accept repeal or revision of taxes which hold back business recovery. This may mean changes in the capital gains tax, to induce persons with money to take risks. It should mean the abolition of that refuge of timid wealth, tax-exempt securities, but apparently won't, thanks to the lobbying of State and municipal governments. It probably means repeal of the corporate surplus tax, although this tax was greatly revised last year without perceptibly stimulating business expansion.

What else can be done to improve the state of mind of businessmen? Some of them presumably would like to see the whole New Deal undone. But their more responsible spokesmen, who, I believe, represent the majority of businessmen, accept the great bulk of the New Deal reforms as accomplished facts.

Controversial Acts Now Calmly Accepted

IS THERE any audible demand for repeal or serious revision of the securities act and the securities and exchange act? No. Yet the passage of both of these laws aroused furious controversy. The utility industry is complying with the public utility holding company act, one of the most fought-over of all New Deal laws.

A basis has been agreed upon for the settlement of the long-standing feud between TVA and the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation.

The conservation program, in most of its aspects, has won general approval.

Specific Irritants Nearly All Minor

GO ON DOWN the list of New Deal reforms. There is none to which businessmen, in any considerable number, avow fundamental objection. Even the heartiest critics of the National Labor Relations Board take the pains to assert that they believe in collective bargaining. As to whether all of them mean it, we may have our doubts, but the avowal is a remarkable advance from the prevailing attitude of employers three or fours years ago when the 58 august lawyers assembled by the American Liberty League pronounced the national labor relations act unconstitutional.

The specific irritants of which businessmen complain are nearly all minor.

The complaints over the President's recent appointments have now narrowed down to Tom Amlie. There are 11 commissioners on the I. C. C. Not more than six are allowed to come from one party. Mr. Amlie, a radical progressive, was nominated as a minority (non-Democratic) member, there being nothing in the law that requires all the minority members to be conservative Republicans. As one of 11 commissioners Mr. Amlie would be powerless to do any damage—and we might inject a bit of life into an agency which needs it.

Federal Finance Is Real Issue Left

IT ISN'T very important in national terms whether Mr. Amlie takes his seat on the I. C. C. or whether he doesn't. That the nomination of one man to a commission of 11, dealing only with transportation, is cited as a cause of fright to businessmen generally is a reflection on the intelligence and poise of businessmen. It looks as if Mr. Amlie's appointment would be blocked by the Senate anyway. That there has been a furor over his nomination is in itself a sign that the conservative critics of the Administration have run short of ammunition.

The one real issue left is Federal finance. On that the Administration cannot afford to compromise. It has already made the mistake of letting the budget balance too abruptly. During 1936 the Federal Government spent about $3,000,000,000 more than it took in. The next year it tried to balance the budget — for nine months, in fact, the Treasury was in the black. The change was too sudden. Largely as a result of that we suffered the recession of late 1937 and early 1938.

Mr. Roosevelt returned to Federal spending very reluctantly—after six months of deepening depression. When the Federal Government finally increased its rate of spending, business picked up. Mr. Roosevelt proposed to keep on spending at the present rate until there is no doubt that business recovery is well under way. He intends to avoid repeating the blunder of 1937. He has learned from experience—and that experience is worth volumes of theorizing by Pat Harrison, Harry F. Byrd and John N. Garner.

No Ides Of March?

FOR MONTHS past students of the European situation have been looking forward apprehensively to the month of March in the fear that during the current month some new move would be undertaken by the axis powers that would again threaten the peace of Europe as it was seriously threatened last fall.

It would be rash to venture any prophecy for this month or for the months to come, but I think there is no question that fear has somewhat abated, and that in Britain, France and here there is far more confidence and optimism than there was in mid-winter.

Now, it is worth while to analyze the reasons for this, for those reasons may be a guide to our future conduct.

Did this relation of tension occur because they stiffened? Is this more hopeful outlook, this lessening fear of war, or a coup d'etat, or another threat of war under which huge concessions would have to be made to preserve peace, due to overtures to fascism, or is it due to a sterner brow, less mincing words, and an actual increase in democratic strength?

The answer to that question is, it seems to me, the proper comment on our own foreign policy. And I do not think it can be denied that the democratic world has won a breathing space, not by conciliation but by resistance.

Dictators Given Pause By U. S. Attitude

In the stiffening of the front against aggrandizement the United States has played an important role. The sudden realization of the dictatorships that the United States cannot positively be ruled out as a factor has given the potential aggressors pause.

For this President Roosevelt deserves, in my belief, the gratitude of the democratic world, and the American people, whose passionate will to peace cannot be doubted, have backed him up with admirable common sense.

For it is extremely unlikely that any power would risk action that might lead to war if there was an even chance that the United States would be involved against it. The economic and industrial resources of this country are so enormous that they would be bound to cast the decisive die in a contest in arms.

The second element in the stiffening of the democracies has been the unequivocal declaration of solidarity between Britain and France and the very firm but polite words addressed to the dictatorships by the prime ministers and foreign ministers of both countries.

In this respect the words of Lord Halifax a week ago are quite different from British utterances prior to the events of last September:

"I should have thought that everybody everywhere must now realize that there is no party and no statesman in this country that would ever contemplate an aggressive war . . . But it is also dangerous that some people in other countries occasionally fall into the opposite error and are tempted to interpret our will to peace as proof of our weakness and cowardice.

"The material and moral resources of this country are enormous and the spirit of our people is in no way weakened."

Rearmament Speed Worries Axis Powers

THIS STATEMENT followed a remarkable communication from Hitler, who, having in season and out bragged of possessing the largest and most powerful fighting force in Europe, expressed "pained surprise" at the state of British rearmament.

Now this rearmament is really what is worrying the axis powers. A few months ago, before Munich, they were taunting the democracies with being weak and decadent and incapable of efficient organization for either peace or war. But suddenly they are discovering that when popular governments and free peoples make up their minds to do something through united effort and collaboration among themselves they can do it quite as speedily and effectively as the totalitarian states.

Next month the output of British airplanes will, I am informed, be three and one-half times what it was a year ago, and by July, if the present tempo is not relaxed, it will be as great as the current output of the Germans. Moreover, the British and French peoples are not exhausted by years of being mobilized and perpetually speeded up. And these peoples know perfectly well, despite the propaganda of the dictatorships, that not one of them is arming for aggression, but only in defense of their lands and their institutions.

And again, in this rearmament the United States has played a major role. Our sales of airplanes to Britain and France have frightened the potential aggressors, and actually the planes sold to France will have enabled her to double her force in 1939. It will still be inferior to Italy and Germany.

Chamberlain Becomes Idol of Germans

In contrast with the stiffening of the democratic action and morale, the economic condition and the popular morale in both Italy and Germany have grown worse. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the prestige of Hitler and Mussolini in their own countries was both strengthened and shaken by the events of last September. In particular Hitler's prestige with the German people rests on the fact that he has gotten what he wanted so far without war.

But Hitler discovered after his victories last September that not he but Chamberlain had become the popular idol in Germany. For the German people hate war as much as any other people, and, despite the propaganda of a controlled press and radio, they realize quite fully that they were spared a war not by grace of Hitler or Mussolini but by grace of the democratic powers.

Also the victory has not been as sweet as was hoped. The acquisition of Austria and the Sudetenland has become an enormous burden on German economy. Conquest has meant new taxes, and the taxes already are terrific. And, again, despite the propaganda, the German people do not believe that they are being threatened by the democratic powers. They are sullen toward their government; there is more outspoken criticism than there has been in all the years of the Hitler regime, because the people feel that the democracies, driven too far, will take a stand.

Also, in the countries of the Danubian basin there is a notable stiffening — in Hungary, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Current Peace Laid To Resistance

The peace, therefore, that we at present enjoy is not due to appeasement, but is due to resistance. One needs only to read the German and Italian press to be aware of this.

The belligerently confident tone of the axis powers changed abruptly in January, immediately following President Roosevelt's address to Congress. That the spring may go by without another world-shaking incident is not a triumph for the Chamberlain-Bonnet policy; it is a triumph for the Roosevelt policy. And the greatest thing that we have to fear is that, comforted by the relaxation of tension, the democratic powers will lapse from the stand which has brought about that more fortunate atmosphere.

Mr. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State under President Hoover, a former Secretary of War, a political opponent of President Roosevelt and a sharp critic of his domestic policy, has done the country a service by his lucid, reasonable and, to me, unanswerable analysis of the world situation and the support he has given the President in the open letter published in the New York Times on Tuesday.

Not only reason but the empirical facts support the President and Mr. Stimson.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Mr. Twitchell Tries To Co-operate

Mr. Harry Hopkins,
Secretary of Whatever Is Left of Commerce,
Washington, D. C.
My Dear Hop:

Well, Harry, as a businessman I have been trying to co-operate, as you suggested, but it has been no pipe. I meant to take a bus from the house to the depot when I started for Washington, but the bus drivers were on strike and when I finally got to the station the ticket window was being picketed. I got my ticket to Washington after a hard fight, but then I had to wait over another train because when I went to the baggage room to get my bags there was some kind of a labor row going on there, too.

I finally got aboard a train for Washington, but it was held up because when the drawbridge man had the bridge open he got a C. I. O. order not to close it. I got off the train and tried to take a boat across the river, but the A. F. of L. had called out the rowboat workers.

I had no end of trouble getting to Washington and as soon as I got in I tried to get you on the phone, Harry, but the Labor Relations Board had all the telephone workers before it for some kind of a hearing. I would have then sent you a wire, but the messenger boys were all on strike.

I tried to get a taxi but the taxi drivers had staged a walkout. Then I started walking to your office and I next woke up in a hospital. It seems I was struck by a rock in a pitched street battle between two striking groups of some kind or another. When finally I got to your office (after a delay due to an elevator strike) the doorman would not pay any attention to me because he was having an argument with the office boy over social security.

One of your secretaries saw me and asked me to stop picketing and get out of the building, but I explained I was not picketing anybody and wanted to see you about the big co-operation movement, and she said you were in conference with some Senators over the bill to raise the debt limit another five billion. I said I would wait but she said after that you were to chat with some Senators who wanted to abolish the budget entirely, as it was a nuisance.

I asked if I could see you the next day and she said you and the President and everybody had to meet and try to get the A. F. of L and the C. I. O. to stop fighting. Before leaving I wrote you a letter but I got caught in a riot between Communists and Nazis and in the confusion I lost it.

I hurried to the depot to take a train home but the road had closed up pending action under Act 77B. Then I tried to hitchhike home but everybody regarded me with suspicion and when I told one fellow I was a poor unfortunate businessman trying to get home he laughed and said, "You ain't no businessman; you look too well fed and healthy," and drove on. So I had to walk all the way.

This co-operating business is pretty hard. Yours,
Elmer Twitchell.

Romany Fashions To Hold Sway Here This Springtime

By Alice Hughes.

New York, March 7.

DROP A tear for the poor fashion designers! One by one the nations from which they have borrowed peasant fashions to adapt for the American trade have been barred from them for obvious political reasons. Now the poor creatures are forced to find styles to borrow which are international in scope, and so this spring, with shrill cries of glee, they are pushing gypsy fashions into the limelight. We all know that Romany is everywhere, and the designers and adapters are safe.

This gypsy business was really started in Paris by the crafty Chanel. At her spring openings she showed two collections of gypsy dinner dresses—and now this influence is spreading all through the wardrobes for the months to come. Gypsy stripes are appearing in shirtwaists, and multiple strands of brightly colored beads are adding a note of gayety to the quietest black dresses. These new fashions are extremely adaptable and easy to vary, and it is fairly safe to predict that the girls will deck out their wardrobes with a lot of gypsy tricks which can be played in various interesting ways. The full skirts are excellent for dancing and the blouses worn with them are suitable for almost any purpose. It is quite probable that the coming months will see plenty of gypsy parties around the country, taking a cue from the new clothes and giving the girls a chance to strut their stripes.

Best of all, from the selling point of view, these Romany duds are "casual"—that quality which has come to be so highly valued, especially among the younger gang. From their current point of view, any raiment that is casual must be all right, which makes it appear that good old Chanel certainly started something with her gypsy didoes.

GIRL DOUT TOWN—There is a nervous air around the Vanderbilt Theater these days, for the great Barrymores, Jawn and Elaine, are actually rehearsing their new play, "My Dear Children." The old profile has scored a big hit around town with everyone in the last few weeks. The bad boy has turned good, and his sense of humor is now in command. On radio shows he permits himself to be ribbed, and he kids himself and all the mock dramatics of his great lover days have gone with the hurricane. Old John has turned out to be a regular fellow of the deepest dye, and and he and his lily maid seemed to be making a good go of it. Now if they just have a good show!

The top costume I've seen this week was worn by a beauteous dancer, Tamara Geva, at the Swing Club. It was a beautifully draped white silk jersey gown, with the bodice embroidered in gold leaves. Geva also wore a halo of gold leaves in her hair—and she was a tasty eyeful!

Tell the boys the new hats are as nutty as ever and that they are sure of plenty of sneers this spring. One is built like a rooster's coxcomb, of white straw with a crimson ribbon. And don't throw away old doilies. They will do for hat brims this season, if starched very crisp or wired on the outside edge.

Plan Wedding Details Ahead

A VISION of loveliness—your wedding day. Soft music—flowers—you at your joyous best!

That's if you settle in advance all the 101 questions of wedding etiquette, budgeting, taste.

Mostly, the answers depend on what sort of wedding you'll have—a big church affair with you in white satin and clouds of tulle, or a charmingly simple wedding in your own home.

For a large formal wedding to which "everyone" is asked, you send invitations only, no announcements. But if you're asking just a few friends to a simple wedding, invite them verbally or by note, send announcements to the rest.

What monograms to order for linens and silver? Traditionally the bride used her girlhood initials. But now Mary Smith, as the future Mrs. Jones, may use M. S. J.

Your bridal bouquet? Correct with a formal gown is a shower or arm bouquet, but with dress or suit, wear a pretty corsage.

For a big wedding reception you may plan an elaborate menu featuring sweetbreads, lobster Newburg or chicken. After a simple wedding—sandwiches, little cakes, coffee are often served.

And of course, whether you have one attendant or half a dozen, you'll want to give them something to remember you by—slippers matching the bridesmaids' dresses, an evening bag, a handkerchief.

And what about your wedding procession—in what order do ushers and bridal attendants precede you at the church? At home, where the ceremony is to be in the living room and you have only one attendant, how to make a gracious, dignified entrance?

This jaunty sailor, which can be worn with suits now and with summer dresses later, exemplifies the trend toward wooden hats. It is of woven veneer of tiger wood surfaced and laminated with a clear cellulose acetate plastic. Designed by Louiseanders

The Gentler Sex

BY MALVINA LINDSAY

Diary of Winnie Worm

5:30 a. m.—Up early so I could get through with the bathroom before anyone else wanted in. Always feel so nervous and guilty when people turn the knob and bang on the door.

6:30 a. m.—Started to read the headlines in the newspaper but Tom came downstairs just then. He does not like the paper to be rumpled.

7 a. m.—Ada Belle grouchy and toast burnt. Did not send it back as Ada Belle was banging things in kitchen, but scraped some off for Tom, Sister and Junior. Tom annoyed because eggs were fixed a new way. I fried him some more myself, one side up.

8:30 a. m.—Let Junior go to school without his overcoat. Couldn't get it on him without a scene. Let Sister wear rouge and silver bracelets. She says all the girls do it. Suppose I am terribly old-fashioned.

8:45 a. m.—Johnny Pester at door selling magazine subscriptions to get a bicycle. Couldn't very well refuse on account of his mother. She is so touchy.

9 a. m.—Straightened the upstairs myself on account of Ada Belle's being so cross. Will ask her to clean everything, including bathroom, tomorrow.

9:15 a. m.—Mrs. Whipper phoned. Wanted me to sell ten tickets for the bridge benefit. Couldn't very well get out of it. Maybe I can get rid of most of them to the family.

9:30 a. m.—A Mrs. McLeech from Chicago phoned. Said Grace Chumley had asked her to look me up. Drove here with her sister-in-law and mother. Nothing to do but to invite them for luncheon tomorrow.

10 a. m.—Went downtown to look at print dresses. Took a blah looking green and brown I don't much like, but was ashamed not to after trying on so many. Saleswoman very difficult to get away from. Maybe it will look better when I get some smart accessories.

11:30 a. m.—Ran on to Mabel Gabb. Hadn't seen her for five years. Hard to get away from. Wants Tom and myself to come for dinner a week from Thursday. Why on earth did I promise? Will have to call up and make some excuse.

12:30 p. m.—Ate lunch at the Red Lantern. Soup cold, but hated to make a fuss. Girl forgot to have sandwich toasted so I ate it plain. Have a feeling the cashier gave me a quarter instead of 50 cents in change. Wish I could remember to count change when it is handed me. Still it seems so impolite.

2 p. m.—Had to wait at the beauty shop as they had run a customer in ahead of me. Some society woman who had to catch a train. Got stuck under the dryer and nobody came to take me out. Tried to shut it off myself but was afraid I would break something. Finally decided to sit it out.

4 p. m.—Dropped by the step-in sale at Prinks. Marvelous bargains, but could not get anyone to wait on me.

4:15 p. m.—Found it raining outside. Hailed a cab but a woman stepped in ahead of me. Stopped another. A man took it. Drenched by the time I got one. Don't think the cabman gave me the right change. Simply must remember to count my money.

5:30 p. m.—Started to read the the headlines but Tom came in. He does not like the paper to be rumpled.

7:30 p. m.—Went with Tom to reunion banquet of the Nutmeg Rollers. A good dinner but had to eat without napkin or salad fork. Squab excellent, but the waiter took my plate before I had finished. All of the waiters seemed as grouchy as Ada Belle. Promised to join the women's auxiliary of the Nutmeg Rollers. Couldn't very well get out of it. Maybe I can just pay dues and not attend.

11 p. m.—Telephone ringing as we got home. Mrs. McLeech the Chicago woman said she had been trying to get me all evening. Wanted me to go with them to Mount Vernon tomorrow afternoon. Couldn't very well get out of it. Said they were taking sister-in-law's niece and niece's little boy. Of course had to invite them to luncheon also.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Because He Deliberately Eschews Casual Amours, Man Is Considered a Freak, How About It?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young man just out of the "teen" age. I have a problem which I suppose should be no problem, actually, but still it bothers me a great deal and unless I get straightened out, I'm afraid it will permanently affect my personality and social outlook. To begin with, let me explain that I lean toward the introvert type, and possibly this serves to intensify the problem of which I speak. I work in an office with several fellows approximately the same age, all of whom look upon me as something of a freak because I have thus far seen fit to live by the single standard of morality.

Practically all of these fellows seem to regard illicit intimacy with girls as a natural and inevitable part of youthful experience, and from their apparent popularity with the opposite sex, I am beginning to wonder if I am years behind the times in regard to my attitude on the subject. I was reared in an environment where such questions were never discussed, and yet somehow I have developed the idea that this relationship is something to be reserved for marriage and family life. My co-workers take the attitude that such a theory is natural enough in a boy's earlier years, but seem surprised that I have survived to voting age with the same viewpoint in mind.

The effect of this conflict of viewpoints has resulted in my near-abstinence from dates, since I feel that I don't know how to act with a girl any more. This withdrawal from nearly all contact with the opposite sex has caused my family some anxiety and my friends some wonder, since both groups seem to think that I have more than the average amount of physical and personality attractiveness. I have tried to create the impression that I just don't care for girls—until such time as I have settled in my own mind just what is the correct modern viewpoint on boy-and-girl relationships, and what the modern girl expects of her boy friends.

I hope that you will answer this letter in your column, and that you will be able to offer some sound advice in the matter. I know there must be other young men of my age who are bothered by this problem, and who would appreciate straightening out just as much as I shall. Sincerely yours, MR. CONFUSED.

Homespun Parable

DEAR MR. CONFUSED: If a man of normal proportions found himself, for the first time, in a colony of midgets or dwarfs—none of whom had ever before gazed upon his like—both the one and the many naturally would regard each other with a certain amount of uneasy consternation. Yet the man of normal proportions would be something of a fool if, in a mistaken effort to bridge the disparity between two irreconcilably different species, he were to grovel, crawl on all fours, or in any other manner attempt to reduce himself to the stunted stature of his gaping critics. I suggest that you apply this homespun parable to your own case.

I think it is probable that your practical idealism—no doubt a direct inheritance from plain living, high thinking ancestors; an integral framework of civilized instincts casually though invincibly reinforced in a home atmosphere where fundamental decencies of attitude were taken for granted rather than zealously stressed—I think this idealism has qualified you for admission into a rather more select and congenial company than that in which you currently find yourself.

I think your intrinsic and erstwhile unquestioning determination to refrain from spending your emotions willy-nilly—to conserve that wealth of self to be given in one great and lasting gift to the woman you expect one day to love and marry—is a life-premise so eminently right and sound as to be a source of pride rather than an occasion for shame-faced apology. Far from disqualifying you for normal social interchange with the opposite sex, it supplies you with the happiest and most acceptable set of credentials.

Few, indeed, are the girls who do not tend instinctively toward chaste patterns of behavior. Those who abandon such standards, transiently or permanently, do so for the most part under pressure, exerted either by individuals or by groups, whose insidious example and preachments they are either too ignorant or too weak to resist. Once having tasted of forbidden fruit, however, I suppose it is inevitable that many girls should find themselves caught up, prematurely and disturbingly, into a phase of forced growth, from which they are unable to turn back. And so they may proceed to rationalize their position, and to subscribe, with self-extenuating cynicism and pseudo-worldly wisdom, to the animal code of those men who cut short the springtime of their development.

Yet hardy idealists, such as yourself, are required neither to judge themselves by the specious standards of the spiritually illiterate, the wayward and straying waifs of society; nor to bend or to break the better mold into which their personality has been cast, in order to achieve an illusion of similarity to, or hail-fellow acceptance by, boastfully promiscuous individuals or cliques. Indeed, to do so would be to exchange one's birthright of instinctive discrimination for a quite malodorous mess of pottage.

To sum up, then: the difference in viewpoint between yourself and your male confreres, with regard to boy-and-girl relationships, is a difference distinctly in your favor. It reflects great credit upon your character, inheritance, training and philosophy. Properly evaluated by yourself, your attitude, if nonchalantly maintained, gives you a social advantage over your morally callous critics and should enhance, rather than detract from, your popularity with the opposite sex. You represent the type of man whose complete devotion any intelligent woman is proud to possess and eager to deserve—and you are doing yourself and the gentler sex a great injustice in withholding yourself from social circulation.

Incidentally, don't let your rational and admirable determination not to sink to a jungle level of lovemaking cause you to behave like a human icicle, when in the company of the opposite sex. You may be heart warmingly demonstrative, appreciative and responsive enough to suit the taste of any girl, and to keep even the most sophisticated darling on her toes, by giving expression to sincere sentiments through the graceful mediums of speech and glance. That sort of lovemaking is far more subtle, infinitely more polished, than a blundering approach to physical familiarity.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Capital Society:

Mme. Morgenstierne's Portrait Shown to Friends

Picture of Popular Diplomatic Hostess Was Painted by Norwegian-Born Artist, Bjorn Egeli; Poses in Sports Costume

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

TWO MME. MUNTHE DE MORGENSTIERNES greeted a small gathering at the Norwegian Legation yesterday. One shook hands with guests at the door of the library; the other smiled down from the wall. One was the pretty and popular wife of the Norwegian Minister; the other was her portrait recently done by Bjorn Egeli, Norwegian-born citizen of the United States, for whom more than 100 Washington residents have sat.

HOPE R. MILLER

Mme. Morgenstierne's portrait, so I understand, is one with which the artist is particularly pleased. And why not? Certainly he has captured a characteristic expression of this pretty, popular diplomatic hostess, who looks as if she might speak to you any moment out of the handsome frame. The ensemble in which Mme. Morgenstierne posed is, fittingly enough, fashioned of bright red wool (about the same shade you see in Norway's flag), with a fitted bodice, buttoned down the front, and full sleeves of white homespun embroidered on the tight cuff.

"Ohs" and "ahs" rippled through the small group assembled yesterday afternoon to see the portrait. It wasn't a party. The Norwegian Minister and Mme. Morgenstierne are still in mourning for the late Queen Maude of Norway; they will be until March 20, so any entertaining they do until then must be very informal.

So it was yesterday. The few who dropped by to see the portrait and stayed for a cup of tea or cocktails included some of the others who have sat for Mr. Egeli and a few more who had expressed desires to see the portrait. Among them were Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, William H. Beck, American Consul General in Norway; Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sims and Mrs. Thomas Cowell.

Types Nominated For Oblivion

Before stopping by the Norwegian Legation yesterday afternoon I dropped in for a cup of tea with a hostess who has a passion for anonymity. The small gathering there began discussing persons who deserve to be nominated for oblivion and before the half hour was over there was quite a lengthy list.

Not exactly in the line of a Lenten homily would be my opinion about persons who deserve such a fate, but if anyone should ask me, certainly I should nominate for oblivion:

Hostesses who modestly observe, "You know I simply detest publicity" when it is quite obvious they like few things more.

Lorgnette wielders and eyebrow lifters who, upon seeing someone new, ask in stilted but significant tones, "Who is she?"

Tired-of-it-all notables who at this season must either go north or south for a rest when they do little else the year around.

Newspaper columnists who, frequently, are so desperate for copy they fill space by taking issue with even the most innocuous statements made by other columnists.

Well-plushed dowagers who talk continually about dieting—and never do it.

Professional party-goers who, when not invited to an event, brashly ask the hostess why they were slighted. (Also in this category are those rare individuals who demand explanations from society writers as to why their names weren't mentioned "among those present" at a party for several hundred.)

Berles Open Estate For Sugar Season

Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, jr., and Mrs. Berle, who are now in New York, will open their estate, Konkapot, at Monument Valley, Mass., the latter part of this week. The maple sugar season is just now getting under way and their summer home has one of the largest sugar orchards in the southern Berkshires.

This morning, Mr. Berle will drive to Middletown, Conn., where he will take part in the annual Wesleyan University parley on foreign affairs which opens there today. From Middletown, he will go directly to Monument Valley to join Mrs. Berle for a few days.

HERE AND THERE: Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg will entertain at luncheon on Sunday for Republican members of the Michigan Congressional delegation . . . The American Minister to Latvia and Mrs. John C. Wiley, who will be in Washington for a visit before long, are now at the Casa Marina in Key West, Fla., where Ernest Hemingway, the author, also is vacationing . . . According to word from Key West, Hemingway and Wiley are spending most of their time fishing together.

Richard Byrds Are Guests of The Capt. Gibbonses

Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, of Washington, who are spending the season at Palm Beach, have as their guests Rear Admiral Richard W. Byrd, polar explorer, and Mrs. Byrd. Capt. and Mrs. Gibbons gave a large tea and cocktail party for their visitors on Monday.

Miss Mabel Boardman, who is visiting Mrs. E. H. G. Slater at Palm Beach, was guest of honor at a dinner Monday of Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, formerly of Washington.

Second Daughter Born To the Capt. Badts

Capt. H. A. Badt, U. S. N., and Mrs. Badt announce the birth of a daughter on March 5 at Sibley Hospital. The child is their second. Another daughter, Lois May Badt, is 11 years old.

Capt. Badt is now on duty on the Tuscaloosa. Mrs. Badt, upon leaving Sibley Hospital, will be with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Krupsaw, of Washington.

Envoy's Wife Sees Self as Others See Her

And the portrait above of Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne will be off to Wilmington next week for a special exhibition. It was the center of attraction in a small gathering yesterday when Mme. Morgenstierne and the artist, Bjorn Egeli, came in for lots of congratulations from friends who called at the embassy to witness its very informal "unveiling"

Sna. de Trujillo Sails Saturday

Her daughter, Senora Flor Trujillo de Brea, was guest of honor at a tea given Monday by George Djamgaroff in his apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria Towers. Among those present were Senor and Senora de Pastoriza, Mr. and Mrs. James Lenox Banks, Decio de Moura, formerly of the Brazilian Embassy staff; Prince Serge Obolensky, Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Boker, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Cohu, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Cushing, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Lanier, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Lowell, Mr. and Mrs. Colgate V. Man, Miss Cynthia Banks, Miss Virginia French, Mrs. Adelaide S. Munroe and J. M. Bonetti.

Mrs. Harold Pullen Here on Visit

Mrs. Harold F. Pullen, wife of Lieut. Commander Pullen, U. S. N., is here from Long Beach, Calif. With her two daughters, Margaret and Patricia, she is at the Wardman Park.

Commander Pullen is now with the flagship Pennsylvania in southern waters. Mrs. Pullen will meet him in Norfolk next month and they will come to Washington.

English-Speaking Union Plans Tea

Members of the Washington branch of the English-Speaking Union will entertain at tea tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6:30 at the club's headquarters.

Guests of honor will be Miss Josephine Maynard, formerly a guide lecturer on English monuments and castles; Leslie Watson Fearn, manager-director of World Commonwealth Films, Ltd., and director of the religious movie, "Triumph," and Dr. George Catlin, British author and lecturer.

Mr. and Mrs. Masella Congratulated on Birth

Mr. and Mrs. James Vincent Masella, of Greene Manor, Germantown, Pa., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on March 5. The child has been named James Vincent Masella, jr.

The mother formerly was Katherine Taliaferro Yates, of Washington, D. C., and Buffalo, N. Y. She is the daughter of Maj. E. Sears Yates, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. Yates, who now are making their home in Charlottesville, Va.

Former Envoy Honored

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former United States envoy to Germany, was guest of honor at a luncheon given at the Willard yesterday by Dr. and Mrs. Paul Schwarz, of New York. The host is former German Consul in New York.

Bulgarian Envoy Entertains At Dinner

The Bulgarian Minister and Mme. Naoumoff entertained at dinner last night, with the French Ambassador, Count Rene Doynel de Saint Quentin, as ranking guest.

Others in the company were the Latvian Minister and Mme. Bilmanis, Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mme. Benech, wife of the Naval Attache of the French Embassy; Miss Wena Naoumoff, sister of the Minister, and Ivan Zlatin, Third Secretary of the legation.

Mayor of Lima Honor Guest

The Peruvian Ambassador, Manuel de Freyre y Santander, entertained at a luncheon yesterday for the Mayor of Lima, Don Eduardo Dibos.

Senor Dibos is accompanied on his visit here by his two daughters, Senoritas Ida and Yvonne Dibos, who are 17 and 15, respectively. Senor Dibos met many prominent Washingtonians at the recent Pan-American Conference in Lima. He is widely interested in sports and travels.

Senor Dibos was feted at a luncheon given on Monday by the director general of the Pan-American Union, Dr. L. S. Rowe.

Rep. Ramspeck's Daughter to Act In 'Angels of War'

Her name is Miss Dorothy Ramspeck, but on Monday and Tuesday, March 13 and 14, she will be the Hon. Millicent Westbrooke, the daughter of an earl, instead of the daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert Ramspeck, of Atlanta, Ga. Dorothy's change in identity will take place when curtains go up on the play, "Angels of War," to be given at the King-Smith Playhouse.

Hessler Studio.
MISS RAMSPECK

This is by no means her first appearance on the glamorous side of the footlights. When she was studying at Emerson College in Boston she had a part in the Harvard Dramatic Club production, "Cannibal Carnival." Then, in 1937, under the aegis of the King-Smith School, where she is now a student, she played in "Liliom."

Miss Ramspeck, whose parents have made their home in Washington for the last ten years, was graduated from Western High School. She can sing as well as act, and her more strenuous hobbies include riding and swimming.

Her aim in life: More footlights—on Broadway.

Mrs. Brewster Holds At Home

Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, wife of the Representative from Maine, held her second "at home" of the season yesterday afternoon in their apartment at the Mayflower from 4 to 6. The hostess, who received in a setting of spring flowers and plants, wore a gown of brown crepe with a fitted bodice of biscuit colored lace and a Cayprie-dium orchid corsage.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Charles L. McNary, wife of the Senator from Oregon; Mrs. John Tabor, wife of the Representative from New York; Mrs. Clarence Hancock, wife of the Representative from New York; Mrs. Ralph E. Church, wife of the Representative from Illinois; Mrs. D. B. Crafton, wife of Col. Crafton; Mrs. Erwin Canham and Mrs. Charles E. Dustin.

Mrs. Brewster receives on the first Tuesday of the month. Her next "at home," for which no cards will be issued, will take place April 4.

Hunter-Adams Wedding To Be in June

Engagement Announced By Bride-to-Be's Parents at 'Waverly'

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lomax Hunter of Waverley, in King George County, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Campbell Stewart Hunter, to Robert Loughridge Adams, of Washington and Framingham, Mass.

Miss Hunter is a graduate of Mary Washington College at Fredericksburg, Va., and also studied at Columbia University. Mr. Adams, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Grafton Adams, of Framingham, is a graduate of Mount Herman School, Mount Herman, Mass., and George Washington University.

The wedding will take place June 24 at Emanuel Church in King George County.

French Envoy Concert Patron

The French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint Quentin, is among the patrons of the concert to be given on Monday evening by the a cappella choir of the First Congregational Church. The program, under the direction of Mrs. Ruby Smith Stahl, will be held at 8:30 at Constitution Hall.

Dr. Hans Thomsen, Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy, is also a patron, and others include Mrs. Edward E. Gann, Mrs. A. Chambers Oliphant, Mrs. Dion Scott Birney, Mrs. Albert Atwood, Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Mrs. Daniel Borden, Mrs. Lyman Briggs, Mrs. Bancroft Davis, Mrs. Ernest E. Danley, Mrs. Avery Coonley, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mrs. Robert H. Fletcher, jr., Mrs. Perry Heath, Mrs. Allard Gasque, Mrs. Harry L. Rust, jr., Mrs. Belshazer Meyer, Mrs. Emmet Gudger and Mrs. Louis M. Prindle.

Mrs. Stahl is in charge of reservations for the concert.

Rep., Mrs. Doughton Vacationing In St. Augustine

Representative and Mrs. Robert L. Doughton are now in St. Augustine, Fla., where they will spend a few days before going on to Miami Beach for a brief vacation. Representative Doughton, who is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, is recuperating from an illness of several weeks.

They are expected to return to Washington the latter part of the month. Their daughter, Miss Reba Doughton, did not accompany them.

Mrs. Meredith On Southern Trip

Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Fred Bohen, are now on a trip through the South. They will spend a few days in Natchez, Miss., where the annual tour of gardens and old houses is a featured attraction in the spring. Then they will go on to New Orleans for a brief stay.

They are expected to return to Washington the middle of the month.

Dorothy Graeves Plights Troth to Don Weber

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Graeves, of 1358 Juniper street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Graeves, to Don Weber, son of Mrs. William F. Weber, of Omaha, Nebr.

The wedding will take place in June.

Washington Society Shuns Effete Cafe Circles for Bowling and Athletic Amusements

WITH "cafe society" practically nonexistent in Washington, members of the younger set find their evening amusement otherwise than donning silver fox capes and trying to get into the path of Jerome Zerbe and his camera. Certainly they are twice as athletic as the New Yorkers who take their only exercise on the dance floor of the Stork Club or El Morocco. One of the main diversions these days is bowling, and every Tuesday a group meets, taking turns at entertaining each other at supper beforehand. Last night Mary Wilson acted as hostess at her home on Kalorama circle.

AMONG those who make every Tuesday "bowling night" are Louise Burke, Betty Shouse, Alice Barry, Ann Wilkinson, Maisie Howard, Anne Cerin, Jane Acheson (when she is not studying at Bennington), Harry Covington, Nathan Barlett, Graham Claytor and a few others. It is not by any means an iron-clad organization, and the "regulars" may bring guests. Bowling takes place at whatever alley is nearest the house of the person giving the dinner.

AT MOST point-to-point races the course is so laid out that half the time the horses are completely out of sight or have to be followed with glasses. If you feel the way we do about equine events, it is quite all right if the horses never come into view but the many people planning to attend the point-to-point races of the Potomac Hunt on Saturday will be glad to know that the course has been laid out in tricky fashion so that one never loses sight of the racers.

Among those who will ride in the races are Mrs. Marshall Exnicios and Crompton Smith, of Middleberg; Laird Dunlap, Harry Semmes, Dr. Fred Sanderson and Talbot Speer, of Baltimore; Jane Kromer, daughter of Gen. Leon Kromer, former chief of Cavalry, and Capt. Frank Whittaker, from Fort Myer. The course is in Maryland, near the National Women's Country Club.

AMONG those lunching at a smart restaurant on Connecticut avenue yesterday we saw Mrs. Jerauld Wright, in a smart black frock with a tiny scarf of chartreuse which exactly matched her large green handbag. Her companion was Betty Hardie, who was also in black, with a becoming pancake hat held with a strap in back. Mrs. Wright is visiting Gen. and Mrs. William Mason Wright, while her husband is with the fleet in the Caribbean. Mrs. Harold Sims, in hunter's green, and Mrs. William Thomas, hatless and wearing sun glasses, were also lunching at different tables.

HELEN DAVIS is the latest to join the ranks of working girls. She is doing occasional stories on assignment for a Boston newspaper and her first job was covering the christening of the Pan-American transatlantic Yankee clipper. This is her first fling at newspaper work, though she formerly had a job with one of the alphabetical agencies.

ROBERT McMANUS has been in town this week on an exciting assignment which we promised not to give away. He and Mrs. McManus formerly made their home here and had a house just over the district line in Maryland. They are living on a 70-acre farm in New Jersey and going in for goat raising! Mrs. McManus did not accompany her husband to Washington because several of the goats are about to become mothers. Mr. McManus has been working on a biography of Albert Wiggin since leaving the Capital.

ODDS AND ENDS: Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hiss have asked a few friends in for supper tonight after the meeting of the Ice Club . . . People are beginning to stream back from Florida. Mrs. James Clement Dunn will return on Saturday and Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean and her entourage are expected back about the first of next month.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull will leave today for a vacation in the South. They have set no date for their return, but it will probably be before the end of the month.

Representative Ralph A. Gamble, of Larchmont, N. Y. is at the Wardman Park Hotel after a visit to his home.

Lee P. Warren, of Washington, is at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York.

Mrs. William Howard Taft has gone to Charleston, S. C. for her annual visit and will be away about six weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Finkelhor are vacationing at Miami Beach for several weeks.

Mrs. Theodore Peyser is spending a week in New York as the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Raiss.

Miss Mary E. Switzer, of Washington, is at the Commodore Hotel in New York. Also staying there from Washington are Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Viehmann.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKinley, of Montreal, are spending several days at the Shoreham en route to Montreal.

Miss Marjorie Coogan, of Washington, is at the Barbison-Plaza Hotel in New York.

Col. and Mrs. H. D. Corbusier, of Plainfield, N. J., are at the Willard. Others stopping there include Maj. M. C. Barroll, of Fort Bragg, N. C., and Capt. W. A. Seavey, of Seattle.

Mrs. Joseph Trew Attends Wedding

Mrs. Joseph Trew, of Washington, attended her sister, Miss Helen Claire Stevens, at the latter's marriage Monday to Joseph Chalmers Hazen, jr. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Stevens, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and the bridegroom's father, the Rev. Mr. Hazen, president of the New Jersey Baptist Convention, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown made with a high winged collar and long sleeves. Her tulle veil was held in place with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white lilacs. Burchard M. Hazen was best man for his brother.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Summit, N. J., where the Rev. and Mrs. Hazen also make their home. The bride is a graduate of Wells College and Mr. Hazen is an alumnus of Princeton University.

Mrs. Joseph Casey Staying at Shoreham

Mrs. Joseph E. Casey has joined Representative Casey at the Shoreham for a stay.

So far her plans are indefinite. She may be here for several weeks or she may join her children, John Dudley and Jane Casey, at their home in Clinton, Mass.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MISS ELIZABETH DAME and Samuel Sands, whose engagement was recently announced, will be married on Saturday, March 11, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at Bishops Memorial Chapel in Baltimore, Md. Only immediate members of the families will be present and the bride will be unattended. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. William Page Dame, of Baltimore, and the late Rev. Dame. The latter was rector of Memorial Episcopal Church and his father, the late Rev. Page Dame, sr., was rector at the same church also. Mr. Sands is the son of Mrs. Richard Whitney, of New York, and the late Samuel S. Sands, sr., also of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel De Butts, of Baltimore, brother-in-law and sister of the bride-to-be, will give an afternoon party in honor of the couple on Friday afternoon. George Whitney, uncle of Mr. Sands, will be host at a large dinner party at the Belvedere Hotel on Friday night, and Mr. and Mrs. Page Dame, brother and sister-in-law of Miss Dame, will fete the couple at a luncheon on Saturday before the wedding.

AMONG THOSE from New York who will attend the wedding are Mrs. Richard Whitney, Miss Alyce Whitney and Miss Nancy Whitney, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and George Whitney.

After their wedding trip, the couple will live on Mr. Sands' farm, Fiddler's Green, near Middleburg.

MRS. DONALD EYSTER, of Charles Town W. Va., will visit Miss Anne Gochnauer at the latter's home in Upperville for the coming week-end. Mrs. Eyster will attend the Point to Point races to be held on Paul Mellon's estate on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Eyster was formerly Miss Phyllis Langhorne, of Charlottesville, and is a niece of Lady Nancy Astor.

Miss Margaret Green, of Richmond, will spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. George Robert Slater, jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Congreve Jackson, of New York, are staying at Welbourne, on their way home from Miami Beach, Fla., where they have been for several weeks.

MRS. GEORGE GAITHER has returned from a visit to Baltimore, where she was the guest of Mrs. Wilson White. Maj. Tom Swann, of Baltimore, and Capt. Black, of Reading, Pa., have been visiting William Stevenson, near Middleburg.

Pilot Club of District Launches Program

Miss Louise Boynton Installed As President of 80th Unit of International Civic Organization

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Pilot Club Editor.

The Pilot Club of Washington formally launched its program last night with an installation dinner at Taft Inn, 1601 K street. Mrs. Ross Collins, wife of Representative Collins, of Mississippi, an honorary member of the Pilot Club of Meridian, Miss., was guest of honor and presided at the installation. Following the ceremony she spoke on the ideals and aims of Pilot International.

Miss Louise Boynton, formerly of Ann Arbor, Mich., who was elected president at the organization meeting, presided at the dinner. Miss Boynton has been connected with the project control division of the Works Progress Administration since 1935 and previous to that was at Brookings Institution as assistant to the editor. She also spent several years in China as a teacher at St. Hilda's School, in Wuchang. She is a graduate of the University of Michigan and a member of Gamma Phi Sorority.

Serving with her are Miss Hilda Marsden, formerly of Georgia, first vice president; Miss Patricia Collins, also formerly of Georgia, second vice president; Miss Frances G. Hindman, of Washington, third vice president; Miss Bonnie Taylor, formerly of Georgia, recording secretary; Miss Helen Hoffman, formerly of Maryland, corresponding secretary; Miss Lois A. White, of Washington, treasurer; Miss Irene Gaston, formerly of Arkansas; Mrs. Mary Malone Moore and Miss Effie May Hammer, formerly of Alabama, and Ina Russell Stacy, formerly of Georgia, directors.

The Pilot Club of Washington is the eightieth club to be organized in Pilot International. It takes its place among the other classified clubs for business and professional women: Zonta, Quota, Soroptimist and Altrusa, all of which have groups in the Capital.

Bethesda School Band To Play for P.-T. A.

The band of Bethesda Elementary School, wearing its new uniforms for the first time, will present part of the program at the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association tonight in the school auditorium.

Miss Mary G. Cross, music supervisor, will talk on "Music in the School." Mrs. Preston Carter Alexander, president of the association, will preside at the business meeting at which final arrangements will be made for the benefit movie to be sponsored Friday and plans discussed for the summer playground.

Business Women Issue Paper

Tabs, a monthly publication devoted to the Business and Professional Women's Club of the District, has made its bow under the editorship of June Puhl. On the editorial committee also are Nell V. Smith, president of the Professional Writers Club; Ann Gilman Paul, Nina M. Schnell and Alice B. Haggett.

On the front page is a message from the president, Nina Kinsella, dedicating Tabs as the official organ of the club. On the editorial page, in addition to editorials designed to point the way to progress for the business woman, are the list of officers and the club calendar for the month.

"The Passing Parade," a page by Nell V. Smith, is full of news about club members and their activities in civic and special affairs.

Committee notes and reports, including those of the health house, finance and international relations committees, appear on the last page with the national legislative program.

The name for the bulletin was selected by a committee including Judge Fay Bentley, Lera Lundquist, program chairman, and Mary Steele Ross.

Berkshire Farm Drive Planned

Mrs. Edward B. Burling this week is sponsoring the eighteenth annual local appeal for funds for the Berkshire Industrial Farm, a private institution for problem boys in the western Berkshire Hills, at Canaan, N. Y.

The Berkshire Farm was started 52 years ago on the site of a former Shaker settlement to save promising but misguided boys from being sent to reformatories or jails when they got into difficulties. It is national and undenominational, taking boys between 11 and 15 years of age. Parents, guardians or friends pledge what they can toward a boy's support and the balance must come from private contributions. The farm's doors have always been open to local boys and is proud of the record made by some of its Washington graduates.

The Berkshire Farm has room for 150 boys, and is usually filled to capacity.

Gifts from $1 and up are solicited by the committee. Checks should be made payable to the Berkshire Industrial Farm and sent directly to the school or to Mrs. Burling at 2900 Benton place northwest.

On the local committee with her indorsing the work of the farm are Dean G. Acheson, Mrs. E. Harold Cluett, Miss Jean M. Cluett, Mrs. Avery Coonley, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming, Mrs. Walter D. Denegre, Mrs. Robert H. Fletcher, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Augustus Garfield, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. William Phillips, Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren.

Gordon Dunthorne Plans Illustrated Lecture Friday

Gordon Dunthorne, author of the recently-published "Flower and Fruit Prints of the Early Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries," will give an illustrated lecture Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at The Book Shop, under the auspices of the League of Women Shoppers. The subject will be "Eighteenth Century Flower and Fruit Gardens and Their Practical Adaptation Today."

Mr. Dunthorne will illustrate his lecture with colored slides, some of which were made in gardens at Williamsburg and at Mount Vernon. His book has been chosen as one of the "50 books of the year" by the American Institute of Graphic Arts.

Proceeds from the lecture will go to assist the striking waitresses of the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria.

Pi Phi Alumnae Plan Card Party For Saturday

The Washington alumnae of Pi Beta Phi Fraternity will sponsor a card party at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Chevy Chase Woman's Club, Connecticut avenue and Dunlop street. Mrs. Thomas Magruder is chairman and Clark Ober vice chairman. A style show will be presented in connection with the card party, with members of the junior group as models. Miss Marie Jorolemon is chairman of the juniors.

Mrs. Richard Hynson, 3435 Thirty-fourth place, will be hostess at the monthly meeting of the alumnae at 8 p. m. next Tuesday. There will be election of officers and discussion of plans for the fiftieth anniversary celebration of Columbia Alpha Chapter, of George Washington University, and the conference April 28 and 29, with headquarters at the Washington Hotel.

Writers' Club To Hear Hogan

The Professional Writers' Club of the Y. W. C. A. will hold its third annual banquet in Barker Hall Saturday evening with Pendleton Hogan, noted author and resident of Washington, as guest speaker. He has selected for his subject, "The Mechanics of Writing," a topic in which he is well versed as the writer of three novels in the past six years—"The Bishop of Havana," "The Dark Comes Early" and "Mortal, Be Proud."

Club members will take part in a comedy written by Sophie Kerr and directed by Blanche Morgan Foote, entitled "They're None of Them Perfect."

The club's March meeting will be held Monday evening, the guest speaker being the noted poet, journalist and literary critic, Charles Edward Russell. Mr. Russell is distinguished as a Pulitzer prize winner for his biography, "The American Orchestra and Theodore Thomas," in 1928.

Junior Mizrachi Plans Annual Donor Banquet

Members of Junior Mizrachi, Washington Chapter, will meet tonight in Beth-El Synagogue to discuss plans for their annual donor banquet, scheduled for mid-May. Practically every form of enterprise, from benefit bridge parties to the selling of novelty jewelry, has been adopted by the members to raise funds for tickets to the banquet. The net receipts will be sent abroad to help finance emigration of young Jewish women and girls to Palestine, and for their education and rehabilitation.

Mrs. Mollye Millicher and Mrs. Pauline M. Gross will be cohostesses at tonight's business meeting.

Anton Lang, Jr., To Speak Here

Mrs. Louis S. Greene is chairman of arrangements for the lecture on the Passion Play, to be given by Anton Lang, jr., on Sunday evening at 8:30 in the parish hall of All Soul's Memorial Church on Cathedral avenue, east of Connecticut. It is sponsored by Unit No. 3 of the Rector's Aid of which Mrs. Dorothy Smallwood is chairman.

Dr. Lang, the son of the late Anton Lang who portrayed the role of Christus in the Passion Play of Oberammergau, will illustrate his lecture with colored slides which will show the customs of the quaint village and present the characters of the play in their everyday life. Finally the entire Passion Play will be shown.

Patronesses for the lecture are: Mrs. H. Clifford Bangs, president of the aid; Mrs. Howell French, Mrs. John W. Burke, Mrs. J. Raymond Hoover, Mrs. Harry Borjes, Mrs. George Lipscomb, Mrs. Fred A. Carter, Mrs. J. R. McCarl, Mrs. William M. Escavaille, jr., Mrs. J. Rupert Mohler, jr., Mrs. Grace Mayo-Witter Evans, Mrs. C. H. Pope, Mrs. Ward Evans and Mrs. Smallwood.

Mrs. Fred A. Carter, of 2943 Benton place, is in charge of the tickets.

Ida Jean Kain To Broadcast On 'Petticoat Lane'

Two radio broadcasts are scheduled Friday for Ida Jean Kain, woman's page columnist of The Post, while she is in Washington. She will be heard on the Petticoat Lane program with Mary Mason from 10:45 to 11 a. m. over Station WRC and will be interviewed by Eleanor Lee on the Aladdin's Kitchen broadcast, from 3 to 3:30 p. m. over WJSV.

Miss Kain, who writes "Your Figure, Madame," will come to the Capital tomorrow to address the annual banquet of the D. C. Dietetics Association and she will be introduced by Mrs. Helen Burns, chief dietitian at Walter Reed Hospital, president of the association.

A. A. U. W. to Hear Talk on Democracy

"Can England Maintain Her Democracy" will be the subject of a lecture tonight at the A. A. U. W. clubhouse by Leslie Watson Fearn, of London. It will follow a dinner sponsored by the International Relations Department, of which Mrs. Donaldson is chairman.

The script of the picture, "Triumph," which Mr. Fearn wrote, produced and took part in as an experimental educational film, was shown to large audiences last week-end at Pierce Hall. He is head of the Schola Vita in London, designed to educate adults in co-operative action necessary to democracy.

Among guests of honor will be Dr. Charles Roban, head of the film project of the American Council of Education; Arch Mercey, assistant director of the U. S. Film Council; Mrs. Mercey and Dr. Dorothy Sells, of Brookings Institution.

Village Forms Mother's Forum

A Friday morning forum for the Mothers Club of Colonial Village will be launched this week by Mrs. C. E. Lovewell, new director of recreation for the village. The club will meet in the large ballroom in the Community Building.

A number of employed girls and women have signed up for the Colonial Village Business Women's Athletic Club, which has been granted the use of the gymnasium for certain periods each week.

Mrs. Stanton Moore has organized a sewing class for small girls and cooking is to be added to the curriculum.

Kappa Phi Epsilon Hears Talk by Nina Kinsella

Alpha Chapter of Kappa Phi Epsilon legal sorority was addressed last night by Miss Nina Kinsella at its meeting in the assembly hall of Southeastern University.

Miss Kinsella, who is president of the Washington Business and Professional Women's Club, discussed the work of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, with which she is connected as executive assistant to the director.

The program was one of a series arranged for the sorority by the education program committee under the chairmanship of Miss Mary Passerini.

Friends School Sponsors Ballet

The Patrons' Auxiliary of Sidwell Friends School is sponsoring two performances of the Washington Ballet Company which are to be given at the school Saturday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Ernest H. Gruening is general chairman of the auxiliary, which includes the parents of pupils of the school.

There will be a matinee for children at 3:30. Lisa Gardiner, director of the ballet, will explain the story to be unfolded in the ballet number.

The evening program will include vignettes of the dance, and Miss Gardiner will talk on the history of the dance.

Among those who have taken tickets for the performances are Mr. and Mrs. William O. Douglas, Dr. and Mrs. A. Wilson Compton, Capt. and Mrs. Emmet C. Gudger, Col. and Mrs. Harry C. Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Leon M. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Norment, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Felix Morley, Mrs. Bryan Battey, Mr. and Mrs. T. Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

MRS. SAIDIE ORR DUNBAR, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, was an honor guest and speaker Monday at the fifty-first anniversary luncheon of the Sorosis Club, held at the Waldorff-Astoria in New York. She spoke on "Today's Enlarged Opportunities" before the organization, which was responsible for starting the Federation of Women's Clubs 50 years ago.

Yesterday, following a conference with a group interested in radio programs for children, Mrs. Dunbar left for Des Moines, Iowa, to attend a meeting of the board of the Iowa Federation of Women's Clubs and a session of the Iowa Tuberculosis Association.

She will return to Washington Sunday and is scheduled to address the Park View Woman's Club Tuesday and the Woman's Club of Newport News, Va., on Friday.

Her schedule calls for a trip to Missouri to attend a conference on consumer education, April 3, 4 and 5, at Stephens College, and to Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Virginia and Pennsylvania, before leaving, April 27, for San Francisco to conduct the council meeting of the General Federation in May. This will be followed by an Alaskan tour of the council delegates, which Mrs. Dunbar will lead, lecturing on points of interest along the way.

At the end of this strenuous program, her reward will be ten days at her home in Portland, where she will be with her daughter, son-in-law and young grandson. Her son, Allan Dunbar, has spent the past four months at headquarters with her.

Mrs. Dunbar's message to the clubs she addresses is to choose a live, vital subject for work and study. Every community, she says, offers civic and welfare problems which are a challenge to the club women seeking worthwhile projects for their organizations. "At the risk of being a Billy Sunday," she is preaching service and urging clubs to see every undertaking through to a successful finish, she says.

MISS MARY J. PEARCE, 4108 Garrison sereet, will be represented by her poem "Preference" in the World's Fair Anthology of 1939, to be published by the Exhibition Press, of New York City. Her work has previously appeared in the Paebar Anthology of Verse, the Blue Moon, poetry magazine of which Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, president of the D. C. Branch of the League of American Women, is editor, and Miss Mattie Richards Tyler, associate editor; The Circle, and Phi Delta Gamma Journal.

Miss Pearce is a graduate of the University of Chattanooga, and has done graduate work at George Washington University. She is a member of the A. A. U. W., Chevy Chase Woman's Club, Chapter O of the P. E. O. and is national treasurer of Phi Delta Gamma Sorority.

WILLIAM E. DODD, jr., son of the former Ambassador to Germany, will address the Junior Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives Relief Society tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Jewish Community Center. Tillie Norwood, president of the group, will preside.

THE REGULAR business meeting of the Congressional Club this morning at 10:30 at the clubhouse, 2001 New Hampshire avenue, will be followed by a book review by Mrs. Donald H. McLean, of New Jersey. She will discuss George Fielding Elliot's "Ramparts We Watch." Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

THE TALK by Mrs. Concha Romero James, director of cultural relations for the Pan American Union, which was to have been given under the auspices of the education committee of the A. A. U. W. tonight has been postponed until next Wednesday. Mrs. James has just returned from South America where she attended the Lima Conference and the Conference on Cultural Relations at Santiago, Chile, and will describe her observations.

D. A. R. Group To Meet at Christ Church

Old Christ Church, 620 G street southeast, one of the oldest churches in the District, will be the scene of the next meeting of the State historical research committee, Daughters of the American Revolution, tomorrow. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 in the parish hall of the church, to be followed by a brief service in the church.

During the visit to the church, the Rev. Edward Gabler, rector, will deliver a lecture tracing the history of the church from 1794, when the charter was first received and services were held in an old tobacco barn, up to the present time. The old records, which are complete as to marriages, baptisms and deaths of members of the parish during these years, are being copied by members of the parish during these years are being copied by members of Livingston Manor Chapter, D. A. R.

All Members May Attend

Mrs. Tonnis J. Helzberg, chairman of the historical research committee, has announced that all members of the D. A. R. are invited to attend the meeting.

The church building in which the meeting will be held was completed in 1807. The old Communion service, presented to the church in 1826, will be on display Thursday. On the records of the parish are the names of many of the prominent early presidents of the District, whose descendants are influential in the civic life of the Capital today.

Monroe Chapter To Celebrate

The President Monroe Chapter of the D. A. R. will celebrate its twenty-eighth birthday on Saturday evening, at the home of Mrs. Maud Walton, 3100 Q street northwest.

Among the St. Patrick's Day decorations will be a large green hat into which chapter members will place as birthday gifts to the chapter, pennies numbering the years of their age.

Miss Nance Clower, a well known concert pianist, will come from Woodstock, Va., as guest artist. Mrs. Alma Cox Harkness, a member of the chapter, will give impersonations.

There will be a supper with a birthday cake lighted with 28 candles. Miss Cornelia Hamilton will act as toastmistress. Mrs. Z. Lewis Dalby, regent of the chapter, will respond to the toast, "President Monroe," and Miss Laura Ruff, chapter delegate and historian, will give a short history of the chapter. Each of the guests of honor will bring a brief greeting. Among those who have accepted invitations to the party are Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, honorary vice president general; Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general; Miss Lillian Chenoweth, State regent, and other State officers; Mrs. Colfax Grove, Miss Luella Chase, Mrs. Katherine Strong, and Mrs. Jacobs.

The hostesses will be Mrs. Adele Cox, Mrs. Alma Cox Harkness, Miss Grierson, Miss Louise Bercaw, Mrs. Nancy Dunlap Scott, and Mrs. Jessie Scott Arnold.

Wheaton College Club Will Meet Tonight

"Wheaton Night" will be observed this evening by the District of Columbia Wheaton Club at its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Julian Salomon, 3921 Fulton street northwest.

The program is in charge of Miss Martha Freeman and members will compare notes on the college as it was in the past and as it is at present.

Writers' League to Meet

The Writers League of Washington will meet at Thomson School tomorrow at 8 p. m. The president, Mrs. Elizabeth Aldrich, will preside, and "Story Plots" will feature the evening's program.

Supreme Court May Rule on Salary Tax

Hints Clarification Needed Even if Bill Loses in Congress

Liability of Federal employes to State income taxes and vice versa may be established through a Supreme Court decision, Justice Stone suggested yesterday, even if Congress fails to pass pending legislation which would end the reciprocal immunity.

"It has been a tacit assumption," Justice Stone noted, "that a tax on Government salaries is a tax on the Government itself. If we find that this isn't true should we not correct this doctrine whether Congress does or not?"

House Has Passed Bill

The House already has adopted a bill, backed by President Roosevelt, to permit the Federal and State governments to tax salaries paid by the other. The measure has been approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

"There is a serious question," however, Justice Frankfurter contended, "whether Congress has the power to withdraw" the present immunity. State taxation of Federal salaries might affect the "imputed dignity" of the President and his Cabinet, the newest member of the court asserted.

Frequent observations from the bench marked the conclusion of hearings on the second of two cases involving the right of States to tax the incomes of Federal employes and, inferentially, the power of the Federal Government to tax salaries of State employes.

Utah Defends Action

Irvin Arnovitz, chairman of the Utah State Tax Commission, defending that body's action in taxing the salary of an RFC counsel, told the tribunal that such Federal agencies as the RFC do not exercise essential functions of government.

Appearing in his own behalf, W. Q. Van Cott, RFC counsel in Salt Lake City, declared that the distinction between essential and non-essential functions of a State government cannot be applied to the Federal Government.

D. C. Court Kills $200,000 Libel Suit Against Collier

A prime collection of Indian relics, arrowheads, blankets, baskets and tons of pamphlets was lost to the judicial world yesterday when Justice Luhring dismissed the $200,000 libel action brought by Frederick G. Collett, secretary of an Indian organization, against John Collier, Indian commissioner. The souvenirs were to have been evidence.

Justice Luhring ruled that when Collier criticized Collett in the Government publication, Indians at Work, he was acting in his official capacity and could not be sued personally.

Alpha Chi to Plan Meeting

Plans for the first annual regional convocation of the Alpha Chi Rho Club of Washington, to be held March 18 in Baltimore with the Johns Hopkins University Chapter as host, will be formulated tomorrow at a dinner at 2929 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Dr. Scandiffio Is Elected Group Health Medical Director

New Head Will Continue in Charge Of Children's Work; Has Been With Clinic Since Its Beginning

Election of Dr. Mario Scandiffio as medical director of Group Health Association was announced yesterday by Dr. C. G. Garman, president.

Dr. Scandiffio will continue in charge of children's work at the G. H. A. clinic, Dr. Garman said. The new medical director, acting head since the resignation of Dr. Raymond E. Selders, January 23, has been connected with the Federal employes' clinic since it was launched in October, 1937.

Expelled from the District Medical Society last year as a result of affiliation with G. H. A., Dr. Scandiffio has an appeal pending before the American Medical Association.

Dr. Garman also announced election of Miss Edith Rockwood, Labor Department, to the board to replace John Ballard, retired.

It has been decided that applications will be received from employes in any agency of the executive branch of the Government, Dr. Garman asserted.

'Picture Man to Presidents,' 83, Says He'll Never Retire

J. B. MOORE

Chester Arthur Once Held Frame While Moore Drove the Nail; Mrs. Hoover Ordered 250 Articles

[This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding that so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.]

By Gerald G. Gross.

People are still beating a path to the door of John Benson Moore, indicating that there may be something to the old saw about a better mousetrap.

Though he is a picture framer, not a mousetrap constructor, Mr. Moore has succeeded in attracting thousands, from President's wives to obscure artists, to his little shop which is so hidden away that a diagram or personal guide is required to reach it.

In the "Moore Galleries," on the alley betwene Jackson place and Seventeenth street, yesterday the 83-year-old owner and operator disclosed his philosophy of life.

"Philosophy? That's an important sounding word," said the white-haired artisan, for whom President Chester Arthur once held a picture while he drove a nail. "All I can say in that regard is that I intend to keep at this work as long as I live and that I'll keep on enjoying it."

Picture Man to Presidents

Andrew Johnson was in the White House when 13-year-old John Benson Moore framed his first picture to receive paternal approval—his father was a farmer before him—but it was not until Grant's second Administration that he became the "picture man to Presidents."

Since that time his client list has been a "Who's Who in Washington." From Grant, Hayes and Garfield down through Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt, he has received White House commissions, and Supreme Court justices, diplomats, art connoisseurs and other dignitaries who have been, and are, his customers.

Biggest Order Hoover's

His biggest single order? Mrs. Herbert Hoover having him frame 250 pictures of the then President.

His most cherished letter? That from Mary Custis Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, in which she thanked him for art work.

The most valuable item he ever worked on? The Gilbert Stuart portrait of George Washington at the Masonic Memorial in Alexandria.

A native of Pennsylvania, he came here at the age of 10. For the last 27 years he has been in business for himself, always in the same alley.

Southeast Groups Ask Auditorium

Citizens Urge City Building Be Placed In Their Section On River Bank

Southeast Council and Randle Heights Citizens Association last night urged erection of the proposed city auditorium in the southeast section of the city. Taxes, suffrage and traffic were also discussed at four citizens' meetings.

Southeast Council

Construction of a bridge or tunnel at the end of South Capitol street was advocated by Southeast Council of Citizens Associations. The group favored an auditorium on the banks of the Anacostia river, at the foot of East Capitol street.

John Nolen, jr., of the Park and Planning Commission, discussed plans for the proposed development of the eastern section of the city. Resolutions favored a larger Federal contribution toward the expenses of the District and control of municipal affairs by local residents.

Randle Highlands

Opposition was voiced to the stationing of numerous taxicabs at Union Station Plaza.

The organization voted to commend "strongly" Capt. Hugh H. Groves and the men of the Eleventh Precinct station in handling heavy traffic during the visit here of the Yankee Clipper.

Support of the Overton formula for measuring the Federal contribution to the expenses of the District and of a bill granting representation in Congress to residents of the District also was voted.

Resolutions asked the Police Department to note the "large number" of cars operating with one headlight or glaring beams, and opposed gasoline tax increase.

Columbia Heights

Columbia Heights Citizens Association voted to censure the Board of Education for rescinding its order banning the appearance of Marian Anderson, colored singer, from Central High School.

A committee on the Griffenhagen District government plan opposed the program unless provision is made for popular election of members to the legislative body proposed in the report.

Other resolutions adopted reaffirmed the association's indorsement of a race track, and backed Senator Capper's bill for a District public defender, and a bill restricting immigration from Europe.

Dr. A. B. Smith sponsored a resolution asking Congress to appropriate $30,000 for drawing plans for a building to replace Wilson Teachers' College.

North Cleveland Park

North Cleveland Park Citizens Association voted against Senator Sheppard's resolution to investigate liquor retailers in the District with a view to replacing them with Government dispensaries. John J. Crim, of the District of Columbia Dispensary Association, and Manny Davis, attorney for the Package Stores, spoke.

On a motion by John S. Stern, the association opposed erection of a library in the John Marshall Place Municipal Center, recommending instead establishment of more branch libraries. John Bresnahan was appointed chairman of a committee to help the Metropolitan Police Boys Club in its drive for funds.

2 Accidents At Same Corner

Two accidents at the same intersection brought scout cars from two precincts at the same time last night.

Gus Pappas, 24, 810 Farragut street northwest, was injured when his automobile hit a street car at Fourteenth and Farragut streets northwest. Richard Page, jr., 20, of 719 Hamilton street northwest, received a broken leg when struck by an auto as he was crossing the street.

23 Weeks Of Symphony Guaranteed

Workers, Members Of Orchestra Pledge $103,000 to Pay Season Expense

One hundred and seventy-five volunteer workers and members of the National Symphony Orchestra Association last night underwrote funds for a 23-week symphony season in 1939-40 in an "emergency" meeting at the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The 23-week season was agreed upon after L. Corrin Strong, vice chairman of the sustaining funds campaign, said "only a miracle" would make possible the raising of $111,000 necessary for a 25-week program, original goal of the campaign.

Urged $103,000 Guarantee

Harold A. Brooks, director of the association, urged the meeting to guarantee the $103,000 necessary for the shortened season and "save remaining resources" for a summer Watergate season.

The decision to abandon the original goal of the campaign was reached only after opposition by several members who urged continuance of the drive, if necessary with a postponed opening for the orchestra.

Mrs. Edna Ellis Hilton, chairman of the elementary school committee, urged renewed efforts to raise the $111,000 for the longer season declaring "we must progress, not stand still or go backward." She personally guaranteed $500 for the campaign.

Deficit of $7,728

Mrs. Foster Adams, chairman of the women's business committee, said the $111,000 could be raised if "no stone was left unturned." Further contributions could be raised from suburban areas which had not been completely covered she declared.

After voting for the 23-week season, with further efforts directed toward the financing of the Watergate series, members and workers underwrote pledges of $1,245. This raised the campaign total to $103,272, leaving a deficit of $7,728.

Strong will today ask the Musicians' Protective Union, bargaining agent for the members of the symphony to accept a new contract for a 23-week series to make a 1939-40 season possible.

$6,158 Reported In Church Drive

Cash and pledges totaling $6,158 were reported last night in the Federation of Churches' financial drive. The goal is $18,165.

Veterans Told To Help Keep Americanism

Lundeen Stresses Need; Rep. Hancock Address Geo. Washington Post

True Americanism will only be saved by the active participation of World War veterans in public affairs, Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Laborite), of Minnesota, last night told the members of Vincent B. Costello Post No. 15, of the American Legion.

"Willingness of veterans to engage actively in the conduct of public affairs will insure the preservation of Americanism and democracy," he told the group meeting at the Carlton Hotel.

Senator Lundeen also stressed the importance of the present rearmament program, but added he was in favor of "efficient and planned preparedness as well as large rearmament appropriations."

Frank Norton, vice commander, presided at the meeting of Costello Post. James Pistorio, chairman of the Army Day committee, also spoke urging members to take an active part in the observance to be held April 6.

Union of all veterans organizations into one national association was urged by Representative Hancock (Republican), of New York, at a meeting of George Washington Post No. 1, of the legion.

Speaking at a twentieth anniversary session of the post, he declared, "With world affairs in their present serious state, it is regrettable that veterans' organizations are splitting into racial groups.

"We should all just be American veterans," he added.

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries cut the three-tierd birthday cake with the sword he received upon his graduation from West Point.

1,000 Applaud Thomas Hint Of Rep. Barton for President

News Commentator Lectures at Benefit For Central Union Mission and Children's Emergency Home in Constitution Hall

Representative Barton (Republican), of New York, heard a strong hint of support for his nomination in the 1940 presidential race last night from Lowell Thomas, traveler and news commentator, and an audience of nearly 1,000 at Constitution Hall last night.

Introduced by the New Yorker, Thomas got loud applause with the opening remark, "I am grateful for the honor of being introduced by Bruce Barton in Constitution Hall, and I hope next year to be able to repay the compliment by introducing him—or proposing his name—in a place called 'Convention Hall.'"

The occasion was a benefit lecture and concert for the Central Union Mission and Children's Emergency Home. Homer Rodeheaver, once song leader for the evangelist Billy Sunday, was master of ceremonies and contributed several songs, assisted by the Rainbow quartet.

His sister, Mrs. Ruth Rodeheaver Thomas, friend but no relation of Lowell Thomas, and the Marjorie Webster School Glee Club also sang.

Thomas divided his lecture between an account of experiences as a radio commentator and a demonstration that "the age of romance and adventure has not passed, and there are still giants that walk the earth today."

In support of this assertion he recounted the story of Capt. Hubert Berkeley, the "King of Pygmyland," who left his regal home in the Malay jungle to fight in the World War at the age of 60. He told also of "Billy" Hughes, war-time prime minister of Austria, who started as an umbrella mender in Melbourne, Australia.

'State' Liquor Stores Urged Here

State-owned liquor stores are "extremely popular" with the public in Pennsylvania and Ohio, Fraser Gardner, vice president of the District Liquor Dispensary Association, declared yesterday on his return from a survey he made in the two States.

The State stores are dignified, and lacking the huge liquor signs one is confronted with throughout Washington, they in no way can offend even the most rabid 'dry,'" he said.

He charged that 1,685 children have been arrested for drunkeness in the District since repeal.

Capital News In Brief

At 4923 Georgia avenue northwest, Roman Poston, 32, colored, of 498 L street southwest, attempted to pass a picket line of two men while delivering a load of ice cream. The pickets, Henry Matthews, 25, colored, 304 L street southwest, and John Thomas Boswell, 21, 308 E street northeast, engaged in a scuffle with him and all were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. Bond was set at $15.

At the store at Eighth and F streets, Stanley S. Dodd, a truck driver, of 629 Seventh street northeast, and three assistants complained to police that they were assaulted and beaten by pickets.

Early this morning windows of two High's ice cream stores were smashed within 10 minutes at 1331 B street northeast and Tenth and C street southeast.

Messenger Robbed

Junius Jones, drugstore messenger who lives in the 1700 block of U street northwest, was robbed of $15 by three colored men last night in the 1900 block of New Hampshire avenue northwest.

Two Injured by Wood

John Murray, 32, of the 300 block of Ninth street southwest, received cuts on the forehead when a pile of wood fell on him in the woodyard at Second and L streets southeast.

Derwood Williams, 16, of the 800 block of Thirteenth street southeast, also was struck on the head by flying wood while chopping kindling.

Last Grade Crossing Goes

U. S. Bureau of Public Roads approval of plans to eliminate the Bates road railroad crossing, last grade crossing in the District, was announced yesterday by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director.

Bids for the project, on which $300,000 in Federal funds is to be spent, will be asked this week, Whitehurst said. The elimination has been designated in plans as the Taylor street viaduct, but will do away with the Bates road crossing of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks, one of the worst death-traps in the city.

Senator Holt in Bed

Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), West Virginia, has been in bed at home for two days with an attack of influenza, it was learned last night. His physician last night reported "some improvement."

Fire Chief Promotes Two Captains

Allan and Murphy Are Advanced to Battalion Chief Rank

Newly appointed Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter yesterday promoted two captains to the rank of battalion chief as his first official act. The new battalion chiefs are Capt. J. W. Allan, of No. 28 Engine Company, and Capt. Clement Murphy, who will head the drill school.

Both veteran firemen have had colorful careers and earned numerous citations for bravery in action.

Allan, 56, is a native of Morrisville, Va. He joined the force in 1904. He was promoted to sergeant in 1923, lieutenant in 1926 and captain in 1936.

For the last 25 years he has been assigned with the fire detail at the D. A. R. congress in Constitution Hall, and has been with the White House reception detail since the Taft Administration. He also was on special duty for three months during the disarmament conference here in 1920.

Battalion Chief Allen, who fills the vacancy created by the promotion of B. W. Weaver to deputy chief, is an active Mason, and a director of the Firemen's Retirement Club. With his wife, Mae, he lives at 1022 Twenty-sixth street northwest.

Murphy, who is 38, served as assistant drillmaster under Fire Chief Porter and will now take over the full duties. Since entering the fire department in 1919, his rise has been rapid: Acting sergeant, 1926; sergeant, 1928; lieutenant, 1931; captain, 1932.

He participated in the rescue work during the Knickerbocker Theater disaster and won a citation for his work during the Kann warehouse blaze. He has been hurt 13 times in action.

Murphy, who is single, and lives at 1414 V street northwest, is a member of the Knights of Columbus and of the legislative and aeronautics committees of the District American Legion, Police and Fire Post.

Federal Employes To Meet Tomorrow

A mass meeting to discuss the legislative program for Government employes will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Labor Department auditorium, Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue northwest.

Speakers will be Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York; Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia; James Carey, C. I. O. secretary; Jacob Baker, president, and Eleanor Nelson, secretary-treasurer, of the United Federal Workers of America.

'Fast and Loose' Lives Up to Title to Letter

Montgomery and Russell Star in New Film; Belasco Changes Bookings and Dates; News Items and Gossip of Amusements

THE DRAMA DESKS yesterday afternoon were regaled by a preview screening of a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer item called "Fast and Loose," costarring Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell. The title is an adroit one. Most of the action is fast and much of the characterization and dialogue is loose. The combination, however, manages to compile an hour or so of entertainment that undoubtedly will enlist the interest of the cash customers when it opens on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday.

BELL

"Fast and Loose" is a sequel to the earlier "Fast Company," with Mr. Montgomery succeeding to the role of the rare-book enthusiast and part-time detective originally created by Melvyn Douglas. Mr. Montgomery makes a suave, debonair and unbelievably cool and self-contained sleuth, even when he is gazing nonchalantly down the ominous barrel of a Colt .45. Miss Russell, as the jealous, devoted, flittery and occasionally annoying wife, plays in a comedy vein that quite matches the carefree and immensely imperturbable performance of her costar.

Not to disclose too much of the plot, it still might be confided that "Fast and Loose" concerns itself with the theft of a priceless Shakespeare manuscript, a forged copy, a few murders, the ugly machinations of a big-shot racketeer and his blood-thirsty henchmen and Joel Sloane's complacent willingness to beard them all in their respective dens. A very rich family is involved in all this and some of its members are a little on the shady side. But you won't guess the real culprit in the whole tempestuous business until Master Sloane turns him up at the very end of the picture.

The piece is heavily coated with hokum, but, as we have said many times before, "hokum" is merely a convenient slang name for the surefire qualities of drama that audiences have demonstrated they like best. So what? So you ought to get a considerable "bang" out of "Fast and Loose," if you can do with infrequent spurts of dialogue that seemed to these ears not always as scintillant as it thought it was being.

Incomprehensible things are always bobbing up in the life of a drama editor. The most recent one to slap this desk in the face is the inexplicable and indefensible omission of mention of Shirley Booth among the members of the cast who did most to make "The Philadelphi Story" an enlivening evening in the theater in yesterday morning's review of the Philip Barry play starring Katharine Hepburn at the National. Miss Booth should have been acclaimed for a sprightly and amusing interpretation of a role that encompasses some of the brightest lines in the play. I trust the lapse of a hurried midnight scramble with the deadline is hereby rectified.

There is danger in propinquity. RKO-Keith's Theater having recently juggled the opening date of its next picture from tonight to tomorrow night, its nearest neighbor, the Belasco, now does the same thing.

Instead of presenting Danielle Darrieux in "Abused Confidence," beginning today, as originally announced, the Belasco will continue "With a Smile," starring Maurice Chevalier, through Friday. There is a reason.

By one of those sudden booking office quirks, the Belasco has secured the Washington first run of Paramount's picturization of ". . . one-third of a nation . . ." starring Sylvia Sidney and Leif Erikson. The Capital is already familiar with the character and content of the play from the Washington Civic Theater's fine performance of it on the stage at Wardman Park. The film version, made in the East, has been highly acclaimed by those who have seen it.

". . . one-third of a nation . . ." will open at the Belasco on Saturday and demonstrate what can be done on the screen with a "living newspaper."

So from Andrea Leeds, one of the most charming and most gracious of the Hollywood stars lending their presence to the President's Birthday Celebrations in the Capital, comes a brief note from the Samuel Goldwyn lot, expressing her delight at having been here and saying many other kind things, including this paragraph: "With the studio after me every minute and rushing me from a test to a fitting to a script reading, there has been no time before this even to write this brief note. However, believe me, I am honestly grateful for all you did." Some time I mean to write a piece about how Miss Leeds was deflected from a writing career to one of acting and how she still clings to writing as her favorite avocation. It is an interesting story, confided to me in a long talk at the gold plate breakfast.

The final period was just being punched onto the end of that last sentence when the following telegram arrived from Dick Maney, one of the de luxer of the theater's stentors, dated yesterday in New York:

"Maurice Evans' production of 'Henry IV' will play its final performance at the St. James Theater in New York on Saturday night, April 1, when it will have had a run of 73 performances, the longest ever enjoyed by Shakespeare's historical comedy either here or abroad. Mr. Evans and his company then will recess until the following Saturday afternoon, when they will open a short tour with the performance of the full-length 'Hamlet' at the Bushnell Memorial Auditorium, Hartford, following it with a performance of 'Henry IV' that night. Thereafter, Mr. Evans will play two weeks at the Shubert Theater, Boston, and a week at the National Theater, Washington. In both Boston and Washington the uncut 'Hamlet' will be played for six performances within the week, while 'Henry IV' will be played on Wednesday and Saturday nights only."

If that isn't something to look forward to, I don't know what might be.

Why-Dream-of-Utopia Note

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., March 7.—Was I startled going into my favorite colonial drive-in the other day, to find myself parked next to an ocelot, no less. But it was securely tied to its owner, Sigrid Gurie, who assured me it was tame. Whoever heard of a tame wildcat?

HEDDA HOPPER

Adolphe Menjou was having pictures taken with Ginger Rogers and Rosalind Russell. "Come, come, boy," he complained. "My time is worth money these days. I'm a free lance player."

After all these years, Frank Morgan has arrived. A letter from Brooklyn states an admirer has started a fan club, with three members. Well, you're two up on me, Frank. No, my mother didn't start mine!

A boy ran up to Harry Ritz as he came out of the preview of "The Flying Irishman" at the Paramount Theater and asked if Corrigan was there. "No," cracked Harry. "He went to Warner's up the street, by mistak.."

Douglas Corrigan was a grease monkey when he came to Hollywood and he's still a grease monkey. He's one lad who didn't go Hollywood, but stuck to his hamburger-and-coffee diet all the while he was making his picture. Isn't at all interested in a movie career, but will accept one of the airplane factory offers made him, and probably forget the whole incident. Wish all celebrities were as sensible. They'd save themselves and Hollywood a lot of grief.

Bob Montgomery's five and one-half year old daughter, Elizabeth, has been learning to ride. The other morning her mount went down. But the mud-spattered child insisted on riding him back to the stables, and calmly informed her mother, "I fell down, Mother, but you can't blame it all on me. The horse fell down, too."

Many gals in town will be relieved to know that 20th-Fox's Technicolor short taken at the "Little Princess" preview turned out okay. Joan Crawford was the only one who noticed it was that kind of camera, and tried to duck. But she was already in the film—she looks swell. Others who would have died if they'd known they were in Technicolor, were Hedy Lamarr, Anita Louise, Annabella and Virginia Bruce.

Ian Hunter got permission from Metro to go to the races for the afternoon. On the way there he had a flat tire. The minute he landed he was paged. Studio needed him back to say one line. In a well-you-can-imagine-what mood, Hunter thundered onto the set with: "Well, what's the line?" It was, "Thanks for a wonderful afternoon."

Actors who think they're "big shots," could take lessons from Bing Crosby. A memo has gone out to Universal's advertising department, to wit: Never use the name of Bing Crosby as a star without his written consent.

Since they both received awards for the same picture, it might interest you to know that for "Jezebel," Fay Bainter's salary was larger than Bette Davis.' And for Fay's next she'll get only a measly sum of $4,500 per week.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY AND ROSALIND RUSSELL as they appear in the costellar roles of "Fast and Loose," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sleuthing picture opening on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday. Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

By International News Service.

Hollywood, March 7.—Long before Vivien Leigh's Scarlett O'Hara is ready for Mr. and Mrs. John Public to see, American fans will pass judgment on her in "St. Martin's Lane," a movie she made with Charles Laughton. This, my friends, is just one of the Laughton pictures Paramount is planning to release. There is "Jamaica Inn," based on the popular novel, with the rotund Mr. Laughton and his protege, Maureen O'Hara. She is also in "The Admirable Crichton," starring Charlie and his wife, Elsa Lanchester.

LOUELLA PARSONS

The deal, a whopping big one made with Mayflower, includes all the Laughton and Erich Pommer productions. "The Beachcomber," which went over big, is one of the number. Paramount has the privilege of releasing all these movies everywhere but in Great Britain.

Mrs. Tone's temperamental son, Franchot, is flirting with M-G-M. I couldn't be more surprised than to hear that Franchot is seriously considering a return to the studio he said he was so glad to leave. But wise men change their minds, fools, never, and he'd be a silly boy indeed not to sign a contract, for in spite of all his nonsense, he's one of the best actors who ever came to Hollywood. I'm told entre nous that he'd like M-G-M to buy "Gentle People," the play in which he is now appearing, but I hope they will turn a deaf ear to that pleading. While the few might like it, it won't have any more appeal to the general public than did Robert Montgomery in "Night Must Fall," featuring another unpleasant character.

Imagine Jimmy Stewart in a long bob playing an artistic maestro of the fiddle in a little opus titled "Music Is My Fate!" Sounds more like a believe-it-or-not, but my pals at M-G-M assure me with a straight face that the lanky Jimmy is perfect for this biography of Musician David Mannes. You may or may not know that Mannes is the protege of Walter Damrosch, who later married the great conductor's daughter, Clare. In New York they founded a musical "settlement" where poor young musicians were encouraged, and they played concerts for the lowbrows. Well, at least it should be something new for Jimmy, which is probably what Jack Cummings has in mind.

While everyone was very noncommittal on the Columbia lot today, I heard from another source that Cary Grant, who bowed out of "Our Wife" may get the lead in "Arizona" Wesley Ruggles wants him and Cary wants the job, so all it needs now is for Monsieur Harry Cohn to say yes. If Harry isn't too miffed at Cary for not playing in "Our Wife," he won't refuse, for Cary is money in the box office and the combination with Wesley Ruggles should be plenty good. So here is waitfor the Cohn decision.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Elsa Maxwell brings a new game to Hollywo called "Likes and Dislikes." She kept Merle Oberon's dinner guests amused all evening introducing it; Hedy LaMarr and bridegroom Gene Markey swamped with congratulations from their friends at Merle's farewell party; combination of the week is Freddie Bartholomew tripping the light fantastic with Ella Logan at the Victor Hugo. Before you get too excited, Aunt Cissie was with Freddie and Ella was in another party; Inez Robb, Hearst writer, has gone to Palm Springs for a few days' rest after her strenuous week-end in Hollywood. But she's returning to give us her Hollywood impressions in a special story; Rosalind Russell and Mrs. Bello lunching together. Mrs. Bello, who is very slender now, looks so much like her daughter, little Jean Harlow.

What has happened to Vicki Lester and Dick Purcell's plans to marry? He is seen everywhere now with Gertrude Niesen; Jane Wyman and Billy Seymour, Isabel Jewell, back with Owen Crump, all listening to Maxine Sullivan at the Lamaze; two stars of yesterday, Dorothy Sebastian and Buster Keaton talking things over at Grace Hayes' lodge; Illona Massey and Sam Matz, looking on, oh, so happy, an interesting pair at Marcel's; Bill Powell received a royal welcome on the M. G. M. lot today when he made his first appearance after being away for over a year; Dolores Del Rio has accepted the Mexican Consul's invitation to be guest of honor at a bull fight in Tia Juana Sunday; Lawrence Olivier heads for New York tomorrow for the Katharine Cornell play; Countess di Frassso hostess at a party tomorrow night honoring the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland; the Sidney Kents are basking in the desert sunshine at La Quinta; Jack Benny is also there and Brian Aherne flew down in his own plane to visit friends.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, March 7.

". . . What dear? . . . You'd like to rent this summer-place near Ossining? . . . But that's near Sing Sing? . . . Oh, no . . . We won't raise our child that way . . . We should do it by degrees. After all, he's still young . . . Let's first rent a place near a boys' reformatory . . . G'night."

12 P. M.: "I feel sorry for Jimmy Hines," states Mrs. Arthur Flegenheimer, widow of Dutch Schultz, at Tony's. "He should've quit long ago. I'm sorry for any man who doesn't quit soon enough. Arthur didn't quit soon enough. He wanted to, but they wouldn't let him. . . . I don't know whether or not Hines really is guilty. But I do know that my husband must have had political pull" . . . "I just left left Frank Buck," a ringsider reports at the Cotton Club." Phil Plant, who is financing Buck's exhibit for the fair, now is in Africa, getting animals. It's a funny thing. Buck is in New York, but his backer is bringing 'em back alive" . . . "The ABC Board suspended a Park avenue liquor store for selling liquor on credit," a detective informs at La Cava. "One of the persons to whom the owner extended credit is one of the highest judicial officers in the State."

1 A. M.: "And there we were, in Kanya, Africa, shooting lions and tigers, etc.," relates Mrs. Tommy Shevlin at the Monte Carlo. "Come up to our house," her companion invites. "We've got some ferocious alleycats for you to shoot at" . . . "Look at the movie star," Marc Connelly assures at the Tavern. "She'll go ringing down the ages—until next Tuesday" . . . "Ed Flynn, who resigned as Secretary of State," an associate declares at the Chateau Moderne, "is on his way back to this country now" . . . "We've been trying to locate Clifford Odets," Harold Clurman, director of the Group Theater, reports at Sardi's, "but haven't been able to trace him. Last week Irwin Shaw went to a Key West hotel, and registered. 'So you're a playwright, eh?' the hotel manager told Irwin. 'Well, we had another New York playwright here a few days ago. Maybe you've heard of him—Clifford Odets.'"

2 A. M.: "Mrs. George S. Kaufman introduced Oscar Levant to Leon Henderson, the Washington economist," a producer informs at the Paradise. "Levant said: 'How do you do, Mr. Henderson. What's happened to DeSylva, Brown?'" . . . "Don't say anything unkind about Russia," the Grand Duchess Marie sighs at the Savoy-Plaza. "Even though I can't go there, Russia still is the loveliest country in the world" . . . Jimmy Walker is introduced to the Versailles audience by Walter Huston. New York's former mayor walks to the mike, looks around the room and gasps: "So THIS is a night club?" . . . "Look magazine is preparing a story about LaGuardia as a Presidential possibility," an editor reports at the Havana-Madrid. "They'll say that he considers his name as his worst handicap. 'Fiorello,' LaGuardia once wailed. 'Can you imagine anyone running for President with a name like that? It costs me 200,000 votes every election.'"

3 A. M.: "Dr. Glenn Frank, the Republican educator, was here," the head waiter declares at the Game Cock cafe. "He took the only vacant table—the one right under the autographed photo of Gov. La Follette—who made him resign as president of the University of Wisconsin" . . . "Well, Harry Richman has joined the gold rush," an exhibitor laments at the Village Barn. "He'll announce a new project for the fair" . . . Bennett Cerf, the book publisher, sits with Mary Astor at the Plaza. "Why don't you write your autobiography," Cerf suggests. "I'll publish it" . . . "My man, Tony Galento, will put Franchot Tone to shame." Joe Jacobs assures the Swing Club. "Galento has decided to become a matinee idol. He'll appear at the Paramount in Newark . . . "This friend of mine went up to John Barrymore," Ozzie Nelson reports at El Morocco, "and said, 'I've always wanted to meet you face to face.' Barrymore cocked his head to one side, showed his left profile and answered: 'Okay. How's this?'"

4 A. M. "I saw the President last week-end," a Washington official confides at the Stork. "He looks worried. In fact, he's losing all his resemblance to George M. Cohan" . . . "While we were dressing, we heard 300 women outside, waiting to see Tone," Elia Kazan, featured in "The Gentle People," reports at Cafe Society. "I told Franchot that I'll bet if he'd walk out there with me, instead of out the side-door, I'd have just as many girls trampling over me. Franchot agreed, we walked out together, and all 300 girls knocked me down and trampled over me—to get to Tone."

5 A. M.: "I just saw Sylvia Brema, who went to Florence to study singing, with a scholarship from the Italian government—until she was asked to leave last year, because she's non-Aryan," a music publisher informs at Leon & Eddie's. "She says she can't believe Gigli made those statements about Jews—because he was so nice to her here, a few weeks ago. And besides, Gigli is sponsoring a young Hungarian singer here—a singer who is Jewish."

6 A. M.: ". . . I forgot to tell you, dear . . . Alan Campbell and Dorothy Parker came up yesterday to see the baby . . . Alan's glasses frightened the child, especially when Alan went towards him. So I told Dorothy: 'Men who wear glasses . . . shouldn't make passes.'"

'Oz' Books Readers Send Judy Gifts

Judy Garland, the Dorothy of "The Wizard of Oz," is receiving interesting gifts from youngsters all over the country who are looking forward to her appearance in their favorite story. Her latest was a box containing miniatures of the "Tin Woodman," the "Cowardly Lion" and the "Scarecrow," to be worn as lapel ornaments. They were made by a 10-year-old girl, Patsy Bruner, who boasts Kansas as her home State.

Metropolitan

"You Can't Take It With You," the Pulitzer Prize play, which, in its screen version, has just won the Motion Picture Academy award as the best film of 1938, returned to the downtown sector Monday morning at the Metropolitan Theater.

Lionel Barrymore plays Grandpa Vanderhof, who lives as he pleases in the informal atmosphere of a home whose only "normal" member is Jean Arthur. Mother Spring Byington writes plays because someone once left a typewriter at the house; father Samuel S. Hinds dotes on "making things," preferably fireworks, and Donald Meek is the pleasant little chap to whom grandpa took a liking; Mischa Auer is the pessimistic dancing master who thinks Ann Miller's dancing "stinks." James Stewart is the scion of banker Edward Arnold, who is completely appalled at the carefree household to whic they have been asked to dinner. The fireworks explode in the cellar and police arrest the Vanderhof tribe and the Kirbys as well. After the entire party winds up in jail, it seems inevitable that the house and all of grandpa's philosophy must be threatened.

Accompanied by newsreels and short subjects, it's back at the Metropolitan for those who haven't seen it.

SNEAD-GULDAHL DUO IN GOLF FINAL

Hoyas and Colonials Clash for City Title

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 7.

FLASH! Washington will win the 1939 American League pennant.

Don't take my word for it. Ask Mme. Zantilla, The Lady With The Radio Mind, who has pitched her tent here with the Florida State Fair for a week before leaving to perform before the Crowned Heads of Europe.

POVICH

For fifty cents, a half dollar, Mme. Zantilla will tell you about your past, present or future. I paid my half buck and asked the Madame to foretell the future of the Washington club.

She said "What?"

I said, "The Washington club is a baseball team. It is competing in the American League this season with seven other baseball teams. Where will the Washington team finish?"

She said, "Oh, yes, baseball. I begin to understand now what you mean."

I said, "That's fine. Now let me repeat. The Washington club is in a pennant race with seven other teams. They will be playing baseball. How will the Washington team make out?"

Mme. Zantilla went into action immediately. She raised her hand to her forehead, immersed herself in thought. She took deep breaths and exhaled heavily. With her eyes closed, and in a faraway voice, she began to speak.

"I see," she said, "the figure three associated with the Washington team. Does that mean anything to you?"

I said "it might."

Again she went into her trance, then straightened up suddenly. She said:

"Ah, now I have it. Yes, it is the figure three. It is all very clear now. The Washington team will lose three games this season."

"You are quite certain about that, Mme. Zantilla?" I said as naively as possible under the circumstances.

She said, "Oh it is all very apparent to me now. Yes, the Washington team will lose three games this season, and I can tell you something else, also."

I said "What else can you tell me?"

And she said, with a note of obvious triumph in her voice, "And here is the real low-down. Two of those Washington defeats will come in succession!"

Joe Beats the Deadline

Once upon a time there was a loveable old baseball writer with the Washington club whose chief failing was his fondness for the cup that cheers and at such times he could not be bothered by the duty of telegraphing stories to his paper from training camp. And at such times he was not worried because he knew his fellow correspondents would grind out his daily stints for him.

They did it because, as I was saying, he was a loveable old character and they knew he would do the same for them if the need arose. Only once was there ever a complaint. That was the time when one correspondent, having finished a story for Joe's paper, dispatched it on the wire and said, angrily:

"Dammit, I'm writing better stuff for Joe's paper than I am for my own."

Joe rarely had to ask the boys to do his stuff for him. They could always tell when he did not intend to do it for himself. He was betrayed by a redness about the neck that was an unfailing sign that he would not work that day. They'd flip a coin, or something, and somebody would get the job.

But this day Joe was taking pains that a story would reach his paper. He was not trusting to the thoughtfulness of his colleagues. On his way out of the hotel near dinner time to visit his favorite speakeasy, he saw two reporters standing at the desk.

Walking over to your correspondent, Joe grabbed me by the lapel and said, most calmly: "Shirley, you are writing my story tonight." It was no less than a command, but that was all right. We liked him.

"Okay, Joe," I said. "No trouble at all. Going into the dining room now and will write your stuff right after I've eaten."

Said Joe, without a smile: "Oh, no. Do it now. I always insist on doing my work before dinner every night."

Now Go On With the Story

Another time, Joe, in no condition to hit the keys of his typewriter, drafted a fellow reporter for service. "Come into my room, and I'll dictate and you write," he said.

That was the first time that Joe had ever offered to assist in the manufacture of one of his stories, and it was accepted with alacrity. The two repaired to his room.

"All right," said Joe, "Put in a sheet of paper."

That was done.

"Now turn it up five spaces and write: 'Rush to Washington Bugle.'"

That was done.

"Turn it up another space and write 'Night Press Rates Collect.'"

It was done.

"Now write in capital letters: 'By Joe Smith, Staff Correspondent.'"

It was dutifully done by Joe's colleague.

"Okay, Joe."

"Have you got everything down there just as I've dictated?" demanded Joe. "I'm particular. Don't want any mistakes when I dictate."

"Okay, Joe. Everything just like you said."

Said Joe: "All right, then. Now go on with the story."

On the Line

With Considine

International News Service Sports Writer.

New York March 7.—We've given up opium for Lent but we sat in on a little pipe-smoking seance at Mike Jacobs' office today and listened to the boys dream out the coming of a $10,000,000 fight.

And it made sense.

CONSIDINE

Television is the answer. Three London theaters showed the televised account of the recent match between Eric Boon and Arthur Danahar. All of them turned away huge crowds. Each paid $1,000 to Gaumont-British for the rights to pipe the amazing thing into the theaters. The vision was about as large as the standard movie theater screen and reception was perfect.

Capt. Jack Harding, general manager of the National Sporting Club of London, is working on a deal now whereby he hopes to be able to offer Joe Louis a television bonus of $175,000—over and above his purse—to fight in London.

For his last two or three promotions Mike Jacobs has refused to grant television rights, along with the radio broadcasting rights he sold. The fellow is visionary enough to realize that once the spooky invention becomes popularized the big trusts who control the gadgets will pay him, and the fighters, enormous amounts because it will be an important way to sell the machines.

Television in Theaters

Thousands of theaters from coast to coast some day will buy television rights to fights. The rate will depend on the seating capacity, of course, but it will be pretty stiff, you can bet that much. The performance at London, with two second-raters serving as the leading actors, was a pretty good sample.

Jacobs wet the stub of a pencil with his tongue today and jotted down some happy figures on the advent of television. He figured that theater rights alone—to some heavyweight fight in the middle 1940's—would run about $7,000,000. And the broadcast and newsreel rights would further swell the kitty, for by that time he figured he would be selling international broadcast and movie rights.

"But if a guy can buy a seat in a television theater for six bits he won't go to the fight itself, will he?" a rude reporter asked the great man.

"I got that figued out, too," Mike said, with a contented cluck. "When that day comes—and I figure it will in three or four years—it won't matter so much about staging the fight itself. I could hold a heavyweight championship fight in a room, or in the Hipp here, and save all that cost of staging it in a stadium. I'd limit the attendance to a thousand, at a thousand bucks apiece. No, make that five thousand bucks a ticket.

That's What You Think, Mike!

"There are at least a thousand guys in this country who'd break their necks to buy one of those ducats. That'd be five million by itself, regardless of the important sugar—the television rights. Yeah,

Cagers Play At Tech High Gym Tonight

Two Teams Boast Almost Identical Records; Capacity Crowd Expected

By Jack Munhall.

A rivalry begun in the hoopskirt and buggy days of 1890 will be renewed for the second time tonight when Georgetown and George Washington experts at the revised peachbasket sport clash at Tech gym for the city championship.

At approximately 8:30 o'clock when the debris of the All-Star preliminary game between G. W. intrafraternity and intramural teams shall have been swept into a neat pile of heads, legs and arms, the Colonials and Hoyas will meet to settle arguments that have raged for years as to the respective ability of the city's two outstanding basketball powers.

Before a certain turn-away crowd of some 3,500 fans, sharply divided in their allegiance, two powerful, evenly-matched fives will collide in a game that has aroused more local interest than any similar attraction in memory.

Identical Records

Boasting almost identical records against top-flight opposition George Washington and Georgetown shape up as evenly as physically possible and observers, despairing of picking a winner on performance, expect the most mentally fit team to emerge the victor.

Georgetown, playing one more game, shows the higher winning average, with 13 victories and 8 defeats, against 12 triumphs and 8 setbacks for G. W., but Colonial followers point out with confidence and with veracity the superior schedule met by the G street school. Another argument of Colonial rooters is the better offensive record of Bill Reinhart's band, but that is buffeted by Georgetown's apparently tighter defense which has permitted 158 points less than the 856 totaled by George Washington opponents.

Offensive Teams

From the spectator's view this should develop into a sensational and thrilling battle, for it brings together a pair of offensively-minded teams which employ the same style of attacks—short, fast passing effected from a "merry-go-round" weave which is calculated to climax in a set-up shot.

As Coach Elmer Ripley predicted yesterday fans probably will be amazed at the change in Georgetown's play, for in George Washington the Hoyas will be facing one of the few teams this season that has risked a man-for-man defense against their rapid, professional attack.

Opposed to Penn State and Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh and almost every other of its major foes Georgetown has had to alter its offense to combat the zone defense which renders weaving almost useless. All season Georgetown has had to slow up its normal pace and attempt by cautious and sure passing to pierce that oft puzzling stationary line of protecetion.

On Even Terms

But against George Washington, Georgetown plans to renew the tireless whirlwind offense which Ripley has so satisfactorily taught in his first season at the Hilltop.

Taking the teams man for man, Georgetown and George Washington again stack up even, for in their line-ups are many of the section's finest all-around performers. For George Washington, Capt. Bob Faris, George Garber and Auerbach form a truly imposing array of marksmen. But scarcely more formidable than Georgetown's Capt. Joe Murphy, Ed Kutyka and the fleet Dutchman, Johnny Schmitt.

Between these trios fans expect at least one individual duel to rival the game itself. This may arise between Schmitt and Faris, who, if placed at their ordinary position of

Gonzaga Wins, 22-16; Tech Batters Mounts

Favorites Advance In Metropolitan Cage Tourney First Round

The last two county teams bowed out of the Metropolitan Schoolboy Basketball Tournament last night at Tech gym, Montgomery Blair High, of Silver Spring, taking a 22-16 lacing at the hands of Gonzaga Prep, and Mount Rainier falling before the small but classier McKinley five, 32-22.

In neither game was there a great deal of doubt as to the eventual winner after the first few minutes of play. Blair, with two spectacular pot shots and a foul goal, managed to hold a 5-2 advantage over its Purple clad opponent for one quarter, but it dropped behind at the half and was fading farther away as the game progressed.

Mount Rainier admittedly had little hope of upsetting the McKinley forces that were second only to Eastern in the interhigh title race. Despite the desperate and talented efforts of Chuck O'Conner, Mount center, the team was behind 8-3 after one quarter and 15-5 at the half.

It was a stocky guard, Frank Landolt, however, to whom the suburbanites owed their respectable showing against Tech. Landolt tallied nine points for individual honors, edging out Tech's Buddy Edwards by two points. Freddy Rice paced the winning endeavor of Gonzaga with eight points, four of them from the foul line.

By their losses, Mount Rainier and Blair left the tournament, sponsored by The Evening Star, in sole possession of purely local contenders. Tech and Gonzaga will be the long shots in the finals to be staged next week, while St. John's, the defending champion, and Eastern will be favorites.

With each of the foregoing having earned one victory in the tourney, observers are of the opinion that Eastern is the team to beat. St. John's tore Jefferson High's defense to ribbons in the opening game, but it was the White Tide that rocked on its heels, steadied itself and fought itself out of a 15-point disadvantage to win by 10 points. That performance won the Easterners respect they didn't have before.

Wasdell and Estalella Star In Nat Drill

They'll Fill Shoes Of Bonura and Simmons, Manager Harris Says

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., Marsh 7.—Two ambitious rookies rapped loudly for attention in the Nats' camp today and a smile of elation spread across the features of Manager Bucky Harris. The lads who were doing the rapping were Jimmy Wasdell and Bobby Estalella.

They rapped the offerings of a half dozen pitchers all over the premises in batting practice for distances that could not be contained by American League parks. And Harris was jubilant.

"Those are the two fellows who'll take the places of Zake Bonura and A. Simmons this year," he said, "and I have an idea they'll do a better job of it. Spring hitting is not very reliable, but you've got to have more than a desire to hit to bang a ball as far as Wasdell and Estalella."

Big Gun in Attack

It has been no secret that the Nats' bosses from the outset of training have regarded Estalella as the big gun in the Nats' attack. The hammered down Cuban packs 185 pounds in his stocky frame and he cuts his swing loose with terrific wrist action. He gets his power from a batting stroke that has plenty of style.

Encouraged by Estalella's .386 average that led the Piedmont League last season, Harris has virtually turned the left field job over to the little Cuban despite the fact that it is the sunfield.

"He looks like the kind of a hitter we need," said Harris. "This club gets plenty of men on base. A good clean-up hitter on the Washington club last year would have led the league in runs driven in."

Estalella's hits today were dropping to the farthest corners of right center, dead center and left field. He is not necessarily a pull hitter and outfielders must play with him with care.

Wasdell's blows were arching high and dropping into right field, the target of a left-handed pull-hitter. But a half dozen of his wallops would have cleared the right-field fence in Griffith Stadium. Wasdell's is much the same kind of power as Estalella's. It comes from a short, compact 185-pound frame and terrific wrist action. As ball players are judged they would both be called small, but they are built for power.

The first base job is Wasdell's if he can hit for a modest average with the Nats. The power in his drive would offset the lack of an imposing percentage. He was known as the wild swinger last year, showing a penchant to swing at bad pitches, and the Nats' bosses are trying to curb that habit.

Double Workouts

Wasdell and Estalella were performing with the morning squad, comprised chiefly of veterans. Harris today inaugurated the first of the double workouts, and because such as Buddy Myer, George Case and Sammy West were in uniform for the first time, he did not present them with the fast-balling rookie pitchers. It was against the curve ball artists that the morning squad was hitting.

Canzoneri Wins

New York, March 7 (AP).—Before a sellout crowd of 16,000, comeback-bound Tony Canzoneri won a decisive eight-round victory over Irish Eddie Brink, of Scranton, Pa., at the coliseum tonight. The former lightweight champion weighed 140½ and Brink a pound less.

Armstrong, Ambers Sign; Archibald to Box Rodak

New York, March 7.—Two world championship fights, closed after months of bitter bickering were announced today as follows:

(1) Henry Armstrong will defend his lightweight crown against former Champion Lou Ambers at Yankee Stadium in August.

(2) Leo Rodak, of Chicago, and Joey Archibald, of Pawtucket, R. I., rival claimants of the feather title, will settle their dispute in a 15-round scrap at the auditorium in Providence, R. I., on April 18.

Promoter Mike Jacobs expects the Armstrong-Ambers return title tilt to draw between $250,000 and $300,000. Their first meeting, last August, resulted in one of the most thrilling brawls of 1939. That was the night when Armstrong wrested the 135-pound crown from Ambers, but was almost knocked out in the process.

Promoter Manny Almada, of Providence, anticipates a crowd of 11,000 and a gate of $30,000 for his April bout which brings together Rodak, the National Boxing Association's 126-pound king, and Archibald, who is recognized as feather champion by the New York Commission.

Al Weill, of New York, manages both Ambers and Archibald. He has been demanding loudly a return Armstrong-Ambers bout ever since the Los Angeles Negro took away Ambers' title. Meanwhile, the rotund Mr. Weill has been sidestepping an Archibald-Rodak engagement.

Weill has been shouting up and down the land that "Two-Crown" Armstrong is afraid to climb back into the ring with Ambers. To quiet Weill's bleating, Armstrong's manager, Eddie Mead, offered to let Henry fight Lou at Madison Square Garden, but in defense of Henry's welterweight title, instead of the lightweight.

Gelbert Launches Third Comeback; Myer Also Signs

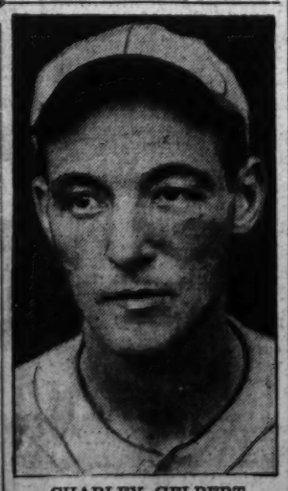
Orlando, Fla., March 7.—Clark Griffith's holdout worries disappeared completely today when he signed Buddy Myer and the veteran Charley Gelbert.

For Myer it was just another formality of his baseball career but for Gelbert it meant the launching of his third big league comeback.

The Nat bosses, Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris, greeted him in a manner that bespoke warmth, because they knew he had come back to the big leagues at an age when infielders seldom return. And under handicaps that none before had ever been asked to meet.

In the dressing room, Gelbert displayed a left leg that bore horrible scars above the ankle. The flesh of the foot was spare and as he dressed for practice he inserted a mass of gummy substance in his shoe to deaden the shock of his step. And over all he pulled a special elastic sock.

His wound was his dismal souvenir of a hunting accident in the winter of 1932 when it appeared that a load of No. 6 birdshot had ended the career of one of the National League's finest shortstops. Amputation was avoided but none would predict that Gelbert would ever play baseball again.



CHARLEY GELBERT

But to Gelbert it was just another mishap. Charley at the age of 33 says he will be playing regularly for the Nats this season. Good Luck, Pal!

Play Smith, Runyan for Title Today

Picard Shoots Ace On 1st 18, but Team Loses 1 Up; Little and Manero Also Defeated

By the United Press.

Coral Gables, Fla., March 7.—Sam Snead and Ralph Guldahl, toughest when the going is roughest, today turned back the challenge of Tony Manero and Lawson Little, and gained the title round of the $5,000 international four-ball championship.

Their opponents in the finals tomorrow for the $2,000 prize will be Horton Smith and Paul Runyan, who upset Johnny Revolta and Henry Picard, three-time winners of the tournament, 1 up.

Rally to Win

Guldahl produced the steadiness, and Snead came through with flashes of brilliance to keep in the running against sub-par golf. They lagged most of the way and won 1 up only by sheer doggedness.

Manero and Little went out in front early and led 1 up at the end of 18 holes. They carded 66, five under par.

The break came in the afternoon at the twenty-third hole, where Snead canned a 15-foot putt to square the match. The two teams of topnotchers battled on even terms for the next six holes. At the thirtieth, Guldahl and Snead forged to the front when Manero and Little took bogey fours.

Little Sinks 60-Footer

Little rammed home a 60-footer on the thirty-first for a birdie 3 that put his team back in the running. Guldahl and Snead went 1 up again at the thirty-first when Manero and Little ran into trouble. The match ended with a half on the thirty-sixth.

Better golf was played in the other match, which shattered hopes of Revolta and Picard taking up where they left off last year, when Dick Metz and Ky Laffoon dethroned them. Smith and Runyan laid down a barrage of sub-par golf that couldn't be beat.

Scores Hole-in-One

Picard scored a hole-in-one, first in the tourney's history of 16 years, at the 165-yard second, but it helped his cause very little. Picard and Revolta fired a 4-under-par 31 to lead 1 up at the end of nine holes.

Smith chipped dead on the eleventh to square the match. He and Runyan went 1 up at the twelfth where Picard 3-putted for a bogey 4, and they never were headed thereafter.

Smith and Runyan had 31 on the back nine of the morning round for 63, 8 under par, to lead 1 up. They were 2 up twice in the afternoon. The second time, Revolta sank a 12-foot putt on the thirty-fourth to reduce the deficit to one hole. Smith and Runyan matched birdies with Revolta and Picard the rest of the way to win on the thirty-sixth green.

Par took another drubbing today. The semifinalists fired 39 birdies, 2 eagles and an ace.

Brown, Eagles Star, Elected Cage Captain

George Brown, a junior at American University, received a singular honor yesterday when he was elected basketball captain for 1939-40. Brown, also football captain, will become the first student in the school's history to serve in both capacities.

Staff Cassell, now athletic director at A. U., was given similar honors in 1934 but didn't return to school the following year.

Brown, who is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 190 pounds, was selected as a guard on the second team of the Associated Press' Little All-America football eleven last year. He is reported to be a good student with grades just a little below the honor roll requirements.

Rhode Island Cagers Breaks Luisetti's Mark

Kingston, R. I., March 7 (AP).—Chet Jaworski, star center of the Rhode Island State basketball team, broke the one-year scoring record established by Hank Luisetti while at Stanford University when he caged 14 points tonight as the Rams bowed to the Worcester Tech basketeers, 64 to 61.

His evening's work lifted Jaworski's total to 477. Luisetti's record was 465.

Dartmouth Wins Title

Princeton, N. J., March 7 (AP).—A last-half rally gave Dartmouth's basketball team a 38-33 victory over Princeton tonight and clinched the Eastern Intercollegiate League title for the Hanover five. The visitors came from behind an eight-point deficit at the half to win out in the closing minutes.

Warlaine, Son of Man o' War, Wins at Tropical, Pays $12.90

No Sir Runs Second With Favorite 3d

Winner, Bad Actor, Holds Up Race 7½ Minutes at Start; Placed Behind Field

Tropical Park, Fla., March 7.—Warlaine, a fast, good looking son of the great Man o' War, raced to a hollow and somewhat unexpected victory in the mile and a sixteenth of the featured Coconut Grove purse here today. The chestnut 4-year-old, flying the silks of Weston Adams, owner of the Boston Bruins Hockey Club, added further proof that the "speed" type of horses are well suited by the local oval, with its short stretch. He won by four lengths in 1:45 2-5 and paid $12.90 for $2.

Joseph Pepp's No Sir was second by a similar margin, with J. A. Healey's False Point third. A head farther back came the disappointing Short Distance, with Don Meade up. Short Distance was a 4-to-5 choice, $11,191 of the $22,773 wagered in the straight pool being on the St. James filly. After chasing the ultimate winner to the stretch, the Mrs. Nat Ray color-bearer folded up.

Warlaine delayed the start 7½ minutes before he finally was placed on the outside, behind the field. He got away in good stride and, with his blazing early speed, dashed to the front going to the first turn. Eddie Robart let the chestnut colt open up several lengths on the backstretch and it was clear that Sh Distance and the others would not catch him. Warlaine showed no signs of faltering and won with plenty left. No Sir came along in the last quarter with a game spurt to run over the others.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANDY PRINCE, $3.50, $2.90, $2.60; LITTLE MIKE, $6.10, $4.80; LOVERNA, $30.80.

CANDY PRINCE sent to the front with a rush in the run out of the chute, bore out rounding the turn and lost much ground, but continued determinedly and maintained his advantage to the end. LITTLE MIKE broke alertly, went prominently all the way, saved ground into the stretch and closed gamely, but could not get up. LOVERNA bettered her position steadily on the extreme outside and outlasted JUST BUCK in the final drive. JUST BUCK closed a good gap.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:28. Off 2:30. Winner, I. Bieber's br. g. VELVET MASK, slow to get started, rushed up fast into contention before making the far turn, swung wide there, but came on gamely in the final drive to overhaul BLACK BUDDY. The latter, urged vigorously, improved his position gradually, and appeared the winner in the stretch, but weakened under extreme pressure in the last sixteenth. CANDAR, raced into contention from the start, had no excuses. LEARNED, forwardly placed throughout, was not good enough.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHANCER, $27.90, $10.70, $7.20; WHA HAE, $7.60, $5.50; LADY ORCHID, $11.50.

CHANCER, in close attendance of the pace in the opening three furlongs, dropped back midway around the turn, but responded gamely to punishment and got up in the closing strides. WHA HAE, away alertly, showed high speed and opened up a good lead rounding the turn, but faltered in the final drive. LADY ORCHID, on the outside and going forwardly the entire trip, finished gamely to punishment and outlasted BLACK ARROW. The latter worked his way up steadily on the outside, and was going gamely at the end. PERFECT PEACE, on the inside the entire trip, suffered from minor interference. LADFIELD was under extreme pressure throughout, but could not get up.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:29. Off 3:34½. Winner, W. H. Gallagher's br. g. (3), by Burgoo King—Clairdine. Trained by J. L. Donovan. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:22 3-5, 0:46, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL TASTE, $7.70, $4.50, $4.50; EBONY FLY, $6.80, $4.90; READY-ABOUT, $9.50.

ROYAL TASTE, displaying keen speed, opened up a long lead in the first three furlongs, bore out rounding the turn, but continued with determination and held his opposition safe to the end. EBONY FLY, going in nearest pursuit of the leader all the way, faltered through the stretch, yet outlasted READY-ABOUT. The latter, going forwardly all the way, finished gamely to punishment and was wearing the leaders down at the end. MODEST QUEEN, on the inside early, finished resolutely, but could not get up.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:00. Off 4:07½. Winner, W. W. Adams' ch. c. (4), by Man o' War—Madeline. Trained by E. E. Russell. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:39, 1:45 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WARLAINE, $12.90, $5.80, $4.40; NO SIR, $4.60, $3.60; FALSE POINT, $4.20.

WARLAINE, unruly at the post, broke in stride from outside the stalls, was vigorously ridden going to the first turn and drew out into a good lead, was then steadied while saving ground, but Robart took no chances and rode him out briskly to the finish. NO SIR, getting his bid astride the first three furlongs, gained steadily on the inside the remainder of the trip and easily disposed of the others. FALSE POINT broke well and went forwardly all the way, and responded gamely in the final drive to outlast SHORT DISTANCE. The latter, nearest in pursuit of the leader early, appeared to lack his usual dash and was under extreme urging the entire trip.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won cleverly; place driving. Went to post 4:33. Off 4:36½. Winner, Greentree Stable's ch. f. (3), by Royal Minstrel—Kenya. Trained by J. M. Gaver. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47, 1:12 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SLAVE SONG, $20.70, $7.80, $5.40; SPEEDY BOOGER, $4.60, $3.70; MODERN AGE, $6.60.

SLAVE SONG, on the outside and prominent in the early running, responded to pressure gamely, shook off SPEEDY BOOGER thorugh the stretch and won going away. SPEEDY BOOGER broke forwardly, bore over toward the inside in the opening quarter mile, assumed command while saving ground entering the stretch, but faltered in the stretch run.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:04. Off 5:07½. Winner, J. Summers' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHITE HOT, $18.30, $8.10, $6.10; STRUT, $5.20, $5.40; BERTILLON, $17.20.

WHITE HOT, hustled into contention going to the first turn, followed the leaders under light restraint until entering the stretch, closed gamely when placed to pressure and won going away. STRUT forced a steady pace and raced ODDESA LAD into defeat the first six furlongs, took a slight lead on the stretch turn, but was no match for the winner when challenged. BERTILLON, slow to get going, closed a big gap while saving ground the last half mile.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:35. Off 5:38. Winner, C. W. Pershall's b. or br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WINGED VICTORY, $28.80, $8.60, $5.80; PANORAMA, $5.10, $3.50; LIFE GUARD, $5.60.

WINGED VICTORY gradually improved his position on the outside after entering the backstretch, responded gamely to extreme pressure when the final test came and wore PANORAMA down in the last strides. PANORAMA, quickest to begin, displayed good speed and raced TOWN CAR into defeat in the opening half and drew clear in the stretch, but was unable to withstand the winner's bid.

Army Medicos in A. A. U. Court Tourney Tonight

Former Yale Star Opposes G.U. Students

Elliott to Perform At Eastern Gym; Columbia Beverage, R. R. B. on Program

Paced by Frank Elliott, former Yale star, the Army Medicos will make tonight what they hope to be the first of a number of appearances in the District A. A. U. tournament at the Eastern High School gymnasium. The Medicos will clash with the Georgetown Intramural five in a battle that will start at 10 o'clock.

Elliott has been playing a fine game for the Army club this season and is one of the reasons why the team is high in the standing of the U. S. Government League. He is the third high-scorer in that fast circuit and is used to the regulation court on which tonight's tourney struggle is slated. In providing the scoring punch, Elliott will be ably assisted by Ace Burns, a fleet forward. The Soldiers will have a large rooting section and they are confident of turning back the Georgetown students.

The Hilltop team has been playing together all season and it is believed that some of the players could have made the varsity had they elected to have gone out for the team. The line-up is composed mostly of golf and football stars and they promise to give the Medicos an interesting evening.

Columbia Beverage Plays

Three other games are on the card. At 9 p. m., the Columbia Beverage Company five, winners of the 145-pound championship last year, hope to get off on the right foot in defense of their crown by downing the Prince Georges' County Police Boys Club No. 2. The county fellows are little known in Washington court circles, but are reported to have a good attack and are at home on a large court.

The Railroad Retirement Board and Metropolitan Police Boys Club meet in an unlimited class battle, starting at 8 o'clock. Local fans believe these clubs to be evenly matched and they may provide the closest score of the tournament to date.

Another Police Boys Club team, in the 120-pound class, will face the Greenbelt Shamrocks in the opening game. The Shamrocks are representing that thriving community in nearby Maryland. They have a gym out there that has been the envy of the many Washington teams to invade that section. The Shamrocks have pointed for the tournament and those who have seen them in action expect them to go far in the titular race. While one

Roanoke, Va., March 7.—Ask the "five smart boys" of Roanoke College to pick an all-opponent basketball team from the 16 teams they have met in piling up 21 victories out of 22 games during their regular season, and here is what you get:

Three Colonials of George Washington University, whom the Maroons defeated twice.

One forward of Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va., also beaten twice by the Maroons.

And one Villanova guard.

Here is the all-Roanoke College-opponent team they picked, the Roanoke guards naming the opposing forwards, the forwards naming the guards, and the center naming the center:

Forwards—Julius Rivlin, Marshall and Bob Faris, George Washington.

Center—Jack Butterworth, George Washington.

Guards—"Duke" Duzmanski, Villanova, and Sid Silkowitz, George Washington.

14 Bouts on Tap in A. A. U. Ring Tourney

Star Studded Field Awaits 2d Round; Kekeris in Action

A star-tsudded field of amateur ringmen in hot pursuit of District A. A. U. ring crowns wades into the second round of the annual tournament tonight at Turner's Arena, where fighting will be resumed in a half dozen classes. Fourteen attractive bouts are on the program, and every ticket sold carries a gilt-edged guarantee of action.

Interest probably will be focused on the 147-pound class wherein Steve Thompson and Billy Kekeris, outstanding contenders for the championship, face formidable opponents in Norbert Lehner and Bob Hockenberry, respectively. Thompson, at one time one of the city's topnotch diamond stars, surprised his friends by going in for boxing and immediately making good in amateur ranks.

Kekeris, whose tutor and idol is Steve Mamakos, also surprised the fans by giving Jack Clagett a terrific battle in the last Golden Gloves tournament before losing a close decision. Comparatively green and untried, Kekeris put Clagett on the floor twice with hard smashes to the head, and came within an ace of upsetting his southwest rival. Able to absorb punishment almost as well as Mamakos, Kekeris is a better puncher and a bright professional career awaits him after his schooling in the amateurs.

Willie Tapp, Golden Gloves victor who is scheduled to appear in the Eastern championships at New York next week, is another on tonight's card, and he, too, faces a good opponent in the person of Jim Loffin, of Fort Belvoir. Bantamweight champion of the city, Tapp looked none too good in the inter-city match with Richmond last month, and may go down to defeat at the hard-hitting C. C. C. boy's hands.

The card also includes a number of veteran simon-pures who have been campaigning in the tournament since its inauguration more than a decade ago, not the least of whom is Bernie Perry, who faces Essex Madron in the flyweight class semifinals. Complete pairings for tonight:

Down In Front

With Richard Vidmer

Miami Beach, Fla., March 7.—One of the things that the cross-country caravan of touring professional golfers had under discussion as they paused between the semifinal and final rounds of the international four-ball championship was Mr. Robert Tyre Jones, jr., of Atlanta.

VIDMER

This might seem rather incongruous in view of the fact that Bob Jones won his last championship crown nine years ago and has appeared on the competitive scene only five times since then. Some of the top flight golfers of today were in school and carrying clubs when Bob Jones last blazed his way to glory. Some of them never even have seen him play. But the passing years apparently have not faded his fame very much, for each spring at this time, his name comes up again in the highest golfing circles.

Of course, it is in connection with the Masters tournament which will be played at Augusta the end of the month that the name of Jones is mentioned. It is his annual appearance is com-

Bomb Halted Turf Sheet, Court Hears

Suit Filed Against Phila. Publisher et al.; Monopoly Claimed

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 7.—A former racing news publisher testified today a bomb cut short a venture into the turf sheet business about 10 years ago by a syndicate including Murray (the Camel) Humphreys.

James Flanagan, former president of the Bulletin Record Publishing Co., said the syndicate sheet, the Chicago track program, was his only competition at the time and that one of Humphrey's associates, Frank Diamond, accused him of bombing the plant.

The Bulletin Record Co. has filed suit charging M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher, and others with conspiring to obtain a monopoly on dissemination of racing news.

Flanagan, called as the first defense witness, said he was president of the Bulletin Record Co. from the time of its founding in 1925 until late in 1937. He identified himself as a former circulation worker for Liberty magazine and Chicago newspapers, and one-time secretary-treasurer of the newsboys' union.

Heavy Local Entry in Terp Track Games

Three Colleges and Seven High Schools To Send Competitors

The District and nearby suburban area will be represented by three colleges and seven high schools in the annual University of Maryland-Fifth Regiment track games at Baltimore Saturday night.

Georgetown and Catholic U. and Maryland will send strong entries to compete with Navy, Duke, North Carolina and other cinder powers of the South and East.

Tech, Central, Roosevelt, Eastern, Gonzaga, Hyattsville and Washington-Lee, all of which plan to enter relay teams as well as individuals, promise to uphold District prestige against scholarly athletes in what annually is one of the biggest indoor meets in this section.

Among the feature collegiate events for District schools will be the 1-mile relay, in which Georgetown and Maryland are especially formidable. The Terps' quartet will be the defending champion, but probably will be an under dog against the Hoyas, who rank with the speediest in the country on their performances this season in the Penn A. C. and in the N. Y. A. C. meet.

Maryland, however, will be a strong contender in the 2-mile run. John Munski, Missouri's Big Ten champion, probably will be the favorite, but the Terps' Jim Kehoe is an almost certain point winner.

Other Maryland entries who figure to score points are Mason Chronister in the Governor's mile; Eddie Miller in the high jump; Joe Murphy in the sprints, and Tom Fields in the mile.

Navy, defending college team champion, will have a well-balanced squad, led by Barney Oldfield, mile star, who was unbeaten in dual meets last season.

N. Y. Photographer 'Beaned' by Pitch At Giants' Camp

A wild throw to first base struck Phil Levine, photographer for the New York Daily News, on the side of the head in practice as he was sighting his camera for a picture. He was taken to a hospital.

Dr. W. B. Singletary said Levine suffered a slight concussion of the brain, but X-rays showed no fractures. The physician said the photographer's condition this morning was "satisfactory."

Brewerton Elected Army Swim Pilot

West Point, N. Y., March 7 (AP).—Cadet Henry R. Brewerton, of Cristobal, C. Z., has been elected captain of next year's Army swimming team.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

(Copyright, 1939 by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

That old familiar story of the fellow finding a valuable pearl in an oyster served to him in a restaurant came to light in the public prints the other day. This pearl was said to be worth $1,000.

RUNYON

We have read that same story with slightly varying circumstances scores of times down through the years. We have never doubted it, nor do we doubt it now. That is, we do not doubt that diners in restaurants have found pearls in their oysters. The oyster is the habitat of the pearl and there is no reason why a pearl should not pop out occasionally in an order of half a dozen raw.

As a matter of fact, we have long made it a practice to carefully peruse each bivalve set before us in the vague hope of trapping a stray pearl, but we no longer expect to be enriched by the discovery. We have learned that even if we found a pearl it would probably not be worth enough to pay for the oysters.

Prices Hit Bottom

Pearls are not what they used to be. It is our guess that a couple of zeros too many were inadvertently added to the value of that latest pearl that was found in the restaurent oyster, or the reporter did not know his pearls. A pearl worth $1,000 nowadays would have to be a rare jewel indeed.

When a Japanese gentleman some years ago discovered that by sneaking a minute particle of sand into the maw of an unsuspecting pearl oyster he could, in the course of time, make the oyster transform that particle into a pearl, he raised the very dickens with the pearl market of the world, once the most fascinating and profitable phase of the jewel trade.

By that process, the Japanese gentleman produced what is known as the cultured pearl—you must not confuse the cultured pearl with the imitation pearl, understand. The cultured pearl is a real pearl, and, in fact, that is just the trouble with it from the standpoint of the dealers who used to specialize in what is known as the Oriental pearl, once the paragon of all jewels in beauty and rarity, too.

Little Difference

For that matter, we still think there is nothing lovelier than an Oriental pearl, but the pearl cultivators have reached such a degree of perfection with their product that few persons can tell the difference between the orientals and the cultured. Even the most experienced dalers will no longer trust their eyes in deciding the type of a pearl. They prefer having the pearl X-rayed.

That is the only sure test and as the X-ray machines are expensive and there are only a few of them scattered around among the trade in New York, the small dealers no longer want any part of pearls. There used to be a time when they would all gamble heavily on them. A good Oriental pearl was the same as money in the bank.

The Oriental pearls were costly and rare because while they were also produced through oysters ingesting particles of grit, it was an accident of nature. You could not tell what oyster might be concealing a pearl and it required a lot of hunting and sifting to ferret out the guilty bivalves.

Well Cultivated

The cultivators mark down their oysters after they have planted the seed of the pearl in them and as an oyster is not much of a hand to wander around or change his address, the cultivators always know where to find them.

Rovers, Orioles Clash Here for Hockey Lead

Old Rivals In Heated Flag Drive

Odds Even; Orioles Hold Slim Loop Lead; 7,500 to See First League Match Here

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Organized ice hockey makes its Washington debut tonight at Riverside Stadium where the pace-making Baltimore Orioles and New York Rovers clash in a regularly scheduled Eastern League match at 8:30 o'clock.

Fighting for the lead in the Walker Cup Series, the match figures to be one of the most bitterly contested of the entire campaign. Baltimore, whose story-book rise after a dismal start has been sensational, seized the lead last Sunday by trimming Hershey while New York was bowing to the Atlantic City Sea Gulls before 12,000 fans. Its victory gave Baltimore a 2-point lead over the Rovers, who have 15 goals to their credit.

The Washington Post Trophy, a handsome gold cup, will be awarded the winner of the battle, which also will count in the series for hte Mayor Jackson Cup. Goals scored in this match, and anohter scheduled at Baltimore next week, will determine the winner of the Mayor Jackson Trophy.

Free-For-All Doubtful

With so much at stake anything and everything in the way of action on the ice is anticipated, although it is doubtful if there will be any free-for-all brawling that sometimes occurs on the home courts of the rival teams. Baltimore holds the dubious distinction of participating in one of the fiercest brawls on record about six years ago, coming to blows with Atlantic City in an argument that precipitated a battle among some 500 fans.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate 7,500 fans with the erection of additional bleacher seats in the end zones. The playing rink, 200 feet long by 80 feet wide, is as large as that in Madison Square Garden, and Raoul LeMat, director, promises that the ice will be in perfect condition for the teams.

Frank Albertson, stage and screen star now appearing at the Capitol, will face off the puck getting the match under way. A large delegation of Congressmen will be in the audience, as no less than 175 reservations have been made for the lawmakers.

Winning Record Good

In 14 matches between the teams this season the Rovers have won seven, lost four and tied three, which would tend to send them onto the ice a distinct favorite over the Orioles. In Norman Calladine, Ned Vitarelli and Doug Greig the Orioles, however, have a forward line regarded as the strongest in the circuit—one that may be too strong for the New Yorkers' heralded defense.

The success of tonight's match probably will determine the future of organized hockey in the District, for it is no secret that both the major and minor leagues have long wanted to locate a franchise in this city, but were prevented from doing so because suitable facilities were unavailable.

Tonight's match is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock. General admission tickets will be placed on sale at 8:30 o'clock, and free skating will follow the contest.

Police Boys Club team has been eliminated, Coach Dunlap looks for this club to advance.

The first girls' game of the tournament to date will be played Friday when the brilliant Rockville Girls battle the Rural Electrification team in a game that starts at 8 o'clock. Rockville has swept everything before it, being undefeated in two seasons. The REA is not excited about the record of the Montgomery County club, however, and will be in there fighting.

Delaware & Hudson, of the Heurich Amateur League, makes its debut in the tournament on the Friday program, meeting the Georgetown Boys Club unlimited team.

Twelve games are scheduled for Saturday. Eight clashes are booked for the afternoon, starting at 1 o'clock. Two courts will be used for these 90 and 105 pounders and the admission for these games has been cut to 10 cents.

Staurday night's line-up is one of the best of the tournament to date. In a game regarded as the feature, the Jewish Community Center and the Y. M. C. A. Blues meet in the unlimited class at 9 o'clock. A girls' game, involving a battle of the Agriculture and Highlander teams; a clash of Cal's Valet and the Regal Clothiers, and an opening bout between the Y. M. C. A. Flashes and the Anacostia Boys Club in the 120-pound class round out the program.

Admission for each night's program is 25 cents.

Activity Books

Won't Be Honored

Max Farrington, athletic director at George Washington, yesterday again warned that Georgetown student activity books will not be honored at tonight's basketball game between G. U. and G. W.

Everybody in the room observed a two-minute silence, stunned by the compelling prospect of a future fight that will make the $2,600,000 Dempsey-Tunney thing look like a rainy-night club fight. Spiritually wading through blizzards of bank notes, two hungry fight managers promptly went next door and ordered coffee, but with cream this time.

Joe Jacobs, the manager of Tony Galento, is all for television. "It's a great thing for my man," Yussel beamed, flicking his cigar ashes on Mike's joss-house-red carpets. "They's a lot of people in this world who want to see Galento. They don't believe he's true."

"Don't be too sure of that," Joe answered, in English. "If the New York Commission gives me a license to work in his corner, "we got a good chance against Louis. Because, brother, little Yussel is the only guy who can make Galento stand on his ear."

The Brighter Side

Moreover, they have acquired the knack of making their oysters mighty fecund in the production of pearls while the Oriental pearl oysters are doing no better than usual.

Naturally, the result is the decline of the Oriental pearl in market value, for the culturedas are comparatively dirt cheap. Still, if you get them good enough they cost plenty, too. We saw a neck string of cultured pearls not long ago that sold for $9,000, and where do you think they went?

They went to a woman who has what is said to be a million dollar string of Orientals and she just wore the culturedas with the others and no one could tell the difference. We would not like to be stuck with one of those million dollar strings, however.

One Optimist

A big downtown New York pawnbroker recently showed us a pearl drop on which he had loaned $6,000 some years ago before the cultured pearls had become a menace to the Orientals. He sent the drop down to the pawnbrokers' auction sale and the best offer he got from any bidder was $150.

He had another big pear-shaped pearl set in stickpan form on which he had loaned $5,000 at a time when a pearl like that was as good as a Government bond, and he confided to us with great gloom that he would be tickled to death to get as much as $800 for the bauble. This same broker used to peel off as high as $70,000 in loans on Oriental pearl strings in the big days, but he probably would not lend that much on a carload of them now.

Still, we know another fellow in New York who is picking up all the Orientals he can at bargain prices. He thinks they are bound to come back in value, though the other dealers think he is just an optimist. They are hoping that no one figures out a way of feeding carbon to fish and producing diamonds as good as those cultured pearls.

F. B. I. Title Hopes Hinge on 2 Games

Only two games removed from the Heurich Amateur Basketball League's second half title, unbeaten Federal Bureau of Investigation meets United Clay Products at Heurich gymnasium tonight at 9:15. On Friday night at the same hour Hot Shoppes will provide the opposition.

In a supporting contest tonight at 8 o'clock Delaware and Hudson engages Hot Shoppes.

In the event of victory, F. B. I., a big favorite in both games, is to open a three-game series for the Heurich Amateur Basketball League's championship with Delaware and Hudson, first half winner, at Heurich gymnasium Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Dot Snell Gives Skating Exhibition

With Dorothy Snell, the Capital's Sonja Heine, Elaine Hamilton and Amy Miller, of Baltimore, and Nick Aravanis and Red Bainbridge, also of Washington, cast in leading roles, the Washington Figure Skating Club gave an exhibition last night at Riverside Stadium, thrilling an audience of several hundred fans with their difficult feats.

The program opened with a parade of future champions, juvenile skating enthusiasts, one or two of whom made part of the trip around the rink in unorthodox fashion. All of the skating stunts were well executed and drew rounds of applause from the fans. Aravanis received a tremendous ovation for his barrel-jumping, which was of high order.

petitive play. And along about this time of the year words of warning begin pouring out of his native Atlanta. "Jones had had a 64 in practice." "Jones has averaged 68 for his last six rounds." "Jones is back on his game again."

But Silence This Year.

So far this spring there has been nothing but silence concerning the activities of Mr. Jones. But the active players, heading for Augusta and hoping for the prestige that goes with winning the masters tournament there apparently have their ears to the ground.

It seems that Jones has not been exactly idle. Last week he dropped into Clearwater on the West Coast where Gene Sarazen has taken a house for the winter and it was only natural that he and the Little Roman should play a match. It was more or less casual and purely private but the fact that Jones swung around the Belleaire course in 71 strokes to Sarazen's 72 is being whispered about among the players with ambitions at Augusta.

Hope Springs Eternal

Every spring since the Masters started in 1934 interest in the Jones legend has been revived and excitement has stirred the sentimentalists because of the possibility that he might again lead the field. But in the five Masters tournaments that have constituted the five competitions Jones has entered since his retirement in 1930, he has been only a disappointment.

Once he finished twelfth, last year he finished fourteenth. In none of the other three tournaments has he been in the top two dozen.

Some place the blame on his showing to the social surroundings at Augusta. In a way the Masters is Bobby Jones' tournament. It got its start through the magic of his name and became established as the major event of the winter because of his presence in the field.

After he had disappointed his followers two or three times by his failure to finish with the leader, Cliff Roberts, his friend and associate in the organization of the Augusta classic, convinced him, after long argument, that he should concentrate on winning the event if possible. He persuaded Jones to agree to ignore the handshakers, well-wishers and worshippers for the sake of his success which those same people wanted most.

Three-Day Limit

To this end, Jones agreed that he would hide out in Mr. Roberts' house for the duration of the tournament, avoid the gatherings of good fellows, old friends and playmates, forsake the festive spirit of the occasion and shun the locker room legion. He arrived on the scene a couple of days before the first round and conscientiously went out to practice. For 48 hours Mr. Robert Tyre Jones, jr., was the most retiring gentleman in the State of Georgia. He lived, breathed and thought of nothing but golf, concentrating on the game as he used to do when he was the Emperor Jones.

After his first round, he returned directly to his sanctuary, secluded from the maddening throng. He had equaled par and was right up with the front runners, where he belonged. A quiet dinner, early to bed, and he would be ready for another battle against par the next day. But Bob became strangely quiet during dinner, restless when the meal was over, and finally started for the door.

"I'm going over where the gang is," he announced to his host and adviser. "What does the chance of winning a golf tournament mean when you're missing the best things in the world—your friends?"

Booster Teams To Open Nat'l Pin Tourney

Elaborate Ceremonies Planned for Opening; 200 Teams Expected

Ladies booster teams representing the Eastern Star and Occidental Hotel will be on the first night's program of the twelth annual National Duckpin Bowling Congress tournament, opening here on Saturday at Lucky Strike. Eight teams will roll, four each in the men's and women's booster class.

George Isemann, executive secretary of the association, is planning elaborate ceremonies for the opening of the event, extending from Saturday until April 1, when upward of 200 teams are expected to roll for the cash prizes, gold medals, and national titles.

Although entries are coming slowly Isemann expects the usual last minute rush that may threaten the all-time record of 212 teams. Men's and women's singles and doubles will also be rolled at Lucky Strike, with their total scores counting in the all-events, while mixed doubles and the John Dennis sweepstakes will be held at the nearby Columbia Alleys.

Out-of-Town Entries

After the eight booster quintets officially get the tournament under way, Isemann has not scheduled any further action until Saturday, March 18, and from that time the alleys will probably be crowded every night until the finish.

Out-of-town entries, that at present are monopolizing the list, will roll in the big final week-end, March 30 through April 1, when Connecticut, Massachusetts, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida will send representatives. Connecticut has enrolled 50 teams thus far, while John Blick is sending 5 from Georgia. Meanwhile Maryland and Virginia pin-spillers will compete, with Baltimore already down for 33 teams.

The battle for the national duckpin championships is some 25 days ahead of the usual schedule, but to avoid the hotel rush around the Cherry Blossom festival time, the executives are staging the tourney now with the interests of the out-of-town contenders in mind.

Hold Spotlight

The booster teams will hold the spotlight the first few nights of competition, with the better known local quintets such as Cuff and Santini and Marlboro Hotel among the men and Lucky Strike and Rosslyn among the women seeing action in the third week of play.

District teams, that have paced the entry list for several years, are expected to come through and top the Connecticut delegation and retain the honors for the host city, although at present many smaller cities are over the local figure.

A special intercollegiate class is in the making with the University of Georgia definitely entered, while Richmond is planning to enter and Georgetown may fall in line. Other schools will probably follow with entries.

Iseman will draw up a complete schedule for the 21-day affair following the closing of entries on Saturday.

Baering Down

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

The old G. O. P. phoenix bird is rising from its ashes like a janitor sifting cinders.

We hope the timing is a bit different. The original phoenix comes out of the Arabian Desert every 500 years to curl its tail feathers on the altar at Heliopolis.

It arises young and vigorous and more beautiful. That's a fine description but it doesn't fit Hoover or Alf Landon.

Celebrities See Football Film At Kilowatt Club

Shades of football and the icy blasts of winter crept into the spring-like setting last night as about 200 members of the Kilowatt Club played host to local football celebrities at the Washington premier of the National Football League's official motion picture, "Greats of the Gridiron," at the Pepco Auditorium.

Representing the Washington Redskins were Owner George Marshall and wife, the former screen actress Corrine Griffith, Jack Espey, general manager, and several players, including Frank Filchock and Jay Turner, former George Washington star.

Pin Roundup

Columbia Heights

Sholl's Cafe rolled the second high game of the season in the Columbia Heights League at Arcadia last night, at 672, made possible through the brilliant shooting of Charles Walson, who posted a 161 game and 399 set.

Fred Murphy, Hessiek Coal, rolled high individual set of the evening, 400, and Sholl's took high team set honors with 1,763.

Lutheran Ladies

Violet Reeves, Incarnation, had high individual game, 117; Helen Stang, Keller, high individual set, 310; Mount Rainier, high team game, 448, and Keller, high team set, 1,432.

Lutheran Men's

District League

A season team set record was set by the league-leading B'nai B'rith team, 1,668, as it took the odd game from E. Kahn. Gusack, of Brentwood, rolled the high individual game, 138, and Smyras rolled high set, 386.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Community Center Department presents the Washington Civic Orchestra (Dr. Kurt Hetzel, conductor) in Central High School Tuesday night. Program: Overture to "Egmont" (Beethoven), Symphony in B minor (Mozart), Sympony in B minor (Schubert), Woodland Sketches (MacDowell), Roses from the South Waltz (Strauss).

The vitality which the Washington Civic Orchestra has manifested since Dr. Kurt Hetzel became its conductor was pulsing still more vigorously last evening when the organization emerged from rehearsals to make a public appearance in Central High School. There are now 85 members listed in the personnel, and one was pleased to note that 29 of them are women. The feminine contingent is distributed among the string, woodwind and brass choirs—19 violins, 5 violoncelli, 1 doublebass, 2 flutes, 1 clarinet and 1 trumpet.

While the orchestra exhibited an increased coherence and a growing confidence, it has not yet cast away the tone-deafness which seems to be the peculiar affliction of all amateur instrumental groups. Some of the members are apparently unaware that they are deviating from accurate pitch, and their errancies are just enough to produce occasional weird harmonies not to be found in the scores. For this fault there is only one cure: the self-discipline of the musicians.

As for the spirit and zest of the players, one can say that their performance of Beethoven's overture to "Egmont" was not lacking in those qualities. They took an evident delight in the G minor symphony of Mozart and responded to Dr. Hetzel's direction with a readiness which spoke well for their faithful practice.

Howard University School of Music presents Muriel Kerr in a piano recital Tuesday night in Rankin Memorial Chapel. Program: Toccata and Fugue in D minor (Bach-Tausig), Sonata in A major, Op. 101 (Beethoven), Waltz in E flat major, Nocturne in D flat major, Ballade in A flat major (Chopin), Stars and Whimsy (Mary Howe), El Puerto (Albeniz), Bolero (Casella), The Juggler (Toch), Man Lebt Nur Einmal Walzer (Strauss).

Appearing as the sixth attraction this season in the Howard University concert course, Muriel Kerr, the American pianist who has been a visitor here on previous occasions, gave an interesting recital last evening in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. Her program began with Tausig's transcription of the Bach tocc

1939 Building Starts 81% Over Year Ago

Homes Gain 113.6% And Other Contracts Are Up 48.9%

New York, March 7.—Building in January was far in excess of the volume in the same month last year, with total contracts showing a gain of 80.7 per cent, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute today. Moreover, building in January this year was at a higher rate than in any previous January since 1929.

The chief factor accounting for the gain in total contracts from January, 1938, to January, 1939, was a rise of 113.6 per cent in residential contracts. The gain in nonresidential contracts, however, was by no means small, amounting to 48.9 per cent.

The fact that rents in January resisted a further downward trend helped to sustain building activity. The rent index in January was unchanged from the December figure of 86.2 (1926 as 100). The building industry also benefited from the failure of building costs to advance. The index of the cost of building in January was 104.2, or practically the same as in the corresponding month last year despite the increased demand this year for building materials and labor.

Costs Still High

A comparison of the cost of building index with the rent index, however, shows that costs were still excessive in January. It is apparent, therefore, that conditions are not favorable for the development of a general building boom. However, if the relationship between costs and rents do not grow more unfavorable, it is possible that building activity will continue to be well maintained at the present rate. A considerable amount of building is now being done in the field of small homes. By reducing the size of a house, it has become possible to bring down the price of a house to an attractive level despite high material and labor costs.

Robert Gair Co. Omits Interest on Notes

New York, March 7 (AP).—E. Victor Donaldson, president of the Robert Gair Co., Inc., manufacturer of paper board and containers, said in his annual report today the company would skip interest payment on its 6 per cent income notes because there were no earnings for such purpose in 1938. Interest is payable annually April 1 if earned in the preceding year. There have been about $3,300,000 of the notes outstanding.

Celanese Corporation

Directors of Celanese Corporation of America today declared a 19-cent participating dividend on the 7 per cent cumulative first participating preferred stock, which represented accruals on the stock to December 31 last. Also ordered was the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on 7 per cent series prior preferred, both dividends payable April 1 to holders of record March 17.

Johns-Manville Workers Receive 32% of Revenue

New York, March 7.—Johns-Manville Corporation jobholders got 32 cents out of every dollar received from the company's customers in 1938, stockholders got 2 cents and 1 cent was put aside as a reserve, according to the company's annual report to employes issued today by Lewis H. Brown, president. The other 65 cents of the sales dollar were required for raw materials, transportation, taxes and other expenses.

Pointing out that the company's research program went forward with a staff of 127 people, the report estimated that more than 40 per cent of the employment today in J.-M. plants results from the sales of products that have come from the company's research, development and expansion program of the past 10 years.

Through the cooperation of factory workers in the company's broad safety campaign in all plants, the rate of accidents in 1938 were reduced by 40 per cent from the 1937 figure and by 29 per cent from the previous six-year average.

Forty-nine jobholders became members of the Quarter Century Club in 1938 by rounding out 25 years of service with J.-M., bringing the total membership to 250.

New York, March 7.—Exports of American cotton were larger this week than in the corresponding week last year, according to the weekly report of the New York Cotton Exchange. They totaled 98,000 bales against 71,000 last year.

Total exports during the season to date are 2,522,000 bales against 4,341,000 in the corresponding period of last season.

Wheat Prices Hold Steady In Dull Day

Range ⅜ of a Cent Liverpool Weak Corn Futures Dip

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 7.—In the absence of any unusual trade developments which might jolt the wheat market out of its rut, prices continued to fluctuate very narrowly today.

Quiet selling based on further weakness at Liverpool and a forecast of more rain in the wheat belt was offset by small lot commercial buying, mostly lifting of hedges on wheat and flour business, some presumably for export.

Wheat held to ⅜ cent range. So far this year the price of May wheat has been confined to a range of only 3 cents. Net price changes in every session except one have been less than a cent. For almost seven months the market has not budged out of a 6-cent range and absence of speculative interest on either side of the pit was reduced trading volume to the lowest point on record.

Wheat closed unchanged to ¼ higher compared with yesterday, May 68⅝-½, July 68⅞-¾ while corn was unchanged to ⅜ off, May 49, July 50½-⅝; oats unchanged to ⅛ up, rye unchanged; lard 5 lower.

Daily Steel Output Increases in February

New York, March 7 (AP).—The steel industry increased its average daily output of ingots in February as compared with January, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today. In February Open-Hearth and Bessemer Process plants averaged 54.1 per cent of capacity, compared with 52.69 per cent in January and 31.74 per cent in February, 1938.

Because of the shorter month, the February total of ingot production was slightly less than in January—2,954,883 gross tons as compared with 3,186,834—but far above the 1,703,726 tons of February, 1938.

Prices Hold Steady in Light Trading Favorable News Attracts No New Buying Twelve Treasury Issues at New Highs

New York, March 7.—Strength of London markets, opening of the labor peace conference in Washington, overnight news of public utility financing and refinancing plans and Secretary Morgenthau's new emphasis on recovery-before-politics, held share markets steady today but attracted no new buying. The stock exchange, in fact, experienced the dullest session since February 23 with transfers of 568,630 shares in 724 issues.

With prices bobbing around the best levels of the year fractional gains frequently were sufficient to establish new highs and no less than 50 issues achieved that distinction compared with four new 1939 lows. The composite average of the 100 leading stocks ended 0.15 point higher.

Twelve new highs in the Government list featured a rather dull bond section where some interest, however, was sown in defaulted Latin-American liens. Fair recoveries against dollar rates were marked up for most European currencies including guilders.

Strong spots in today's stock session included American Telephone which established a new top at 162, closing at that level for a net gain of 1¼, and National Biscuit common, at 28⅜, its best price of the year. Biscuit preferred, however, was off more than 3 points.

Steels in Demand

Steels, while making the best advances in a day of generally small gains, failed to recover as much as half of the ground lost in the preceding session. Ingot output figures for February, announced after the close, fulfilled expectations of a gain compared with January, taking into consideration the fewer working days and was more than 70 per cent ahead of February last year.

Merchandising stocks enjoyed a quiet advance which again carried the group to a 1939 high. In the mail order division both Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck improved. Farm implements were higher, including International Harvester, up 1¾, and Case preferred, up 1½. Greyhound led the list in activity with a ⅝ point rise. General Motors added ⅛ point in the automotive section and Chrysler lost fractionally. Steel common, Bethlehem and Republic stiffened. International Silver and Anaconda set a rising example for the metals.

Early in the day Wall Street showed interest in reports that rigid rules with respect to short sales, considered a handicap to the market, might be modified. Inquiry, in official quarters, however, gave indications that such expectations are premature.

The financial district is impressed with the London market showing. Averages for both industrials and rails in the British center were at new highs, reflecting improvement in the economic and political situation throughout Great Britain.

U. S. Bonds Continue Rise

Listed bonds had a firm undertone today, despite profit taking in a few groups of speculative obligations. United States Treasury securities continued their upswing and a dozen issues attained fresh highs. Railroad bonds were in quiet demand, but local tractions suffered from realization selling. In the foreign section most movements were toward better levels. Turnover was $6,350,000.

Long-term Treasury issues showed advances from 1-32 to 23-32 point, with the 2¾s and 2½s available under the June note exchange offering participating in the movement. The notes due December 15, 1943, which also are so available, eased in counter trading, while the "rights" advanced slightly. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations were good. Among best rated corporate bonds the tone was firm, with variations small.

Fractional improvement took pect. Borderline and default rails roads which have a speculative aspect. Borderline and default trails were dull. Interborough bonds led the local traction group somewhat down the hill up which these issues climbed in recent weeks. Communications bonds also were dull, but most other special groups were inclined upward.

Colombian bonds were favorites in the foreign dollar default group, while Brazilians lost some of the ground gained since Dr. Oswaldo Aranha arrived. The German section was neglected but steady. Italians and Japanese obligations improved modestly. Best grade foreigns of Scandinavian, Canadian and Australian origin reflected small buying orders from London.

Treasury Bills Sold at Par

Secretary Morgenthau announces that the Treasury's weekly offer of $100,000,000 of 91-day bills was sold at either $99.999 of $100 per $100 units. In recent weeks, the average price has been $99.999.

He also announces that the Treasury's offer of new securities in exchange for Treasury notes maturing June 15 would close tonight.

Monsanto Co. Sales Are 17% Less Than 1937

Net Is $2.35 a Share Which Compares With $4.40 in Previous Year

St. Louis, March 8.—Net sales of Monsanto Chemical Co. in 1938 were $31,935,391 the annual report to stockholders by Edgar Monsanto Queeny, president, disclosed today. This is a decline of 14.33 per cent from chemical sales of the company in 1937, or a decline of 17.11 per cent from chemical and plastics sales taking into consideration the 1937 sales volume of Fiberloid Corporation, which was absorbed on April 1, 1938, as the plastics division of the company.

Earnings of $3,290,519 in 1938 were reported. This is equivalent to $2.35 a common share in comparison with $4.40 a common share in 1937. Income before provision for income taxes was $4,144,396, compared with $6,192,016 in 1937.

New York, March 7.—American Ice Co. and subsidiaries report for 1938, sales of ice, fuel, oil burners and ice refrigerators amounting to $11,381,409; this compares with $13,222,840 in 1937. There was a net loss of $279,607.12 after Federal taxes and depreciation, as compared with a net profit of $339,216.17 in 1937. Current assets were $3,210,563 and current liabilities $956,975. There were no bank loans.

Texas Gulf Sulphur

Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. today reported net income for 1938 of $6,963,632 after all charges, equal to $1.81 a share on capital stock. This compared with 1937 net income of $11,589,281, or $3.02 a capital share.

Schenley Distillers

Schenley Distillers Corporation placed 1938 earnings at $4,050,179, or $2.44 a share on common stock, against $7,320,902, or $5.04 a common share, in 1937. Lester E. Jacobi, president, told stockholders in the annual report that domestic sales in the last quarter of 1938 "showed substantial improvement and . . . this favorable trend has continued in 1939."

Pressed Steel Car

Pressed Steel Car Co. and subsidiaries reported a net loss for 1938 of $1,169,778 after charges, compared with net profit of $717,648 in 1937, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.05 a share on common stock. Principal plants are at McKees Rocks, Pa., and Hegewisch, Ill.

Daily Oil Output Dips 3,685 Barrels

Tulsa, March 7 (AP).—The national output of petroleum declined 3,685 barrels daily during the week ending March 4 to average 3,329,437 barrels daily for the week, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma declined 8,625 barrels daily to average 441,200, east Texas was up 101 barrels to 372,648 and the State of Texas had a rise of 9,346 to 1,321,039. Louisiana increased 1,750 barrels to 268,855, while California was down 16,000 to 607,500.

Currency Circulation $51.44 Per Capita

Currency and coin in circulation increased to $6,731,339,832, or an average of $51.44 per person, during February.

The Treasury said yesterday that the per capita circulation was $50.87 at the end of January and $48.74 a year ago.

Montgomery Ward Sales Up 14.7%

Chicago, March 7 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. today reported that its sales during February, first period of its new fiscal year, totaled $24,964,107, an increase of $3,199,602, or 14.7 per cent, compared with $21,764,505 sales reported for the corresponding month a year ago.

Food Chain Prices Under Independents

Difference Is From 7.9% to 8.38% Despite Chain Taxes

Chicago, March 7.—Despite taxes on chain stores in 42 States, late 1938 prices on branded food products showed chains underselling independents by 7.9 per cent and voluntary chains by 8.38 per cent, according to a survey in the Journal of Business of the University of Chicago. The survey, made in central New York State by Charles F. Phillips, assistant professor of Economics at Colgate University, is the third in a series started in 1930.

Using virtually the same list for the comparative prices in 1930, 1934 and 1938, Dr. Phillips covered 53 products. The survey was made in stores of five towns in October.

In 1930, chain prices averaged 12.83 per cent under independents, and 9.71 per cent under voluntary independents.

One surprising result of the current survey was the fact that chains are underselling voluntary chains more now than they were in 1934 and that independents' prices are for the first time lower than those of voluntary chains, Dr. Phillips reported.

Lt. Col. Lucas To Be Buried In Arlington

Military Rites Monday for Marine Corps Officer

Military rites for Lieut. Col. Lewis Clark Lucas, 71, U. S. M. C., retired, one of two Marine Corps officers to serve with the Navy general board, will be at 10:30 a. m. Saturday in Arlington Cemetery. He died Monday in Harlingen, Tex.

Col. Lucas, who had lived at 1710 Thirty-seventh street northwest, was spending the winter in San Benito, Tex. He was taken to Harlingen Hospital February 20.

A native of Marietta, Ohio, Col. Lucas was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps in July, 1891. He was made a brevet captain for conspicuous conduct at the Battle of Guantanamo Bay in August, 1898, and had served in the Philippines and at both the Army and Navy War Colleges.

After 30 years in the Marine Corps Col. Lucas retired in 1915, but was recalled to active duty in March, 1918. He had served with the Emergency Fleet Corps and at Marine Corps headquarters here before being appointed to the Navy general board in October, 1918, where he was active until 1932.

Col. Lucas was a member of the Army and Navy Club and the Sons of the American Revolution. Surviving are three daughters, Sister Helena, of the Sisters of Charity, now at St. Vincent's Hospital, Philadelphia; Mrs. Martin J. Gannon, and Mrs. Edwin R. Kinnear, both of Washington.

William Jackley Funeral Is Held

Last rites for William C. Jackley, 68, former guide at the Pan American Building, were held yesterday in Arlington, Va. Burial was in Cedar Hill.

Mr. Jackley died Saturday. He was a native of Frankton, Md., and came to Washington in 1918.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Jack Dreyfus, of E. A. Pierce & Co., is the leading player in the Bankers Bridge League individual contest, and the team representing De Coppet & Doremus is high for the teams, having won all five of the matches played to date. Sixteen companies make up the league, which runs several bridge contests each year.

Dreyfus, a young man, is already a master player, having several national championships to his credit. He has been the partner of such experts as Baron Waldemar von Zedtmitz, Sam Fry, jr., and Edward Hymes. A few years ago he was frequently cited as one of the most promising of the young players. It is not surprising, therefore, to find him first of the 50 strong bridge players competing in the Bankers' individual championship.

Several sessions remain to be played in both events.

The members of the Irving Trust Co. keep in trim for the tournaments by playing contract each day at their luncheon club. A hand dealt recently upon which one of the players made a doubled five-club contract by a squeeze and end-play is shown in today's box. T. S. the contributor, describes it like this:

At the Irving Trust Co. luncheon club, contract has taken quite a hold. The other day, after my partner and I had an awfully stubborn streak of poor holdings, a hand came up which I thought might interest you. This is a key to the bidding:

"Two diamonds—Hey, partner, I have a couple of tricks,

"Three clubs—So what? So have I.

"Pass—Just one more and I'll take a crack at it.

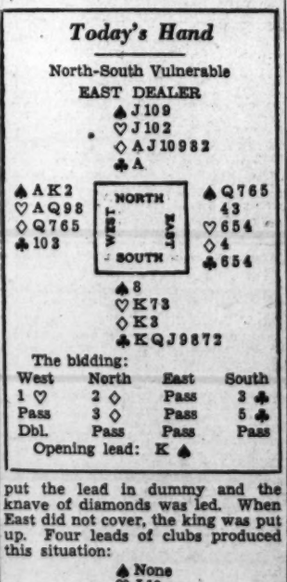
"Three diamonds—Hey, pal, I ain't got no clubs.

"Five clubs—No clubs, eh? Well, if they go thorugh my heart king, it's curtains. Here's hoping you have two aces.

"Double—Tough guy, eh? Take that!

"Pass—Somebody's crazy. Bet it's you, partner.

"In the play the king of spades was followed by the ace, which was ruffed by South. The ace of clubs put the lead in dummy and the knave of diamonds was led. When East did not cover, the king was put up. Four leads of clubs produced this situation:



"The lead of the club seven left West with an impossible discard. To discard a diamond would set up the diamonds in dummy, with the nearly certain finesse. The only hope was to discard the heart queen and hold out for the heart ace.

"The three of hearts put West into the lead. A diamond was returned and the finesse was no longer necessary. The heart knave was overtaken and the king and the seven of hearts produced the final needed tricks."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

THOSE in the service who have been waiting for years for promotions were interested to learn that a system for competitive advances was drafted by the Civil Service Commission. But now comes word that the system, as it is set to paper, is so involved that the Council for Personnel Administration, or some of its members, are having difficulty in understanding it and think the form will have to be simplified before any real conclusions can be reached about so important a matter.

THERE comes reports that the guards at the White House are considering the study of jujitsu, which would be pretty tough stuff when applied in its most realistic form to door crashers after autographs. Incidentally, Prof. Les Batten, of the National Park Guard force, is the top artist, locally, in that line.

IVAN D. Carson, Indianan who has been chairman of the HOLC property committee, has been appointed deputy general manager in charge of property management, succeeding Col. Harold Lee, who has become general counsel of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. He was educated at the University of Indiana, was associated with one of the largest mortgage companies in Chicago for several years and in 1929-30 was president of the Chicago Chapter of the American Institute of Banking. He has been with the HOLC since 1934.

THE I. D. R. A. News, organ of the Interior Department employes' recreation group, follows in the footsteps of the boss, Mr. Ickes, who several weeks ago took the radio to tell newspapers how to run their own business. Says the organ:

"On turning the country over to columnists: The rise of newspaper columnists on the horizon of public affairs, and the superiority of their knowledge concerning political economy, administration of government, prescience and whatnot, indicates one thing—the age-old human trait that every guy thinks he is more capable to run the business of someone else than the person doing the actual work." Well, how about a good old Government-controlled press, under which the Government "person doing the actual work" can do it as he pleases, or not at all if he pleases? Reference: Germany, Italy, Russia.

But that's no quarrel with the I.D.R.A., which this column has loved long since. That renowned body flings what S. M. Barrett says will be "the most comprehensive Federal employe social event of the year at the National Press Club the night of March 17." Beside St. Patrick's Day features, the event will introduce interesting episodes in connection with the centenary of "100 years of baseball." Ian Forbes (NPS) is chairman of the dance committee; the baseball features will be directed by R. L. Dunbar (PWA), Jack Marchant (Indian Office), John Wilkinson (Park Service) and Edward J. Kelly, I.D.R.A. president. The St. Patrick's Day program will be in charge of Mrs. Addie A. Hughes, Grace Hazard, Beulah Searles, John I. Davidson and Lorin Kirkland.

WARDEN James A. Johnston comes here now from the tomb of Alcatraz and makes such comment as will interest that legion of guards who tend prisoners in all the other Federal prisons and who complain, so bitterly, that they serve as many hours as the prisoners

Personnel problems weren't responsible for the warden's visit here, but this columnr learned his viewpoints. First, because of the type of criminals to be guarded he sees that working conditions are such that there can be no flare-back from the men entrusted with the custody of the prisoners. That's the keystone of his personnel policy. It is a recognition that a discontented or overworked body of attendants would bring quick havoc. In the loud complaints that come from the employed personnel in the Federal prisons, nothing is heard from Alcatraz. The warden saw the light from his beginning there in 1934. He says the men are all well satisfied with working conditions and his policy. Nothing has been heard to dispute it.

THE House Ways and Means Committee yesterday was urged to make merit mandatory in the selection of State personnel for the Social Security . . . The Farm Credit Club might be interested to know that the FCA personnel director, Theodore Wilson, jr., said yesterday that the club is one of the most important things in the organization. He thinks it builds up employe spirit and gives grounding in what an FCA employe should be

Bob Burns Says—

Well, there's one supercolossal attraction that ain't gonna be at the New York World's Fair—an' that's the Dionne quintuplets. They was offered a hundred thousand dollars to make a personal appearance, but their guardians said: "Nothin' doin'! We can't shoulder no responsibility like that! It's risky enough turnin' one woman loose in a big city, let alone five!"

I sure sympathize with them elders. Deliver me from ever tryin' to handle the affairs of five young ladies! Boy, they think they've got troubles now—but let 'em wait till them Dionne glamour girls reach the marriageable age an' start playin' tricks on their suitors! They'll never be able to tell who's in love with whom unless they can get each of the girls to wear a different scent of perfume. Then, no matter how the girls shuffle themselves around, a suitor can grab the right one. "You can't fool me, Sweetheart!" he'll tell her. "You may get my eyes to deceive me—but, Baby, my nose knows!"

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Bobby and Jimmy Agree

When things seem hard and life unfair,
With others' ways your own compare.
—Old Mother Nature.

Over in a little swamp near the Smiling Pool Jimmy Skunk watched Bobby Coon catch a Frog, wash it and eat it. Bobby caught that Frog by feeling for him in the mud of a shallow little pool into which that Frog had dived. Bobby smacked his lips as he finished that Frog.

"That's the first Frog I have had this spring," said he. "Frogs are good eatng."

"I would go hungry a long time before I would go feeling around for one in mud and water, the way you did just now," said Jimmy.

Bobby grinned. "You don't like water much, do you?" said he.

"Then what are you over here around water for?" asked Bobby Coon.

"Just to see if I might have better luck getting some food than I had back where I usually hunt," replied Jimmy. "Do you know what I think?"

"No. What do you think?" said Bobby Coon.

"Worse than in the middle of winter, when everything is covered with ice and snow?" inquired Bobby.

Jimmy nodded. "Much worse," said he. "In cold weather I sleep. I don't care how much snow and ice there may be. Mrs. Jimmy and some of last year's children and I just curl up together down there under ground where Jack Frost can't reach us and sleep. We don't care how cold it is above ground, because we don't know anything about it. If there comes a warm spell and we wake up and go out we don't worry if we can't find anything to eat. We are not really hungry and we are still fat. It is this time of year when we can't sleep, have used up our fat, are hungry, and can find little to eat that is the hardest time of the whole year.

Bobby Coon agreed. "You've said it," declared he. "In winter, while it is very cold with ice and snow, I do the same thing you do—sleep."

"It is the only sensible thing to do," said Jimmy. "I don't see why everybody doesn't do it. Where do you sleep?"

"Usually in a hollow tree," replied Bobby. "Give me a good bed in a hollow in a tree and pretty well up from the ground. No holes in the ground for me. You can have those."

"Do you spend the winter alone?" persisted Jimmy.

"Not unless I have to. The family stay together, just as your family does. We sleep warmer that way," replied Bobby.

"And then, like us, you wake too soon in the spring, and because you can't sleep you go out and look about, and because traveling about uses up fat you become hungry, and because the hungrier you get the more you travel, hunting for something to eat, and the faster this uses up what fat is left the hungrier you become and——"

"The thinner I become," interrupted Bobby Coon and grinned. "I guess it is pretty much the same with us, only you never hurry so you cannot get thin as I do."

"One who hurries can look in more places. He can cover more ground," said Bobby.

"Which isn't much this time of year," declared Booby Coon.

Prince Georges Urges Law to Oust Gamblers

Another County Would Make Apparatus Prima Facie Evidence

In a broad move to wipe out organized gambling within the county, Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday called upon the State Legislature to adopt legislation making the possession of gaming paraphernalia prima facie evidence of guilt.

A bill already has been drafted by Montgomery County, intended to end reportedly increased activities of gamblers and lottery operators driven into the counties by stringent District laws.

Threatens "Jimmy's Place"

The move threatens "Jimmy's place," on Bladensburg road, reputed to be the largest gambling place between Philadelphia and Miami, which has been operating with little or no molestation for more than a decade.

The master minds behind the $2,000,000 "numbers" racket in Washington, who are said to have scurried to the counties when Congress put teeth into the anti-gambling laws of the District, may have to find new headquarters, for the proposed Prince Georges measure would be worded to include "numbers" and "bookie" slips as evidence.

The Prince Georges bill, it was pointed out, would clarify existing conflicting laws which have tended to handicap prosecution of suspects. Passage of such a statute has been urged by the Prince Georges Ministerial Association, the county Farm Bureau, and other organizations.

The commissioners acted on the recommendation of State's Attorney H. Winship Wheatley, jr., who since he took office last January, has won conviction of three persons on gaming charges.

Two months ago the commisisoners issued orders to police that all casinos were to be closed down immediately.

F. B. I. to Assist

At about the same time the Department of Justice disclosed that the Federal Bureau of Investigation would enter the fight against illegal betting by seeking evidence of criminal conspiracy to violate the District laws. In this way, it was observed, the District laws could reach out and strike the racketeers workin gfrom Maryland centers.

Arthur W. Hepburn, superintendent of Prince Georges' police, immediately offered full co-operation, but again the results of the campaign have been pegligible.

Last week, Charles M. Orme, new police chief of Montgomery, and Acting State's Attorney James C. Christopher declared that the police intended to investigate all reports of gambling in the county and to make arrests where gambling is found.

Christopher said: "If gangs actually are in existence in Montgomery County there is no definite knowledge of the existence of any such widespread violations (as reported) either in my office or in the police department."

The Montgomery bill to drive out gamblers is backed by State's Attorney Ben G. Wilkinson, jr., and the Policemen's Association.

W. P. Jackson, Ex-Md. Senator, Dies at 71

Was Member of Republican National Committee 24 Years

Salisbury, Md., March 7 (AP).—William Purnell Jackson, 71, former United States Senator from Maryland and for 24 years a member of the Republican National Committee, died at his home here late today.

His death ended a career which had brought him prominence in State and national politics, and in the business and civic affairs of his community and the Eastern Shore.

Jackson was appointed to the Senate in 1912 by former Gov. Goldsborough, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Isadore Rayner, and served for two years.

He became State treasurer in 1918 and held the post for two years, and after that period confined his political activities to State affairs and national conventions.

After serving as Republican national committeeman for 24 years, he declined reappointment in 1932 because of ill health.

A son of the late Representative William H. Jackson, he was born in Salisbury and educated at the Delaware Conference Academy at Dover, Del. He was formerly president of the Salisbury National Bank and president of the board of the Peninsula General Hospital, which his father was instrumental in founding.

His business affairs included management of the Jackson & Jackson Shirt Co. and the Jackson Lumber Co., which has extensive interests in Southern States.

He is survived by his wife and four children, William H. Jackson 2d, and Mrs. Frank D. Fripp, of Bronxville, N. Y.; W. Newton Jackson and Mrs. C. E. Schoble, of Philadelphia.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

It's Here! A Non-Wiggle Baby Bath

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Inventor Thomas A. Hughes tests his new nonwiggle baby bath with the aid of his son, Michael Hughes, 1½ years old. A device called "The Baby Bouy," shaped like a chair and equipped with nonslip rubber cups, holds the baby steady. For fathers who wash the bay, there's nothing better, says Hughes. Not a wiggle in a tub full!

Threat to Free Religion Seen In Security Tax

Baptist Educators Warn Against Levy on Churches

A new threat to religious liberty in America is embodied in the recommendation of the Social Security Board advisory council that churches be taxed, officials of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary warned in a letter received by Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, of this city.

Executive secretary of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention, Dr. Weaver is general chairman of the executive committee of the associated committees on public relations of the Northern and Southern Baptist conventions, which represents 4,500,000 Southern Baptists and 1,500,000 Northern Baptists.

Several weeks ago the House Ways and Means Committee began hearings on amendments to strengthen the social security act, the board recommending that additional organizations, including churches, should make old age annuity provisions. The next hearing is March 13.

Dr. Weaver and other members of the executive committee, met yesterday to consider the protest.

"Baptists in particular and Christians of all faiths who are of like mind should inform themselves of the dangerous potentialities of this bill," said the letter in part, signed by John R. Sampey, president of the faculty of Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville.

"The . . . meaning of this amendment for Baptists becomes clear when we recall their historic views. Early American history rings with their insistence upon full religious liberty for all men. In order to guarantee such liberty for the individual they further insisted on the State's recognition of the distinctive nature and function of the church in the world, warranting the demand for a free church in a free state.

"They believed, and Baptists still believe, that the church is not in the same category as the economic corporation, that it is the voice of God in the world, and that its spiritual function becomes impossible when its organization and methods are controlled by the state, or when it becomes economically dependent upon any group whatsoever . . ."

". . . In our sight this amendment is just another step undiscerningly proposed perhaps in the direction of incorporating religious organizations under the leadership and control of the state, a movement that promises as great a disaster for democratic government as for the church" continued the letter.

Bigelow Rites Held; Chemist Expired at 72

Wife, Two Daughters Among Survivors Living in Washington

Funeral for Dr. Willard Dell Bigelow, chemist and director of the Research Laboratory of the National Canners Association, was held yesterday at the home of a relative, Mrs. Edgar Brawner, 2830 Forty-fourth street northwest. Burial was private.

Dr. Bigelow died Monday at Emergency Hospital after an illness of several months. He was 72.

Worked With Dr. Wiley

Dr. Bigelow had made important contributions to the canning industry and was credited by scientists with raising the standards of the industry above those required by the pure food law. He assisted the late Dr. Harvey W. Wiley in efforts to enact the pure food law and, after it was passed, in training personnel and working out methods of enforcing it.

Born at Gardner, Kans., Dr. Bigelow was graduated from Amherst College. He lived in Washington more than 50 years. From 1892 until 1913 he was a chemist in the Department of Agriculture, serving the last 10 years of that time as chief of the divisions of foods, Bureau of Chemistry.

Since 1913 he had been with the canning industry. He was at one time professor of chemistry at Columbian University, now George Washington University.

Wife, Daughters Survive

His work included a study of food chemistry, with special reference to development and storage of fruits, study of the effect of preservatives on health and digestion, study of food composition and purity, perfection of the technology of food canning, and inspection and enforcement of food laws.

Dr. Bigelow belonged to the American Chemical Society and the Association of Official Agriculturalists and was a past president of local chemical and bacteriological societies. He was a member of the Cosmos Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nancy Bigelow; two daughters, Miss May T. Bigelow and Mrs. Jessie M. Martin, all of Washington, and two brothers, Arthur and Alpha Bigelow, both of Gardner, Kans. He also leaves three grandchildren.

Mrs. Shoup had resided in Washington several times while Capt. Shoup was on duty here. Surviving are three children by a previous marriage.

Transit Chief Opposes Shift In Bus Stops

Says Change From Near To Far Sides of Street Would Block Traffic

A proposal to change bus stops from the near to far sides of street intersections was opposed by Edward D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., at a dinner meeting of the Keystone Automobile Club's Advisory Board last night.

Merrill, objecting to a recommendation by a special Keystone committee, cited three reasons in opposition to the plan.

He said establishment of bus stops on the far sides of intersections would necessitate buses stopping twice for red lights as well as for passengers.

Traffic would be blocked when two or more buses, driving one behind another, stopped for passengers, Merrill asserted. He further criticized the proposal on the ground that frequent stops would result in a tremendous increase in operating costs.

William A. VanDuzer, director of Vehicles and Traffic, said stopping of buses at near corners did not constitute a safety hazzard. He could recall no incident when an accident had been caused by such a stop, he said.

The advisory board deferred action on a proposal recommending that policemen appear in court only one day a week to present their cases after Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, said the present system was satisfactory.

The board disapproved a section of the Griffenhagen report that would split the Traffic Department into three different divisions.

Dr. Gassaway, Of Health Service, Is Dead at 91

Dr. James Morsell Gassaway, 91, oldest member of the United States Public Health Service, died Sunday in Cairo, Ill., it was learned here yesterday. A native of the District, the senior surgeon saw 63 years of service with the Federal government.

Placed on "waiting orders" in 1917 after 41 years of active work which had taken him from Maine to the West Coast, Dr. Gassaway led campaigns against disease and medical fraud. In 1889, when a tidal wave following in the wake of a hurricane destroyed the quarantine station at Chandaleur Island, Miss., four service officers and their assistants were drowned. Dr. Gassaway, the lone survivor, directed rebuilding of a new station on nearby Ship Island.

Dr. Gassaway earned his medical degree at Columbia College, now George Washington University, in 1872, and soon after was appointed to the office of the chief of Army Engineers, transferring later to the health service. He headed a series of Marine hospitals and supervised work of the life-saving units.

Mother Cuffs Son To Reformatory

Chicago, March 7 (AP).—Frank Calindo, 17, who escaped from the House of Correction last night, came running back today—with his mother at his heels, cuffing him at every opportunity.

Officials decided the mother had done such a good job no further punishment was necessary.

House Democrats Get Queries on 1940 Outlook

By the Associated Press.

With the 1940 elections in mind, the Democratic National Congressional Committee sent a letter to all House Democrats yesterday asking for information on political conditions in Congressional districts and the States.

The letter was signed by Representative Drewry (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the committee, and by members of a subcommittee headed by Representative Cole (Democrat), of Maryland.

"We have no particular questions in mind," the letter said. "We simply desire a free and candid expression from you as to the political conditions as they exist today and what you anticipate will be the situation in 1940."

One of Warner Brothers Dies of Sleeping Sickness

Boston, March 7 (AP).—David Warner, 45, a brother of Harry, Albert and Jack Warner, motion picture executives, died tonight from a form of sleeping sickness that made him an invalid 21 years. Relatives said he contracted the illness in the World War.

Dictatorship Threat Is Seen in Griffenhagen Plan

Establishment of a city-manager form of government in a voteless community "would be tantamount to dictatorship," the District Joint Citizens Committee warned yesterday in a survey of the effect of the Griffenhagen report's recommendations on the Capital's colored population.

"None can deny the need for reorganization in the District government," the survey states, but it demands vigilance against any changes which would negate benefits now enjoyed by colored citizens.

Creation of a District civil service system may prove prejudicial to the interests of colored persons, the report charges, unless the system requires appointment of the highest candidate for any office, rather than selection from the three highest.

Abolition of the Board of Education or narrowing of its power, as recommended in the Griffenhagen report, should be strenuously opposed, according to the committee, which expresses fear that biracial conduct of the city school system might gradually be eliminated if the independent character of the Board of Education is altered.

Star Distances Overestimated Because of Dust, Scientist Says

Distances of faint stars have been overestimated because of the failure of astronomers to allow for absorption of light in space, Dr. Joel Stebbins, director of the Washburn Observatory of the University of Wisconsin and research associate of the Carnegie Institution, declared last night in a Carnegie lecture here.

For ten years Dr. Stebbins and his assistant, Dr. A. E. Whitford, have used the photoelectric to measure the light and color of stars at Mount Wilson Observatory.

In recent years, Dr. Stebbins pointed out, the presence of gas and dust in the space between stars has been revealed by absorption lines in the spectra of distant stars and by the reddened color of these stars caused by the passage of their light through millions of miles of widely scattered dust.

By measuring colors of stars with the photocell, the amount of reddening and hence the amount of dust can be placed on a numerical basis, he stated.

The effect of interstellar dust, Dr. Stebbins pointed out, is to make stars appear fainter than distance alone would warrant. But for the dust, the Milky Way would appear twice as bright to the human, eye, he said.

Some Atoms In Helium Push Others Around

By G. B. Lal

International News Service Science Editor
Copyright 1939

London, March 7.—Discovery of new kinds of helium atoms, that may serve as clews to some major mysteries of the universe, was revealed here today by Dr. J. F. Allen of the Royal Society Laboratory.

G. B. LAL

Experimenting with Prof. H. Jones, of Imperial College here, Dr. Allen has found in liquid helium No. 2 evidence of specially pushing, domineering, active atoms.

In planets where hydrogen and helium are subjected to low temperatures and pressures, helium may exist in solid form or partly in the liquid form. The laboratory researches here thus indirectly reveal some of the conditions in these planets.
